Soviet Russia Thrown Out of the League of Nations

Unprovoked War Upon Finns Given As only Reason

Drastic Action Supported by Nearly All Nations

NEUTRALS ARE PLEASED WITH SLAP AT THE REDS

Germans Believe that Russia Will Now Work with Them

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR.

Geneva, Dec. 14 (AP)—Soviet Russia, which in years past used the League of Nations as a forum for speeches against "aggression" in Spain and Czecho-Slovakia, was thrown out of that council today for having waged unprovoked war on Finland.

Seven of the fourteen members of the league council voted to expel the U. S. S. R. government after the assembly had condemned the Soviet as an aggressor and had urged all league members to give Finland all possible material help. Four-Finland, China, Yugoslavia and Greece, abstained. Three were absent.

It was the league's first expulsion of a member.

Nine Refuse to Vote

Nine of the thirty-nine present abstained from voting in the assembly on the preliminary resolution marking the Soviet as an aggressor. They were the three Scandinavian countries, Norway, Sweden and Denmark; three Baltic countries Lthunia, Latvia and Eston-

Norval Harrison

Norval Harrison, 15-year-old boy scout of Elizabeth, N. J., is believed the victim of a "William Tell" act that failed. Hackett's body was found in the back yard, a rifle nearby.

Hoover Denies He Is at Odds with Red Cross Group

Never Declined Roosevelt Invitation To Head Relief

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—Reports of tension between Herbert Hoover's relief organization and the Red Cross, which is headed by President Roosevelt, led to the following barrage of pronouncements today (in chronological order):

1. Hoover denied at New York that there was any friction between his campaign for Finnish relief funds and any other group. He said it "is a great pity that people will start out to poison the wells of human charity."

2. Stephen Early, President Roosevelt's secretary, said that about the time Germany was moving into Poland Mr. Roosevelt, through Chairman Norman Davis of the Red Cross, had sought to have Mr. Hoover become a 'sort of general manager of relief" for European war sufferers. Early added that "apparently Mr. Hoover did not see fit to accept the offer."

Richey Reports "Confusion"

3. Lawrence Richey, Hoover's secretary, said in reply to Early that there was some confusion; that "there was no discussion of Red Cross organization before the war, as he implies." Hoover added that since the war, he had continuously supported Davis and the Red Cross activities. He said that he recommended 'strongly that the Red Cross expand to take over every kind of relief, and offered his counsel and advice," but the Red Cross "did not feel that they could assume such large responsibilities outside their normal field."

4. Chairman Davis of the Red Cross said that Hoover, some

British Admiralty Presses Hunt for 2 Nazi Warships

Hope To Contact the Scheer and the Deutschland Soon

REPORT SHOOTING DOWN FOUR GERMAN AIRPLANES

But Lose Three of Own Planes in Battle over Helgoland

BY ROBERT BUNNELLE

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—Great Britain's admiralty poured mighty men o' war into a redoubled hunt tonight for the two German pocket battle-ships still at sea and counted out the troublesome raider Admiral Graf Spee, lying crippled in Montevideo harbor with a reinforced British warship patrol waiting watchfuly outside.

The admiralty announced the two British light cruisers, Ajax and Achilles, which chased the Graf Spee into the neutral refuge late last night, had been "strongly reinforced." At the same time authoritative sources disclosed the battle cruiser Renown, mounting six five-inch guns and twelve four-inch guns and displacing around 37,000 tons fully loaded, and the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal, have reached waters near Capetown to hunt the raiding German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer.

Renown Is Fast Ship

The Renown is one of the few British warships deemed capable of "catching and killing" a German pocket - battleship single - handed. Her speed is twenty-nine knots.

Patrols of British men o' war also were keeping a wary eye upon the North Atlantic on the chance of catching the Nazi pocket battleship Deutschland, in spite of the handicap of short wintry daylight.

Moreover, an intense twenty-four-search for German warships and U-boats by British Royal Air Force squadrons over the North Sea and northwest German estuaries and islands was disclosed to have resulted in fierce air engagements over Helgoland Bight. Four German Messerschmidts and three British fighters were shot down, the air ministry said.

Raided Off Africa

Raiding activities by the Admiral Scheer have been reported off South Africa. Naval sources, however, said that the three pocket-battleships, with identical specifications, had changed names fre-

War Department Wants Air Corps Pilots

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—The war department has appealed for 400 volunteers to become air corps pilots.

The appeal was issued because applications have dropped off since the start of fall and winter college terms. Last summer thousands of youths wanted to take the army's nine-month training looking to service as pilots.

Secretary Woodring noted that the physical examination is rigid, applicants must be between 20 and 27 years old and must have had at least two years of college work or its equivalent.

British Seamen Describe Attack upon the Admiral Spee

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 14 (AP)—Vivid eye-witness stories of the Admiral Graf Spee's fight with British cruisers were told tonight by members of a group of sixty-two British seamen who were prisoners directly under one of the eleven-inch gun turrets while the Graf Spee threw steel at her attackers.

Freed of their marine prison—several after weeks of confinement—the seamen described how they counted hits by British guns and cheered for the attacking cruisers, at the same time realizing they were doomed if the Graf Spee sank because the doors of their steel cells were barred when the action began.

Cruiser Exeter on Way to Drydock

Buenos Aires, Dec. 14 (AP)—The British cruiser Exeter, crippled in last night's battle with the German Admiral Graf Spee, limped tonight toward drydock in the Argentine naval base of Puerto Belgrano in Bahia Blanca, seeking repairs.

At Puerto Belgrano, 100 beds were prepared at the naval hospital for the Exeter's wounded.

The base is 120 miles southwest of Buenos Aires.

Telephone dispatches from Bahia Blanca said the Exeter was expected off Mar Del Plata, Argentine Atlantic port, before morning, enroute to the drydock.

The dispatches said the Exeter had made a request that it be allowed to use the drydock.

Dwight F. Bracken Discusses Unusual Employment Plan

It totals the same—$25 a week for fifty-two weeks a year equals $1,300.

"It isn't the same, however," said Dwight F. Bracken, head of the Fordham University Replacement Bureau, who two years ago started a novel experiment of "servicing" college men for their future bosses.

"There's a feeling of permanency in a $1,300-a-year job, while a $25-a-week pay check just means a job that may end tomorrow. And that's what the college grad with a new diploma is looking for now—permanency," Bracken said.

Russians Claim 75 Mile Advance

Moscow, Dec. 15 (Friday) (AP)—Red army headquarters declared today a spearhead had been driven seventy-five miles across the Finnish Arctic, or more than a third of the way to the Bothnian Gulf.

The communique said only that the advance had been made in the Ukhta area. However, previous operations in the same area have resulted in the reported occupation of Salla and Markajarvi in a drive to cut Finland in two at her most narrow part.

An advance of seventy-five miles from the border in that section would place the Red army spearhead but about fifteen miles from Kemijarvi, terminal of the railroad which runs for 110 miles in southwesterly direction to Kemi, on the Bothnian Gulf.

Finns Continue To Hold Lines On East Front

Fierce Fighting Marks Battle along the Tiapale River

FURIOUS ARTILLERY ATTACK IS A FAILURE

Many Trees Destroyed, but Finns Suffer No Casualties

By LYNN HEINZERLING

With the Finnish army on the eastern Karelian front, Dec. 14 (AP)—Several battalions of fierce fighting Finns clung stubbornly today to their positions on the Taipale river near Lake Ladoga in the face of heavy artillery fire.

For more than a week they have been holding out against the Russians, wrighting a new chapter of Finland's struggle for independence.

Today I stood in a first line Finnish trench and watched with a group of Finnish soldiers as Soviet artillery sent shell after shell screaming across the winding stream into a forest about half a mile away.

When the day was over the Russians had blackened the snow for acres and blasted the woods around—but the Finns still were holding the river positions.

Reds Forced Back

(In another southeastern section of their country, the Finns announced officially today they had turned the tide of the Russian invasion, forcing the Red army into retreat and recapturing an extensive area around Tolvajarvi, which is forty miles west of the eastern frontier and the same distance north of Lake Ladoga. In the north the Russians, penetrating the Finnish nickel mining district, neared the blazing town of Salmijarvi while the Finns retreated in orderly fashion, burning towns and rural buildings behind them.)

Acres and acres of stately Pine and Spruce trees, agleam with winter's frost, have been cut down in this Taipale river area by tons of three-inch, six-inch and eight-inch Russian shells.

But since the attack began in this sector Dec. 6 the Finns haven't yielded an inch.

They have nipped a dozen attempts by the Russians to throw a pontoon bridge across the river.

Cruiser Cumberland Arrives and Renown Is Expected Soon; Exeter Wounded in Port

By HAROLD K. MILKS

Montivideo, Dec. 14 (AP) — The shell-battered Nazi pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, playing a dangerous game of cat and mouse with a gathering British battle-fleet, tonight won Uruguayan permission to remain in this neutral port until she can repair the damage suffered in the war's first great sea fight.

The Uruguayan foreign minister, Alberto Guani, tonight announced that, "in accordance with the Uruguayan law and international law," the Graf Spee could stay in Montevideo harbor, on request of the German government pending repairs.

Time Limit Nearly Up

The announcement was made shortly before the twenty-four-hour time limit, normally permitted for the stay of a belligerent ship, would have expired at midnight, Uruguayan time, or 10:30 p. m., E.S.T.

Guani said the German captain would be given sufficient time to make his warcraft seaworthy.

Close inspection of the crippled ship indicated the need of extensive repairs.

Meanwhile, the British cruiser Exeter, damaged and forced out of the battle which drove the Admiral Graf Spee to refuge here last night, was approaching the Argentine naval base at Puerto Belgrano, seeking to drydock for repairs. One hundred hospital beds were prepared there for her wounded.

Safe for the Present

The Uruguayan decision meant that the Graf Spee, still at anchor in the bay with her thirty-six dead and sixty wounded on board, need not immediately attempt a suicidal

Nazis Confident Graf Spee Will Be Able To Get Away

Pocket Battleship Hailed as Victor in Clash with British

Berlin, Dec. 14 (AP)—Nazi Germany hailed the Admiral Graf Spee tonight as the heroic victor in the war's first great naval battle and cherished hopes the crippled pocket-battleship might yet fight her way to sea from her Montevideo refuge.

At the same time, charges that mustard gas shells from British cruisers accounted for the Graf Spee's thirty-six dead and sixty wounded became somewhat muffled. Authorities declined to give the charges official backing, after they had been made by D.N.B., the Nazi news agency. Officially, it was stated that no official information about the use of gas had been received and that reports to that end had come from "foreign sources." (They were vigorously denied in London.)

Germans Highly Elated

Loud ejaculations of "what do you think of that?" were heard everywhere as the newspapers exulted over the Graf Spee's "heroic action" in "fighting down three British cruisers. The action off Uruguay was described as the second German sea victory in a few days—the first, the successful return home of the great liner Bremen from Murmansk after an encounter with a British submarine.

The extent of damage to the Graf Spee remained undisclosed, the high command, in a communique,

U. S. Seeks Facts About Battle Off Uruguayan Coast

Officials Interested in Question of Possible Violations

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—The administration sought today all the information it could get on the British-German naval engagement off the shores of Uruguay to determine whether the battle was a violation of the western hemisphere neutrality zone.

If the sea fight is regarded as such a violation, consultations will be held with the other American republics to decide upon common action.

Edwin C. Wilson, American minister to Uruguay, telephoned the state department from Montevideo that the first engagement between the German pocket battleship and the three British cruisers was reported to have taken place 200 miles off shore.

A position 200 miles off Uruguay would be within the neutrality area.

The second and third engagements, Mr. Wilson reported, "took place not very far off the Uruguayan coast, outside territorial waters, but some reports say about twelve sea miles. I do not know whether that is exact or not. The firing could be heard from the shore."

Officials were interested in unconfirmed reports that two British merchantmen were sunk at the beginning of the engagement.

It is not believed that protests will be made to the belligerents by this government as a result of the naval battle unless there is evidence that the engagement endangered shipping of the American nations or American cargoes.

If merchant ships were sunk inside the neutrality zone, however, the matter assumes a graver aspect.

Big German Liner Leaves Vera Cruz To Run Blockade

Columbus Believed To Be on Her Way to Port in Germany

Berlin, Dec. 14 (AP)—German authorities, convinced that the raiding pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was a victim of British mustard gas in yesterday's battle with three cruisers, tonight said they would invite a neutral commission to substantiate the charge that gas was used.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Dec. 14 (AP)—The German liner Columbus, fueled and provisioned for a fifty-day voyage, slipped out to sea today apparently attempting to dodge British warships on the high seas and run the Allied blockade to Germany.

A rich war prize if captured at sea, the 32,581-ton liner had been in Vera Cruz since Sept. 4, the day after Britain declared war.

Efforts to keep her departure secret were made because of British warships patrolling Gulf and Caribbean waters. The Columbus received clearing papers for Oslo, Norway, yesterday. Before dawn she shifted he anchorage and by 10 a. m. was outside Mexican waters.

There was some conjecture that she might head first for Tampico, Havana or some United States Gulf port, but it was believed generally she would try to reach Germany.

In addition there was talk that the vessel might be used to provision German submarines or other craft at sea. The Columbus had taken on more than 20,000 barrels of fuel oil in the past week.

A few hours in advance of the Columbus another German vessel, the 4,353-ton freighter Arauca, cleared Vera Cruz with a cargo of nitrates, crude oil, fiber and other commodities consigned to New Orleans. Departure of the two ships left only one German vessel, the 4,174-ton Hameln, of the numerous Nazi ships which took refuge in Vera Cruz when war started.

Labor Board Member Accused of Aiding in Boycott of Big Mill

By MAX BOYD

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—With records taken from the files of the National Labor Relations Board, counsel for a House investigating committee attempted today to show that Edwin S. Smith, a member of the board, had assisted a union in promoting a boycott against a huge Pennsylvania hosiery mill.

Edmund M. Toland, attorney for the committee investigating operations of the Wagner act, brought the subject up while questioning an aide, Roger Robb, about what he found in examining 60 file cabinets crammed with board documents.

Toland read a statement by Robb saying that the American Federation of Hosiery Workers had called a strike at the Berkshire Knitting Mills, Reading, Pa., in the fall of 1936, although the union's membership included less than 500 of the company's 6,000 workers.

Did the board's files show, the attorney asked, whether Smith had assisted the union in attempting to persuade customers of the mills to boycott them?

Robb said he had found correspondence between Smith and John Edelman, an officer of the union,

British Cruiser Cumberland Joins Guard over the Admiral Graf Spee

Montevideo, Dec. 14 (AP)—British diplomatic sources tonight indicated that the 10,000-ton British Cruiser Cumberland, mounting 8 eight - inch guns, had been added to the guard over the German raider Admiral Graf Spee here.

The same sources also said it was "very likely" that the 37,000-ton battleship Renown and the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal would speed here from Capetown, South Africa.

Should these two large warships arrive, it was taken for granted in Montevideo they would "stare down" the 10,000-ton Admiral Graf Spee and make its chances for escape so tenuous that she probably would choose indefinite internment in Montevideo.

These developments were made known after the Admiral Graf Spee had surrendered sixty- two British seamen taken from nine merchantmen during weeks of raiding shipping lanes.

The seamen, who had huddled helplesly in the bowels of the battleship while her German crew fought for fourteen hours yesterday, were turned loose at 6:45 p. m., (E. S. T.)

With the Finnish army on the eastern Karelian front, Dec. 14. (AP)—Several battalions of fierce fighting Finns clung stubbornly today to their positions on the Taipale river near Lake Ladoga in the face of heavy artillery fire.

For more than a week they have been holding out against the Russians, wrighting a new chapter of Finland's struggle for independence.

Today I stood in a first line Finnish trench and watched with a group of Finnish soldiers as Soviet artillery sent shell after shell screaming across the winding stream into a forest about half a mile away.

When the day was over the Russians had blackened the snow for acres and blasted the woods around—but the Finns still were holding the river positions.

Reds Forced Back

(In another southeastern section of their country, the Finns announced officially today they had turned the tide of the Russian invasion, forcing the Red army into retreat and recapturing an extensive area around Tolvajarvi, which is forty miles west of the eastern frontier and the same distance north of Lake Ladoga. In the north the Russians, penetrating the Finnish nickel mining district, neared the blazing town of Salmijarvi while the Finns retreated in orderly fashion, burning towns and rural buildings behind them.)

Acres and acres of stately Pine and Spruce trees, agleam with winter's frost, have been cut down in this Taipale river area by tons of three-inch, six-inch and eight-inch Russian shells.

But since the attack began in this sector Dec. 6 the Finns haven't yielded an inch.

They have nipped a dozen attempts by the Russians to throw a pontoon bridge across the river.

Two Movie Theaters Bombed in England

Birmingham, England, Dec. 14. (AP)—Bombs exploded in two movie theaters tonight several hours after a Birmingham court had pronounced the first death sentences in the campaign of terror by the anti-British Irish Republican army.

The flash-type bombs caused only a slight damage, however, and no one was injured.

Peter Barnes, 32, and James Richards, 29, were sentenced to death for a bombing on August 25. Richards cried "God bless Ireland and God bless the men who fought and died for her," as the court passed sentence.

Cruiser Cumberland Arrives and Renown Is Expected Soon; Exeter Wounded in Port

By HAROLD K. MILKS

Montivideo, Dec. 14 (AP) — The shell-battered Nazi pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, playing a dangerous game of cat and mouse with a gathering British battle-fleet, tonight won Uruguayan permission to remain in this neutral port until she can repair the damage suffered in the war's first great sea fight.

The Uruguayan foreign minister, Alberto Guani, tonight announced that, "in accordance with the Uruguayan law and international law," the Graf Spee could stay in Montevideo harbor, on request of the German government pending repairs.

Time Limit Nearly Up

The announcement was made shortly before the twenty-four-hour time limit, normally permitted for the stay of a belligerent ship, would have expired at midnight, Uruguayan time, or 10:30 p. m., E.S.T.

Guani said the German captain would be given sufficient time to make his warcraft seaworthy.

Close inspection of the crippled ship indicated the need of extensive repairs.

Meanwhile, the British cruiser Exeter, damaged and forced out of the battle which drove the Admiral Graf Spee to refuge here last night, was approaching the Argentine naval base at Puerto Belgrano, seeking to drydock for repairs. One hundred hospital beds were prepared there for her wounded.

Safe for the Present

The Uruguayan decision meant that the Graf Spee, still at anchor in the bay with her thirty-six dead and sixty wounded on board, need not immediately attempt a suicidal

Nazis Confident Graf Spee Will Be Able To Get Away

Pocket Battleship Hailed as Victor in Clash with British

Berlin, Dec. 14 (AP)—Nazi Germany hailed the Admiral Graf Spee tonight as the heroic victor in the war's first great naval battle and cherished hopes the crippled pocket-battleship might yet fight her way to sea from her Montevideo refuge.

At the same time, charges that mustard gas shells from British cruisers accounted for the Graf Spee's thirty-six dead and sixty wounded became somewhat muffled. Authorities declined to give the charges official backing, after they had been made by D.N.B., the Nazi news agency. Officially, it was stated that no official information about the use of gas had been received and that reports to that end had come from "foreign sources." (They were vigorously denied in London.)

Germans Highly Elated

Loud ejaculations of "what do you think of that?" were heard everywhere as the newspapers exulted over the Graf Spee's "heroic action" in "fighting down three British cruisers. The action off Uruguay was described as the second German sea victory in a few days—the first, the successful return home of the great liner Bremen from Murmansk after an encounter with a British submarine.

The extent of damage to the Graf Spee remained undisclosed, the high command, in a communique,

U. S. Seeks Facts About Battle Off Uruguayan Coast

Officials Interested in Question of Possible Violations

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—The administration sought today all the information it could get on the British-German naval engagement off the shores of Uruguay to determine whether the battle was a violation of the western hemisphere neutrality zone.

If the sea fight is regarded as such a violation, consultations will be held with the other American republics to decide upon common action.

Edwin C. Wilson, American minister to Uruguay, telephoned the state department from Montevideo that the first engagement between the German pocket battleship and the three British cruisers was reported to have taken place 200 miles off shore.

A position 200 miles off Uruguay would be within the neutrality area.

The second and third engagements, Mr. Wilson reported, "took place not very far off the Uruguayan coast, outside territorial waters, but some reports say about twelve sea miles. I do not know whether that is exact or not. The firing could be heard from the shore."

Officials were interested in unconfirmed reports that two British merchantmen were sunk at the beginning of the engagement.

It is not believed that protests will be made to the belligerents by this government as a result of the naval battle unless there is evidence that the engagement endangered shipping of the American nations or American cargoes.

If merchant ships were sunk inside the neutrality zone, however, the matter assumes a graver aspect.

British Cruiser Cumberland Joins Guard over the Admiral Graf Spee

Montevideo, Dec. 14 (AP)—British diplomatic sources tonight indicated that the 10,000-ton British Cruiser Cumberland, mounting 8 eight - inch guns, had been added to the guard over the German raider Admiral Graf Spee here.

The same sources also said it was "very likely" that the 37,000-ton battleship Renown and the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal would speed here from Capetown, South Africa.

Should these two large warships arrive, it was taken for granted in Montevideo they would "stare down" the 10,000-ton Admiral Graf Spee and make its chances for escape so tenuous that she probably would choose indefinite internment in Montevideo.

These developments were made known after the Admiral Graf Spee had surrendered sixty- two British seamen taken from nine merchantmen during weeks of raiding shipping lanes.

The seamen, who had huddled helplesly in the bowels of the battleship while her German crew fought for fourteen hours yesterday, were turned loose at 6:45 p. m., (E. S. T.)

Alibi Offered To Free Wyatt from Dynamite Charge

Dallas, Dec. 14 (AP)—A former student of E. Ross Wyatt, 36, testified today the one-time school superintendent was 250 miles from Dallas a few hours before the state charges he dynamited the home of Miss Mary Jo Miller, 26, because she rejected his attentions.

Miss Thelma Powell, 24, said Wyatt stopped at a Newton, Tex., cafe where she worked about 5 p. m. on July 25, 1938. State witnesses had testified they saw him between 9 and 10 p. m., that day near the house which was bombed at 1:20 a. m. July 26.

Miss Powell denied under cross-examination that she "kept company" with Wyatt while she was a student at Brookeland, Tex., but said she went with him for a year beginning in 1933, knowing he was a married man.

Miss Miller had testified that Wyatt's wife had become alarmed over his behavior.

"She told me not to get the idea that Wyatt thought anything about me," the pretty school teacher said. "She told me that he had been going with Thelma Powell and other high school girls."

Earlier, Mrs. J. J. Huffman of Hemphill, Tex., and Mrs. Arch Wyatt of San Augustine, the latter a sister-in-law, said Wyatt was helping them with the family wash at Hemphill on March 10, 1938 from 10 a. m., to 3 p. m., the date the state charges he prepared a dynamite bomb.

Introduced as evidence was a suitcase—a Christmas gift from Miss Miller to Wyatt four years ago—which state chemist J. H. Arnett said apparently had been used as a container for dynamite.

Unprovoked War

ia: Switzerland, China and Bulgaria.

But in spite of abstentions, everyone but Soviet Russia seemed to be pleased.

Latin American delegates enjoyed prestige because they took the initiative in the matter .

Great Britain, which throughout the debate never appeared enthusiastic about expelling Russian, nevertheless was for helping the Finns and believed the action would please neutrals, particularly the United States.

The Finns were delighted "so far," but pointed out that material help was more important to them than league resolutions.

Neutrals Are Pleased

European neutrals were pleased, although most of them were too frightened to back the league ouster themselves and warily made it clear they were entering no "blocs" against anyone.

German observers and German newsmen even were satisfied, they said, "for Russia will work with us now, perhaps."

Italians, too, liked it, although they still have not forgiven the league for imposing economic penalties against them at the time of the 1935 invasion of Ethiopia.

Disagreeable features of the action, however, were noted unofficially in league quarters where it was remembered that the Soviet has been contributing about $500,000, or about eleven per cent, of the annual league budget.

Britain's general lack of burning enthusiasm for the ouster was attributed to her consciousness that the nation of 180,000,000 population against whom she acted borders India. France, too, remembered that this nation of huge manpower is close to part of her own colonial possessions.

Expelled From League

The text of the Council's resolution said that body associated itself with the Assembly in condemnation of the Soviet for its invasion of Finland, and therefore, under Article 16 of the Covenant, "finds that by its act the U. S. S. R. has placed itself outside the League of Nations."

"It follows that the U. S. S. R. no longer is a member of the league."

This step left the league, still surprised by the sudden upsurge of a wartime vigor in its halls and corridors, faced with the task of setting up a clearing house to see that league members get plenty of munitions to Finland.

The Assembly resolution empowered the league's staff of technical experts to co-ordinate efforts to help the little league member. One of their tasks, for example, may be to see that the ammunition sent by one league member fits the guns sent by another.

Before the Assembly voted, the league was informed by Britain's representative, R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, that England would give "the best assistance in their power to Finland," despite other heavy wartime burdens.

Sailor Robbed of Medal for Bravery

Pittsburgh, Dec. 14. (AP)—Sherman Worstell, 24-year-old sailor of Uniontown, reported today the theft of a medal citing him for bravery during the sinking of the American patrol ship Panay on the Yangtze river in China two years ago.

Worstell, now a quartermaster on the Capac at Baltimore, said the medal was in a pocketbook taken from him in a bus station.

He came here to enter the Marine hospital for an operation made necessary from injuries inflicted when Japanese bombs struck the Panay.

Thousands Invade Atlanta for Opening of "Gone with the Wind"

Screen Stars among Notables on Hand for Premiere

By LEWIS HAWKINS

Atlanta, Dec. 14 (AP)—One hundred thousand to the mile, film-frantic Atlanta whooped a merry welcome today to movie folk come to town to start "Gone with the Wind" down that long box-office trail.

Joe, Jane and little Johnny fan swarmed sidewalks, steps, lawns, curbstones, hung out of windows to form such a crowd as Atlanta had never seen—and the stars had never seen.

They stood for as much as three hours under bright but cold skies, spoofed the police, the reporters and each other, finally caught glimpses of Clark Gable and the rest of the dazed visitors paraded from airport to hotel.

Safely past this first and biggest crowd-handling problem, Police Chief M. A. Hornsby looked witn a bit more confidence toward the big finale of Friday night's premiere, said earnestly:

Huge Crowd Turns Out

"There were 250,000 to 300,000 people (Atlanta's Metropolitan population is about 435,000) along the three downtown miles of that parade. It's like nothing we've ever had before but we're mighty proud of the way they acted."

Mayor William B. Hartsfield took over the introducing job in front of a hotel before a massed throng that blocked famed Peachtree street for three blocks, overflowed into Ponce de Leon for two blocks.

Swiftly stepped before the microphone cast members Evelyn Keyes—Suellen O'Hara, Ann Rutherford—Careen O'Hara, Laura Hope Crews—Aunt Pittypat (still flustered by a trainwreck en route here, and her without her smelling salts), Ona Munson—Belle Wattling, Olivia DeHaviland—Melanie Wilkes, Vivian Leigh—Scarlett O'Hara, lastly and to the loudest yells, Clark Gable—Rhett Butler.

Stars Reach Hotel

With the flattery still flying fast—and with an unusually authentic ring—the stars were whisked into the hotel.

After that came a huge charity ball staged by the Junior League amid yards of bunting, miles of smilax, hundreds of Confederate flags, acres of hoopskirts and ante bellum atmosphere from floor to roof of the city's auditorium.

Through all this hullabaloo at least one person sat quietly at home with the radio turned on—this was recently ailing Margaret Mitchell, the five-foot housewife who started all this writing that book.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The fact that the German pocket battleship which last night was licking her wounds in Montevideo harbor after the first real sea fight of the European war, has been identified as the Admiral Graf Spee makes it somewhat difficult to say just what effect the battle will have on the Franco-British effort to choke Germany into submission by a sea blockade.

There had been no previous intimation that the Graf Spee was at sea, roving the flanks of the Allies' trans-Atlantic supply lines, like her sister ships, the Deutschland and the Admiral Scheer. Despite the brilliant feat of a trio of British cruisers in driving their powerful antagonist to refuge in a neutral harbor, the other two Nazi eleven-inch gunners remain to be reckoned with.

Problem for British

There can be no let-up in British naval prowling in the far North and South Atlantic in search of the Graf Spee's companions unless they also are driven off the seas or sunk. Allied naval power cannot be concentrated on its main job, keeping the bottlenecks of the sea highways free of German submarines, mines and aircraft, while any of the trio of Nazi pocket battleships is unaccounted for.

Yet the thrilling story of the hounding of the Graf Spee to her refuge in Montevideo came at a time when it was most needed by the Allies to bolster public morale and restore British naval prestige. A long succession of successful German raids to sink or damage British naval craft, a mounting toll of merchant shipping losses, and the daring successes of Nazi sailors in eluding Allied patrol lines with such ships as the $20,000,000 liner Bremen all were affecting public opinion at home and abroad.

Against that, the battle off Montevideo sent a new thrill of confidence through Britain and France. It destroye dat a blow the "pocket battleship" myth, built up laboriously by Nazi propagandists.

Damage to the Exeter or casualties aboard her were a small price for the British to pay for the results obtained.

Accounts of the battle confirm the belief that the British navy has spread a wide net in far waters to deal with the German eleven-inch gun menaces. The Graf Spee risked attack on a merchant vessel convoyed by a single light cruiser. Before she could break off and make away, two more British warships were upon her.

By now British heavy ships of unchallengable superiority must be foaming toward Montevideo to take over the duty of seeing that the Nazi battle craft does not escape to sea again if not interned. Her chances of figuring again in this war seem slim.

Yet the object lesson for other British or French light naval craft which may sight the Graf Spee's sister ships may be the most important aspect of the battle. The Achilles and the Ajax, proved that these most powerful Nazi naval units are vulnerable, particularly when in retreat with only half or less of their gun power available for fire astern.

It is a lesson every Allied light ship commander will take to heart if he sights the Deutschland or Scheer.

quently and that it was hard to distinguish between them.

The elation of British public, officials and press over "bottling up" of the Graf Spee overshadowed the loss of 120 men aboard the 1,375-ton British destroyer Duchess, which was sunk yesterday in a collision with another and unidentified warship. Only one officer and 22 men were saved.

The 202-ton British minesweeper William Hallett struck a mine today and sank with the loss of all but one of her crew of nine.

The 7,400-ton British tanker San Alberto was damaged "by enemy action" off the southwest English coast.

The loss of life aboard the Duchess was outranked only by the 786 men killed aboard the sunken battleship Royal Oak at Scapa Flow, the 578 lost when the aircraft carrier Courageous was sunk and the 265 killed in the sinking of the armed merchantman Rawalpindi. The William Hallet was the sixth British minesweeper to be sunk.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, speaking in the House of Commons, called the feat of the two six-inch gun cruisers Achilles and Ajax in driving the Graf Spee to shelter a "gallant action," especially since the feat was accomplished after the more powerful British cruiser Exeter had been forced out of action.

Both the prime minister and the admiralty indignantly denied Nazi charges that the British cruisers had used mustard gas shells.

Neither Chamberlain nor other officials, however, gave any information as to British casualties in the battle.

The prime minister listed total British casualties for the first three months of the war as 2,100 as compared with 12,500 for the first two months of the World War.

Chamberlain explained the sinking of the Duchess as "not a loss in action but an accident which one must expect as almost inevitable under conditions of darkness" prevailing on blacked-out sealanes.

is working with surprising success, a recent survey of 800 graduates of the past four years showing eighty-five per cent of them employed and no "returns for repairs" to the factory.

The bureau originally had planned to guarantee its graduate "products" on a replacement basis, so that employers could send them back to the campus for more seasoning, if needed.

Cost $7,000 a Student

Bracken explained that it cost about $7,000 for a college to turn out a finished product, and that it was up to the college to "service" the product—"just as no manufacturer would think of selling a $7,000 airplane or automobile without complete servicing to the client," he said.

"But in two years, we have found out that frequently the product needs less servicing than the client. In other words, we've had no returns from the employers, but some of our graduates come back for a post-graduate course in how to get ahead faster."

Bracken said 167 Fordham grads attended this year's "man-marketing clinic," conducted by Sidney Edlund, New York merchandising consultant, who fires such questions as these at the young jobholders:

"Do you know what you can do? Does the boss know you can do that? Have you tried to discover and develop your hidden assets?"

Want to Start High

The biggest trouble with the young-man-with-a-diploma, Bracken said, is that he is unwilling to serve an interneship.

"They won't start in at less than $35 a week. That's rock bottom. A boy may want to be a hotel man, but he'll turn up his nose at taking a job as a $15-a-week busboy."

Fordham's one-year "career course," he said, points the students toward the job they are going to get, with this slogan:

"Sell a service. Don't just look for a job."

time ago, had declined to consider heading a proposed Red Cross committee on European war relief. Davis said Hoover told him that "while he was ready to cooperate and assist the Red Cross, he did not feel justified in heading a committee."

Denies Published Report

Hoover, during his interview in New York, had said there was "not a word of truth" in a published report that he declined a Roosevelt invitation to take charge of all public relief activities in the United States because he wished to participate in the 1940 presidential campaign and did not desire to become identified with the New Deal.

Both relief organizations said they had agreed to consult and cooperate with each other. Referring to the discussion of past events, Hoover's secretary said that "all this is dead stuff" and that the "job before us now is to aid people in distress."

Davis said that "Mr. Hoover and I have agreed to confer from time to time with a view to avoiding duplication, waste and confusion."

caused some casualties among the Finnis htroops.

Five Troopers Killed

One shell early this morning struck a farmhouse where five troopers were billetted. All were killed.

Perhaps a dozen farm buildings were wrecked and a considerable number of horses and cattle were killed by the shelling this morning.

The road over which I approached the front line trench was blocked in many places by felled trees and rutted by shell holes.

But despite almost constant shelling in this sector by the Russians today, the Finns didn't fire an answering shot.

"We don't shoot unless we have to," one officer said. "The Russians are just spoiling our forest with their kind of shooting."

Col. Toivo Saparanta, whom I encountered on today's tour, said the Russians were using ten times as many shells as the Finns.

I saw many unexploded Russian shells.

Eye Witnesses

his ship was sunk by the Graf Spee off the coast of Africa.

The prisoners were awakened at six in the morning, he said, by cannonading.

"We knew what that sound meant," he said, "and we knew it was serious when the guards of our quarters locked and barred the doors and left to go to their battle stations.

"As the battle progressed most of us realized a British victory might mean our deaths, but nevertheless there was singing and cheering for the attackers.

"Altogether, we counted seventeen hits by British shells on the Graf Spee in the various encounters that day.

Shave under Shell Fire

"Probably you won't believe this, but several men who were shaving when the cannonading began went on and finished the job."

"I had a sore throat and was gargling medicine when we had a British visitor—a piece of a shell which had exploded outside tore its way into our quarters without hurting anyone.

"I swallowed all the medicine.

"Our confinement area was directly under one of the eleven-inch turrets. Every time a shot was fired it seemed as if the whole roof had collapsed over us.

"The grandest news we ever had was when an officer came down last night and told us, 'gentlemen, the war is over for you. We just entered the Montevideo harbor.'"

(One of the conditions on which the prisoners were released was that they should not talk about what happened on the Graf Spee.)

The Doric Star officer, describing his experiences with the German crew, said most of them were young and "I don't think they ever considered the possibility of having to fight another warship. They seemed to think their only job was sinking freighters. That probably is one reason why light cruisers were able to damage the Graf Spee and force her to flee."

The officer said he expected to return again to the sea—and that he had a son who probably would do likewise.

Captain Patrick G. G. Dove of the Tanker Africa Shell, sunk on Oct. 7 by the Graf Spee in a position which Dove said was within Portuguese waters, described how the commander of the Graf Spee called him to the bridge just before the prisoners were released and told him:

"The cruisers made a gallant fight. When people fight like that personal enmity is lost."

Dove said the first officer of the pocket battleship then wished him good luck, and added:

"Those British are hard."

Another in the group of officers given their freedom said that officers of the Graf Spee told him:

"You fellows have been prisoners for a long time—now it looks as if it is our time."

British Ship Sinks

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—The British steamer Stanwood, 4,158 tons, was disclosed tonight to have sunk Sunday in Falmouth harbor while attempts were being made to extinguish a fire in her hold. Two were killed.

dash through the reinforced British warship patrol outside the harbor.

Shortly after the crippled Nazi floating fortress had surrendered sixty-two British seaman taken from the nine raided merchantmen, British diplomatic authorities indicated that the 10,000-ton British cruiser Cumberland had joined the "death watch" flotilla outside the harbor.

The same sources also said that it was very likely the great battle cruiser Renown and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal would rush here from South African waters.

Cumberland Speedy Ship

The Cumberland mounts eight eight-inch guns and has a speed of 31.5 knots.

Already, the light cruisers Ajax and Achilles, which drove the Graf Spee into this harbor after a day-long battle yesterday, were on watch, along with the crippled British cruiser Exeter.

Reports from the Ajax and Archilles said that they had no dead and only a few wounded. There were unconfirmed reports, however, of some deal aboard the Exeter.

The Renown, last reported on guard duty off Capetown with the Ark Royal for other German pocket battleship raiders, has six fifteen-inch guns.

The seamen surrendered today by the Graf Spee had huddled together in the brig of the pocket battleship while yesterday's battle raged for hours above thmeir heads.

They were released at 6:45 p. m. (4:15 p. m. E.S.T.)

Under the direction of British legation officials, a tugboat pulled alongside the pocket battleship and the seaman emerged from their prison.

They clambered happily into the tug for the trip ashore.

Headed by five merchant captains, the men mounted the same gangplank over which Captain Hans Langsdorff of the Graf Spee a half hour earlier had led half a dozen swartly clad Nazi officers on his way to make a formal call in port.

Boys Among Prisoners

The prisoners ranged in age from a man seventy-two years old to youths who appeared less than fifteen years.

Most of them carried shapeless bags holding their scantly belongings. Some clung tightly to lifeboats salvaged from their old ships.

Without exception they showed the effects of a terrible day spent in close confinement in the Graf Spee while the battleship was pounded by British shells and shaken by the recoil of its own eleven-inch guns.

The imprisoned captains were identified as Brown of the S. S. Huntsman, Pottinger of the S. S. Ashlea, Edwards of the S. S. Trevanion, Stubbs of the S. S. Doric Star and William Dore of the Africa Shell. All these ships were sunk in the vicinity of the African coast.

Warned Against Talking

British officials, conducting the prisoners to their consulate, continually warned the men against talking—in violation of pledges—about what happened on the Graf Spee.

A close inspection today of the crippled warship revealed graphically the effectiveness of the British guns.

Three holes, apparently made by six-inch shells, gaped on the starboard waterline, forward. A huge hole, a yard and a half in diameter, was blasted through the hull into the ship's sleeping quarters on the port side, forward.

Plates bent outwards indicated the effect of what must have been a severe explosion within the ship.

Another gap, large enough for several men to enter together, could be seen in the fighting tower. The heavy shell apparently came over the stern during the chase.

Guntower Overturned

The six-inch portside guntower was overturned.

The Graf Spee lay hight out of the water, possibly confirming the contention of the British minister that she was forced to run for shelter because her fuel was giving out.

Docks and portside streets were crowded all day with great crowds, gazing at the pocket battleship swinging at its distant anchorage.

Plain pine caskets were heaped in a grim pile on the dock, preparatory to be taken aboard the Graf Spee for her dead.

Technically the crippled ship had only until midnight (10:30 p. m. E. S. T.) to leave, get extension of her stay or submit to internement for the rest of the war.

(In Washington Secretary Hull announced receipt of information that the Uruguayan government already had allowed the Admiral Graf Spee a forty-eight hour stay and that it might be extended if her commander requests it on grounds that repairs must be made.

(Reports reaching Washington also indicated that Uruguay did not intend to apply a distinction, made by the United States, between repairs made necessary by gunfire and repairs resulting from other causes such as storm.)

British Ships Ready

Keeping constant vigil in the event the Admiral Graf Spee elects to make a run for it, were the Achilles and Ajax, also damaged but ready to renew the fight which sent the Nazi raider scurrying to the safety of Montevideo shortly before last midnight, and other unspecified warships.

They were joined during the day by the Exeter, which was blasted out of the fight after four hours of cannonading. She would be of little help to her fellow ships, however, because of her badly damaged condition. Reports circulated that the Exeter had many dead and wounded aboard, but officials maintained silence on this score.

However, the British Admiralty announced in London that naval forces watching the Admiral Graf Spee "have been strongly reinforced." There were no details.

In addition to her thirty-six dead, the Admiral Graf Spee had sixty wounded sailors. Her crew normally numbers 926. Her captain was among the injured with a minor arm wound.

Otto Langman, German minister to Uruguay, visited the vessel and upon his return to shore charged the crewmen were suffering from lung and eye injuries caused by gas shells fired by the British.

But both the British Admiralty and Prime Minister Chamberlain, in London, denied as "entirely without foundation" these charges.

One of two seriously injured Nazi crewmen removed from the ship appeared to have lost his sight from wounds.

The Formose was proceeding along the Brazilian coast of Rio Grande do Sul yesterday, they related, when they sighted the fleet Nazi raider.

"The Formose headed full speed for Uruguayan territorial waters. The merchantman wallowed along at her top speed of 12 knots while the German warship quickly closed in," said one calmer passenger.

"It was a race against time for British cruisers were known to be nearby.

"Then the Ajax, first of the British cruisers to join the battle, came into sight and began chasing the Admiral Graf Spee.

"The Ajax sent out a call to the Achilles and the Exeter.

Lose Sight of Battle

"Next came the Exeter, which got the worst of the Nazi vessel's fight against the three British ships.

"The Admiral Graf Spee took to her heels and we on the Formose, lost sight of the running battle.

But as dusk fell over the south Atlantic those aboard the Formose again became eyewitnesses to the conflict as their ship neared the Uruguayan coast.

The German vessel was sighted about 8 P. M., running away, with the cruisers Ajax and Achilles in pursuit, the Exeter having been forced to drop out.

The Formose's passengers said the firing continued for about an hour, then subsided, only to be renewed for another hour.

The thunder of battle halted abruptly when the warships found themselves well within Uruguayan territorial waters.

The German minister said the masters of six British merchantmen sunk by the raider were aboard her. He did not give their names. There also were reports that the Admiral Graf Spee had sunk one or two British vessels only a few hours before yesterday's battle. The German high command announced in Berlin that the ship was sinking the British merchantmen Tairo and Streons Hall when she encountered the British cruisers.

(The presence of the six British masters aboard the ship raised speculation in London that their vessels were the Africa Shell, sunk off Portuguese East Africa, Nov 15; the Trevanion, missing and long overdue; the Newton Beech, unheard from since the end of September; the Huntsman, long overdue; the Tanker Doric Star, reported sunk by a raider Dec. 4 in the South Atlantic, and the Ashlea, unreported since Sept. 28)

From her appearance, it seemed likely the Graf Spee would be laid up for some time for repairs. She had gaping holes in her sides and her superstructure was badly damaged. The tail and nose of a seaplane aboard had been shot away.

(A daring attempt by the ship to run the gauntlet of British cruisers outside the harbor was forecast in an NBC broadcast from Montevideo. The announcer said her crew was rushing repairs and that desperate efforts were being made to get her in readiness to leave before she was interned for the duration of the war.)

Ringside spectators of the war's first real sea battle meanwhile reached the safety of Montevideo aboard the 9,975-ton French merchant ship Formose and told graphic accounts of the spectacular fight deep in the American neutrality zone.

The passengers spent all yesterday wearing lifeboats and watching the encounter from the decks of the Formose, intended prey of the Admiral Fraf Spee.

Somerset Leaders Backing Radcliffe

Crisfield, Md., Dec. 14 (AP)—Somerset county Democratic leaders, whose paths have sometimes differed, announced complete support today of U. S. Senator George L. Radcliff's quest for renomination.

The coalition is in recognition of Radcliffe's efforts to aid watermen, said Wallace M. Quinn, of Crisfield.

Opposing Radcliffe in the primary is Howard Bruce, Democratic national committeeman, and major supporter of Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor.

The Somerset coalition brings together supporters of Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, against O'Conor in the gubernatorial campaign, and factions that favored O'Conor.

The alignment was announced after a series of meetings among district leaders, young Democratic groups, and older Democratic organizations.

in which Edelman advised that a boycott would be undertaken.

Smith, the witness said, transmitted the information he had received from Edelman to Louis Kirstein, an officer of Filene's department in Boston. Smith once was employment manager for Filene's.

Robb testified that no charges against the hosiery company had been filed with the labor board at the time of the correspondence.

But, he continued, Benedict T. Wolf, former secretary of the board, wrote to Major Stanley Root, regional board director at Philadelphia, inquiring whether there was anything in the situation that would provide a basis for filing unfair labor practice charges.

"Is there anything in the files," Toland asked, "to show that Smith, Witt (Nathan Witt, now secretary of the board but then assistant general counsel) or others conferred with union attorneys as to the form of the charges?"

"There is in the files material that shows that is true," Robb replied.

Development of this phase of the case was halted, until tomorrow, by the committee's adjournment.

The testimony of young Robb climaxed a day of rapid-fire testimony during which John P. Frey, head of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, advocated federal legislation forbidding international unions or federations of unions to make contributions to a political party.

Declaring nothing was more destructive to the welfare of labor and to the free operation of democracy than to have a union collecting money for partisan political purposes, Frey added that John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers had provided "over $600,000" for the Democratic party and had undertaken to raise $800,000 for political purposes in 1940.

A year after the mine workers had put up the $600,000, the AFL official said, President Roosevelt failed to give Lewis "something he though he should have," and "Mr. Lewis publicly reproached him for failing to meet the—er—obligation."

Frey renewed contentions that the board's power to designate the proper units for collective bargaining is too great, "and in the wrong" hands.

French Warship To Watch Graf

Buenos Aires, Dec. 14 (AP)—Official Argentine sources said today they "understood" that the 26,500-ton French battleship Dunkerque was steaming toward the river Platte to join the British warship watch there over the Admiral Graf Spee.

The Dunkerque is rated by naval experts as one of the five British and French warships capable of dealing alone with the German pocket battleship.

Carrying eight thirteen-inch guns as main armament, she has a speed of 29.5 knots and is protected by fourteen-inch armor.

saying merely that she had received "some hits" after severely damaging her three antagonists. Before the battle, the communique said, the Graf Spee sank the British merchantman Tairo, 7,983 tons and the Streonshall, 3,895 tons.

Military sources described the battle as part of the Nazi naval activity begun two weeks ago. Since then, these sources said, "heavy units" have ventured far into the Atlantic and into the northern part of the North Sea.

Authorized sources also denied that the Graf Spee would be interned indefinitely in Montevideo. It was evident that there was hope the Graf Spee might yet escape because of the power of her guns.

In another announcement, the high command said an unidentified German light cruiser had been damaged slightly by an underwater explosion. (The British admiralty earlier had announced the torpedoing of a German cruiser and the sinking of a U-boat by the same submarine which failed to catch the Bremen). The German announcement said the cruiser had reached home port.

Alibi Offered To Free Wyatt from Dynamite Charge

Dallas, Dec. 14 (AP)—A former student of E. Ross Wyatt, 36, testified today the one-time school superintendent was 250 miles from Dallas a few hours before the state charges he dynamited the home of Miss Mary Jo Miller, 26, because she rejected his attentions.

Miss Thelma Powell, 24, said Wyatt stopped at a Newton, Tex., cafe where she worked about 5 p. m. on July 25, 1938. State witnesses had testified they saw him between 9 and 10 p. m., that day near the house which was bombed at 1:20 a. m. July 26.

Miss Powell denied under cross-examination that she "kept company" with Wyatt while she was a student at Brookeland, Tex., but said she went with him for a year beginning in 1933, knowing he was a married man.

Miss Miller had testified that Wyatt's wife had become alarmed over his behavior.

"She told me not to get the idea that Wyatt thought anything about me," the pretty school teacher said. "She told me that he had been going with Thelma Powell and other high school girls."

Earlier, Mrs. J. J. Huffman of Hemphill, Tex., and Mrs. Arch Wyatt of San Augustine, the latter a sister-in-law, said Wyatt was helping them with the family wash at Hemphill on March 10, 1938 from 10 a. m., to 3 p. m., the date the state charges he prepared a dynamite bomb.

Introduced as evidence was a suitcase—a Christmas gift from Miss Miller to Wyatt four years ago—which state chemist J. H. Arnett said apparently had been used as a container for dynamite.

Unprovoked War

ia; Switzerland, China and Bulgaria.

But in spite of abstentions, everyone but Soviet Russia seemed to be pleased.

Latin American delegates enjoyed prestige because they took the initiative in the matter .

Great Britain, which throughout the debate never appeared enthusiastic about expelling Russian, nevertheless was for helping the Finns and believed the action would please neutrals, particularly the United States.

The Finns were delighted "so far," but pointed out that material help was more important to them than league resolutions.

Neutrals Are Pleased

European neutrals were pleased, although most of them were too frightened to back the league ouster themselves and warily made it clear they were entering no "blocs" against anyone.

German observers and German newsmen even were satisfied, they said, "for Russia will work with us now, perhaps."

Italians, too, liked it, although they still have not forgiven the league for imposing economic penalties against them at the time of the 1935 invasion of Ethiopia.

Disagreeable features of the action, however, were noted unofficially in league quarters where it was remembered that the Soviet has been contributing about $500,000, or about eleven per cent, of the annual league budget.

Britain's general lack of burning enthusiasm for the ouster was attributed to her consciousness that the nation of 180,000,000 population against whom she acted borders India. France, too, remembered that this nation of huge manpower is close to part of her own colonial possessions.

Expelled From League

The text of the Council's resolution said that body associated itself with the Assembly in condemnation of the Soviet for its invasion of Finland, and therefore, under Article 16 of the Covenant, "finds that by its act the U. S. S. R. has placed itself outside the League of Nations."

"It follows that the U. S. S. R. no longer is a member of the league."

This step left the league, still surprised by the sudden upsurge of a wartime vigor in its halls and corridors, faced with the task of setting up a clearing house to see that league members get plenty of munitions to Finland.

The Assembly resolution empowered the league's staff of technical experts to co-ordinate efforts to help the little league member. One of their tasks, for example, may be to see that the ammunition sent by one league member fits the guns sent by another.

Before the Assembly voted, the league was informed by Britain's representative, R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, that England would give "the best assistance in their power to Finland," despite other heavy wartime burdens.

Sailor Robbed of Medal for Bravery

Pittsburgh, Dec. 14. (AP)—Sherman Worstell, 24-year-old sailor of Uniontown, reported today the theft of a medal citing him for bravery during the sinking of the American patrol ship Panay on the Yangtze river in China two years ago.

Worstell, now a quartermaster on the Capac at Baltimore, said the medal was in a pocketbook taken from him in a bus station.

He came here to enter the Marine hospital for an operation made necessary from injuries inflicted when Japanese bombs struck the Panay.

Screen Stars among Notables on Hand for Premiere

By LEWIS HAWKINS

Atlanta, Dec. 14 (AP)—One hundred thousand to the mile, film-frantic Atlanta whooped a merry welcome today to movie folk come to town to start "Gone with the Wind" down that long box-office trail.

Joe, Jane and little Johnny fan swarmed sidewalks, steps, lawns, curbstones, hung out of windows to form such a crowd as Atlanta had never seen—and the stars had never seen.

They stood for as much as three hours under bright but cold skies, spoofed the police, the reporters and each other, finally caught glimpses of Clark Gable and the rest of the dazed visitors paraded from airport to hotel.

Safely past this first and biggest crowd-handling problem, Police Chief M. A. Hornsby looked with a bit more confidence toward the big finale of Friday night's premiere, said earnestly:

Huge Crowd Turns Out

"There were 250,000 to 300,000 people (Atlanta's Metropolitan population is about 435,000) along the three downtown miles of that parade. It's like nothing we've ever had before but we're mighty proud of the way they acted."

Mayor William B. Hartsfield took over the introducing job in front of a hotel before a massed throng that blocked famed Peachtree street for three blocks, overflowed into Ponce de Leon for two blocks.

Swiftly stepped before the microphone cast members Evelyn Keyes—Suellen O'Hara, Ann Rutherford—Careen O'Hara, Laura Hope Crews—Aunt Pittypat (still flustered by a trainwreck en route here, and her without her smelling salts), Ona Munson—Belle Wattling, Olivia DeHavilland—Melanie Wilkes, Vivian Leigh—Scarlett O'Hara, lastly and to the loudest yells, Clark Gable—Rhett Butler.

Stars Reach Hotel

With the flattery still flying fast—and with an unusually authentic ring—the stars were whisked into the hotel.

After that came a huge charity ball staged by the Junior League amid yards of bunting, miles of smilax, hundreds of Confederate flags, acres of hoopskirts and ante bellum atmosphere from floor to roof of the city's auditorium.

Through all this hullabaloo at least one person sat quietly at home with the radio turned on—this was recently ailing Margaret Mitchell, the five-foot housewife who started all this writing that book.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

Associated Press Staff Writer

The fact that the German pocket battleship which last night was licking her wounds in Montevideo harbor after the first real sea fight of the European war, has been identified as the Admiral Graf Spee makes it somewhat difficult to say just what effect the battle will have on the Franco-British effort to choke Germany into submission by a sea blockade.

There had been no previous intimation that the Graf Spee was at sea, roving the flanks of the Allies' trans-Atlantic supply lines, like her sister ships, the Deutschland and the Admiral Scheer. Despite the brilliant feat of a trio of British cruisers in driving their powerful antagonist to refuge in a neutral harbor, the other two Nazi eleven-inch gunners remain to be reckoned with.

Problem for British

There can be no let-up in British naval prowling in the far North and South Atlantic in search of the Graf Spee's companions unless they also are driven off the seas or sunk. Allied naval power cannot be concentrated on its main job, keeping the bottlenecks of the sea highways free of German submarines, mines and aircraft, while any of the trio of Nazi pocket battleships is unaccounted for.

Yet the thrilling story of the hounding of the Graf Spee to her refuge in Montevideo came at a time when it was most needed by the Allies to bolster public morale and restore British naval prestige. A long succession of successful German raids to sink or damage British naval craft, a mounting toll of merchant shipping losses, and the daring successes of Nazi sailors in eluding Allied patrol lines with such ships as the $20,000,000 liner Bremen all were affecting public opinion at home and abroad.

Against that, the battle off Montevideo sent a new thrill of confidence through Britain and France. It destroye dat a blow the "pocket battleship" myth, built up laboriously by Nazi propagandists.

Damage to the Exeter or casualties aboard her were a small price for the British to pay for the results obtained.

Accounts of the battle confirm the belief that the British navy has spread a wide net in far waters to deal with the German eleven-inch gun menaces. The Graf Spee risked attack on a merchant vessel convoyed by a single light cruiser. Before she could break off and make away, two more British warships were upon her.

By now British heavy ships of unchallengable superiority must be foaming toward Montevideo to take over the duty of seeing that the Nazi battle craft does not escape to sea again if not interned. Her chances of figuring again in this war seem slim.

Yet the object lesson for other British or French light naval craft which may sight the Graf Spee's sister ships may be the most important aspect of the battle. The Achilles and the Ajax, proved that these most powerful Nazi naval units are vulnerable, particularly when in retreat with only half or less of their gun power avaflable for fire astern.

It is a lesson every Allied light ship commander will take to heart if he sights the Deutschland or Scheer.

quently and that it was hard to distinguish between them.

The elation of British public, officials and press over "bottling up" of the Graf Spee overshadowed the loss of 120 men aboard the 1,375-ton British destroyer Duchess, which was sunk yesterday in a collision with another and unidentified warship. Only one officer and 22 men were saved.

The 202-ton British minesweeper William Hallett struck a mine today and sank with the loss of all but one of her crew of nine.

The 7,400-ton British tanker San Alberto was damaged "by enemy action" off the southwest English coast.

The loss of life aboard the Duchess was outranked only by the 786 men killed aboard the sunken battleship Royal Oak at Scapa Flow, the 578 lost when the aircraft carrier Courageous was sunk and the 265 killed in the sinking of the armed merchantman Rawalpindi. The William Hallet was the sixth British minesweeper to be sunk.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, speaking in the House of Commons, called the feat of the two six-inch gun cruisers Achilles and Ajax in driving the Graf Spee to shelter a "gallant action," especially since the feat was accomplished after the more powerful British cruiser Exeter had been forced out of action.

Both the prime minister and the admiralty indignantly denied Nazi charges that the British cruisers had used mustard gas shells.

Neither Chamberlain nor other officials, however, gave any information as to British casualties in the battle.

The prime minister listed total British casualties for the first three months of the war as 2,100 as compared with 12,500 for the first two months of the World War.

Chamberlain explained the sinking of the Duchess as "not a loss in action but an accident which one must expect as almost inevitable under conditions of darkness" prevailing on blacked-out sealanes.

is working with surprising success, a recent survey of 800 graduates of the past four years showing eighty-five per cent of them employed and no "returns for repairs" to the factory.

The bureau originally had planned to guarantee its graduate "products" on a replacement basis, so that employers could send them back to the campus for more seasoning, if needed.

Cost $7,000 a Student

Bracken explained that it cost about $7,000 for a college to turn out a finished product, and that it was up to the college to "service" the product—"just as no manufacturer would think of selling a $7,000 airplane or automobile without complete servicing to the client," he said.

"But in two years, we have found out that frequently the product needs less servicing than the client. In other words, we've had no returns from the employers, but some of our graduates come back for a post-graduate course in how to get ahead faster."

Bracken said 167 Fordham grads attended this year's "man-marketing clinic," conducted by Sidney Edlund, New York merchandising consultant, who fires such questions as these at the young jobholders:

"Do you know what you can do? Does the boss know you can do that? Have you tried to discover and develop your hidden assets?"

Want to Start High

The biggest trouble with the young-man-with-a-diploma, Bracken said, is that he is unwilling to serve an interneship.

"They won't start in at less than $35 a week. That's rock bottom. A boy may want to be a hotel man, but he'll turn up his nose at taking a job as a $15-a-week busboy."

Fordham's one-year "career course," he said, points the students toward the job they are going to get, with this slogan:

"Sell a service. Don't just look for a job."

British Tanker Damaged

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—The damaging of the British tanker San Alberto, 7,400 tons, "by enemy action" off the southwest coast of England was disclosed tonight by authorities. The extent and details of the damage were not given.

time ago, had declined to consider heading a proposed Red Cross committee on European war relief. Davis said Hoover told him that "while he was ready to cooperate and assist the Red Cross, he did not feel justified in heading a committee."

Denies Published Report

Hoover, during his interview in New York, had said there was "not a word of truth" in a published report that he declined a Roosevelt invitation to take charge of all public relief activities in the United States because he wished to participate in the 1940 presidential campaign and did not desire to become identified with the New Deal.

Both relief organizations said they had agreed to consult and cooperate with each other. Referring to the discussion of past events, Hoover's secretary said that "all this is dead stuff" and that the "job before us now is to aid people in distress."

Davis said that "Mr. Hoover and I have agreed to confer from time to time with a view to avoiding duplication, waste and confusion."

caused some casualties among the Finnis htroops.

Five Troopers Killed

One shell early this morning struck a farmhouse where five troopers were billetted. All were killed.

Perhaps a dozen farm buildings were wrecked and a considerable number of horses and cattle were killed by the shelling this morning.

The road over which I approached the front line trench was blocked in many places by felled trees and rutted by shell holes.

But despite almost constant shelling in this sector by the Russians today, the Finns didn't fire an answering shot.

"We don't shoot unless we have to," one officer said. "The Russians are just spoiling our forest with their kind of shooting."

Col. Toivo Saparanta, whom I encountered on today's tour, said the Russians were using ten times as many shells as the Finns.

I saw many unexploded Russian shells.

his ship was sunk by the Graf Spee off the coast of Africa.

The prisoners were awakened at six in the morning, he said, by cannonading.

"We knew what that sound meant," he said, "and we knew it was serious when the guards of our quarters locked and barred the doors and left to go to their battle stations.

"As the battle progressed most of us realized a British victory might mean our deaths, but nevertheless there was singing and cheering for the attackers.

"Altogether, we counted seventeen hits by British shells on the Graf Spee in the various encounters that day.

Shave under Shell Fire

"Probably you won't believe this, but several men who were shaving when the cannonading began went on and finished the job."

"I had a sore throat and was gargling medicine when we had a British visitor—a piece of a shell which had exploded outside tore its way into our quarters without hurting anyone.

"I swallowed all the medicine.

"Our confinement area was directly under one of the eleven-inch turrets. Every time a shot was fired it seemed as if the whole roof had collapsed over us.

"The grandest news we ever had was when an officer came down last night and told us, 'gentlemen, the war is over for you. We just entered the Montevideo harbor.'"

(One of the conditions on which the prisoners were released was that they should not talk about what happened on the Graf Spee.)

The Doric Star officer, describing his experiences with the German crew, said most of them were young and "I don't think they ever considered the possibility of having to fight another warship. They seemed to think their only job was sinking freighters. That probably is one reason why light cruisers were able to damage the Graf Spee and force her to flee."

The officer said he expected to return again to the sea—and that he had a son who probably would do likewise.

Captain Patrick G. G. Dove of the Tanker Africa Shell, sunk on Oct. 7 by the Graf Spee in a position which Dove said was within Portuguese waters, described how the commander of the Graf Spee called him to the bridge just before the prisoners were released and told him:

"The cruisers made a gallant fight. When people fight like that personal enmity is lost."

Dove said the first officer of the pocket battleship then wished him good luck, and added:

"Those British are hard."

Another in the group of officers given their freedom said that officers of the Graf Spee told him:

"You fellows have been prisoners for a long time—now it looks as if it is our time."

British Ship Sinks

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—The British steamer Stanwood, 4,158 tons, was disclosed tonight to have sunk Sunday in Falmouth harbor while attempts were being made to extinguish a fire in her hold. Two were killed.

Battered German Battleship Is Given Right To Remain in Port

dash through the reinforced British warship patrol outside the harbor.

Shortly after the crippled Nazi floating fortress had surrendered sixty-two British seaman taken from the nine raided merchantmen, British diplomatic authorities indicated that the 10,000-ton British cruiser Cumberland had joined the "death watch" flotilla outside the harbor.

The same sources also said that it was very likely the great battle cruiser Renown and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal would rush here from South African waters.

Cumberland Speedy Ship

The Cumberland mounts eight eight-inch guns and has a speed of 31.5 knots.

Already, the light cruisers Ajax and Achilles, which drove the Graf Spee into this harbor after a day-long battle yesterday, were on watch, along with the crippled British cruiser Exeter.

Reports from the Ajax and Archilles said that they had no dead and only a few wounded. There were unconfirmed reports, however, of some deal aboard the Exeter.

The Renown, last reported on guard duty off Capetown with the Ark Royal for other German pocket battleship raiders, has six fifteen-inch guns.

The seamen surrendered today by the Graf Spee had huddled together in the brig of the pocket battleship while yesterday's battle raged for hours above thmeir heads.

They were released at 6:45 p. m. (4:15 p. m. E.S.T.)

Under the direction of British legation officials, a tugboat pulled alongside the pocket battleship and the seaman emerged from their prison.

They clambered happily into the tug for the trip ashore.

Headed by five merchant captains, the men mounted the same gangplank over which Captain Hans Langsdorff of the Graf Spee a half hour earlier had led half a dozen swartly clad Nazi officers on his way to make a formal call in port.

Boys Among Prisoners

The prisoners ranged in age from a man seventy-two years old to youths who appeared less than fifteen years.

Most of them carried shapeless bags holding their scantly belongings. Some clung tightly to lifeboats salvaged from their old ships.

Without exception they showed the effects of a terrible day spent in close confinement in the Graf Spee while the battleship was pounded by British shells and shaken by the recoil of its own eleven-inch guns.

The imprisoned captains were identified as Brown of the S. S. Huntsman, Pottinger of the S. S. Ashlea, Edwards of the S. S. Trevanion, Stubbs of the S. S. Doric Star and William Dore of the Africa Shell. All these ships were sunk in the vicinity of the African coast.

Warned Against Talking

British officials, conducting the prisoners to their consulate, continually warned the men against talking—in violation of pledges—about what happened on the Graf Spee.

A close inspection today of the crippled warship revealed graphically the effectiveness of the British guns.

Three holes, apparently made by six-inch shells, gaped on the starboard waterline, forward. A huge hole, a yard and a half in diameter, was blasted through the hull into the ship's sleeping quarters on the port side, forward.

Plates bent outwards indicated the effect of what must have been a severe explosion within the ship.

Another gap, large enough for several men to enter together, could be seen in the fighting tower. The heavy shell apparently came over the stern during the chase.

Guntower Overturned

The six-inch portside guntower was overturned.

The Graf Spee lay hight out of the water, possibly confirming the contention of the British minister that she was forced to run for shelter because her fuel was giving out.

Docks and portside streets were crowded all day with great crowds, gazing at the pocket battleship swinging at its distant anchorage.

Plain pine caskets were heaped in a grim pile on the dock, preparatory to be taken aboard the Graf Spee for her dead.

Technically the crippled ship had only until midnight (10:30 p. m. E. S. T.) to leave, get extension of her stay or submit to internement for the rest of the war.

(In Washington Secretary Hull announced receipt of information that the Uruguayan government already had allowed the Admiral Graf Spee a forty-eight hour stay and that it might be extended if her commander requests it on grounds that repairs must be made.

(Reports reaching Washington also indicated that Uruguay did not intend to apply a distinction, made by the United States, between repairs made necessary by gunfire and repairs resulting from other causes such as storm.)

British Ships Ready

Keeping constant vigil in the event the Admiral Graf Spee elects to make a run for it, were the Achilles and Ajax, also damaged but ready to renew the fight which sent the Nazi raider scurrying to the safety of Montevideo shortly before last midnight, and other unspecified warships.

They were joined during the day by the Exeter, which was blasted out of the fight after four hours of cannonading. She would be of little help to her fellow ships, however, because of her badly damaged condition. Reports circulated that the Exeter had many dead and wounded aboard, but officials maintained silence on this score.

However, the British Admiralty announced in London that naval forces watching the Admiral Graf Spee "have been strongly reinforced." There were no details.

In addition to her thirty-six dead, the Admiral Graf Spee had sixty wounded sailors. Her crew normally numbers 926. Her captain was among the injured with a minor arm wound.

Otto Langman, German minister to Uruguay, visited the vessel and upon his return to shore charged the crewmen were suffering from lung and eye injuries caused by gas shells fired by the British.

But both the British Admiralty and Prime Minister Chamberlain, in London, denied as "entirely without foundation" these charges.

One of two seriously injured Nazi crewmen removed from the ship appeared to have lost his sight from wounds.

The Formose was proceeding along the Brazilian coast of Rio Grande do Sul yesterday, they related, when they sighted the fleet Nazi raider.

"The Formose headed full speed for Uruguayan territorial waters. The merchantman wallowed along at her top speed of 12 knots while the German warship quickly closed in," said one calmer passenger.

"It was a race against time for British cruisers were known to be nearby.

"Then the Ajax, first of the British cruisers to join the battle, came into sight and began chasing the Admiral Graf Spee.

"The Ajax sent out a call to the Achilles and the Exeter.

Lose Sight of Battle

"Next came the Exeter, which got the worst of the Nazi vessel's fight against the three British ships.

"The Admiral Graf Spee took to her heels and we on the Formose, lost sight of the running battle.

But as dusk fell over the south Atlantic those aboard the Formose again became eyewitnesses to the conflict as their ship neared the Uruguayan coast.

The German vessel was sighted about 8 P. M., running away, with the cruisers Ajax and Achilles in pursuit, the Exeter having been forced to drop out.

The Formose's passengers said the firing continued for about an hour, then subsided, only to be renewed for another hour.

The thunder of battle halted abruptly when the warships found themselves well within Uruguayan territorial waters.

The German minister said the masters of six British merchantmen sunk by the raider were aboard her. He did not give their names. There also were reports that the Admiral Graf Spee had sunk one or two British vessels only a few hours before yesterday's battle. The German high command announced in Berlin that the ship was sinking the British merchantmen Tairo and Streons Hall when she encountered the British cruisers.

(The presence of the six British masters aboard the ship raised speculation in London that their vessels were the Africa Shell, sunk off Portuguese East Africa, Nov. 15; the Trevanion, missing and long overdue; the Newton Beech, unheard from since the end of September; the Huntsman, long overdue; the Tanker Doric Star, reported sunk by a raider Dec. 4 in the South Atlantic, and the Ashlea, unreported since Sept. 28)

From her appearance, it seemed likely the Graf Spee would be laid up for some time for repairs. She had gaping holes in her sides and her superstructure was badly damaged. The tail and nose of a seaplane aboard had been shot away.

(A daring attempt by the ship to run the gauntlet of British cruisers outside the harbor was forecast in an NBC broadcast from Montevideo. The announcer said her crew was rushing repairs and that desperate efforts were being made to get her in readiness to leave before she was interned for the duration of the war.)

Ringside spectators of the war's first real sea battle meanwhile reached the safety of Montevideo aboard the 9,975-ton French merchant ship Formose and told graphic accounts of the spectacular fight deep in the American neutrality zone.

"Is there anything in the files," Toland asked, "to show that Smith, Witt (Nathan Witt, now secretary of the board but then assistant general counsel) or others conferred with union attorneys as to the form of the charges?"

"There is in the files material that shows that is true," Robb replied.

Development of this phase of the case was halted, until tomorrow, by the committee's adjournment.

The testimony of young Robb climaxed a day of rapid-fire testimony during which John P. Frey, head of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, advocated federal legislation forbidding international unions or federations of unions to make contributions to a political party.

Declaring nothing was more destructive to the welfare of labor and to the free operation of democracy than to have a union collecting money for partisan political purposes, Frey added that John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers had provided "over $600,000" for the Democratic party and had undertaken to raise $800,000 for political purposes in 1940.

A year after the mine workers had put up the $600,000, the AFL official said, President Roosevelt failed to give Lewis "something he though he should have," and "Mr. Lewis publicly reproached him for failing to meet the—er—obligation."

Frey renewed contentions that the board's power to designate the proper units for collective bargaining is too great, "and in the wrong" hands.

French Warship To Watch Graf

Buenos Aires, Dec. 14 (AP)—Official Argentine sources said today they "understood" that the 26,500-ton French battleship Dunkerque was steaming toward the river Platte to join the British warship watch there over the Admiral Graf Spee.

The Dunkerque is rated by naval experts as one of the five British and French warships capable of dealing alone with the German pocket battleship.

Carrying eight thirteen-inch guns as main armament, she has a speed of 29.5 knots and is protected by fourteen-inch armor.

saying merely that she had received "some hits" after severely damaging her three antagonists. Before the battle, the communique said, the Graf Spee sank the British merchantman Tairo, 7,983 tons and the Streonshall, 3,895 tons.

Military sources described the battle as part of the Nazi naval activity begun two weeks ago. Since then, these sources said, "heavy units" have ventured far into the Atlantic and into the northern part of the North Sea.

Authorized sources also denied that the Graf Spee would be interned indefinitely in Montevideo. It was evident that there was hope the Graf Spee might yet escape because of the power of her guns.

In another announcement, the high command said an unidentified German light cruiser had been damaged slightly by an underwater explosion. (The British admiralty earlier had announced the torpedoing of a German cruiser and the sinking of a U-boat by the same submarine which failed to catch the Bremen). The German announcement said the cruiser had reached home port.

Planes Reach France

Paris, Dec. 14 (AP)—First consignments of planes bought in the United States since the repeal of the American arms embargo have arrived safely in France, French sources disclosed tonight.

The Logical Alternative

MR. ROOSEVELT is represented by the background commentators at Washington as in a state of mind. He has thoroughly convinced himself that Congress should increase taxes at the next session in order to meet the heavy expenditures for national defense superimposed upon a budget which was already colossal.

But the president is reported to be hesitating because he is afraid of alienating the sane wing of the Democratic party on the eve of the national election which he hopes to control.

So far as the chief executive has outlined a tax policy in his own mind, he wants an excess corporate profits tax, still higher personal income taxes in middle brackets and the plugging up of "loopholes."

It is pointed out that anything like a repetition of the undistributed profits tax, for which Mr. Roosevelt contended to the last ditch, would split the Democratic party from stem to stern. Although the sensible wing of the Democratic party is for taxes sanely imposed, they are not the kind of taxes Mr. Roosevelt wants, and no one knows this better than Roosevelt.

It is not characteristic of the head of the New Deal to suppress his desires and he may flare out at any time, at whatever cost, but it requires no seventh son of a seventh son to foretell what the effect would be on the national election.

The tax on the undistributed profits of corporations has become a red rag and alone would upset the applecart, but any kind of increase in taxes would meet fierce public and congressional resistance. Members of Congress and the American people as a whole fully realize that expenditures for national defense will soon bring the national debt beyond the statutory limit of $45,000,000 and there is no strong desire to lift that limit in face of the possibility of inflation.

Logically, the only alternative is for the administration to agree to a reduction in expenditures for those purposes justified by the term "emergency," up to the time of the coming of war in Europe. This involves a decision to oppose the pressure groups which have fattened on government handouts for the last eight years.

A decision of that kind would probably be more heroic than is to be expected from the New Deal leader, who has entrenched himself in power by giving away other people's money.

A Senatorial Race

A LIVELY CONTEST is under way in Pennsylvania Republican circles over the party nomination for United States senator.

The candidates, representing three principal party organization factions, are former Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh; state Senator G. Mason Owlett, of Wellsboro, Republican national committeeman, and H. W. Prentis, Lancaster manufacturer.

Reed is supported by the Pittsburgh Mellon family. While not as influential in Republican politics as in the days of the late Andrew Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, the family is still an important factor.

Owlett has the support of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Bristol manufacturer, who supported him in 1938 when he was defeated at the primary by the incumbent senator, James J. Davis.

Prentis is a newcomer to active politics. He is the favorite of Joseph N. Pew, Philadelphia oil firm executive, one of Governor James's original 1938 primary supporters.

The contending factions are quite active at present, giving indication that the nomination is regarded this time as equivalent to election, there being many indications of a heavy Republican trend in the state.

Already Disturbed

ONE of the arguments put forth by third termites is that the American people, by a great majority, do not want to see the economic structure of the country disturbed.

As a matter of fact, the national economic structure has already been disturbed for several years and so badly disturbed that the people would like to have it changed for the better. For instance, they would like to get rid of that unemployed army of 9,000,000 men and women searching in vain for real work at decent wages. There is the New Deal's biggest failure.

Surely a majority of our farmers are not happy about a seventy-five cent price, or less, for wheat, fifty cents for corn and nine cents for cotton. Nor are a majority of the American people very happy over taxes that take almost twenty-five cents out of every dollar they earn, but still fall far short of the total spent by government each year.

The young men and women who have been unable to get started in life, because the New Deal has strangled industrial initiative surely do not want robbery of their opportunity continued. Nor do the small business men who are struggling to keep their heads above the flood of taxes and annoying New Deal red tape. The labor situation under the unfair practices of a national labor board is and has been exceedingly disturbed and there are plenty of indications that the workers do not want this condition continued.

No, it is not a continuance but a change of the economic structure that the people need and undoubtedly want.

New Build Up

ESOTERIC PHILOSOPHY of India appears to be not so mysterious after all. Yoga secrets and discipline and curative skills, stripped of turbans and crystal globes and other paraphernalia, have been resolved into a simple imperative which tells the seekers for happiness that all there is to it is this: "Do nothing."

Dr. Josephine L. Rathbone, of Teachers college, New York, has inaugurated a course, unassumingly tagged Physical Education 168D, in which she endeavors to impress upon her pupils that the way to a happier life on this earth is to take it easy, to cultivate the neglected art of relaxation in an era suffering pathologically from too much tension.

Dr. Rathbone, who visited India, where she witnessed demonstrations by Yogin, warns of the danger of tenseness in modern civilization and stresses the need of the western world to learn the art of relaxation, of simple severance from all the serious business of life for certain intervals, of definite and absolute departure from the world into the quiet escape closet of indifference and dreams of childhood days.

With the world continually and loudly knocking at the door, so sweet a sleep is not easy to win. Many may be eager to join the Do Nothing party, but there are bills overdue and many days of reckoning are at hand and soon the income tax demand will arrive again and there is war and this and that.

This is not to say that Dr. Rathbone is wrong. On the contrary, she gives good advice. Would that all could follow it. That would indeed bring the millennium ever so much closer.

Holiday Traffic

DANGEROUS TRAFFIC CONDITIONS in shopping districts during the Christmas season demand increased vigilance on the part of both motorists and pedestrians, according to a holiday safety bulletin issued by the Keystone Automobile Club, Maryland.

"Motor vehicle traffic as well as pedestrian traffic," it states, "is unusually heavy because of the Christmas shopping 'rush.' Drivers should be extremely careful in passing through shopping districts.

"Care should be exercised at intersections, for pedestrians are liable to dart from the sidewalk at unexpected times. 'Jaywalkers' also, are prevalent at this time."

Pedestrians are also urged to use caution when crossing streets. "Many shoppers," continues the bulletin, "are unused to walking in heavy traffic and become confused. This is especially true of elderly persons. In view of the obvious hazards, we recommend that all walkers cross only at intersections and only upon proper signal. There is no excuse for 'jaywalking' at any time, and especially during this time of the year.

"In brief, we wish to urge upon every motorist and every pedestrian the need for caution in congested areas. Each year accident records soar in the pre-Christmas season and general cooperation will be required to prevent the toll from rising this year. The attempted 'saving' of a few minutes often proves costly in human life."

Good, sound advice, which should be heeded by everybody at this time.

Europe-to-America transatlantic television will be a fact within a few years, according to a news item. Well, if things don't improve over there, we won't look.

Red and brown do not go well together—fashion note. There's someone who should catch up on her current European history.

Grandma may have had her troubles putting on all those clothes but at least she didn't waste an hour hooking on false eyelashes.

The City of Phoenix announces it is debt free. Phoenix is in Arizona and not—as you must have supposed—in the Land of Oz.

The Skeptics Society moves over shortly into the political domain and will endeavor to learn what holds Candidate McNutt up.

On the other hand, says Uncle Bud, success or failure may depend entirely on whether you burn or imbibe the midnight oil.

No wonder Stalin is sore at Finland. The Finns are so dumb they think they have a right to keep their own country.

Confession of a Hypocrite

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I wrote an article about Saul of Tarsus, about whom I know very little.

The next day a friend of mine, a clergyman, came into my office and said he agreed with my amateur analysis of Saul's conversion to Christianity. (That made me happy.)

Marshall Maslin

This week I received an anonymous poem that abused me for daring to write about religion—a fairly good sonnet in which I was told that if there is an after life or a God to judge us mortals—

"Then shall you know what here
It is you've writ
Are but the words of one rank hypocrite."

How amusing that a stranger should know I'm a hypocrite. But in some ways I have been, and I am.

One night not long ago I spanked our puppy for something I wouldn't have spanked him for had I not been in a temper. (Hypocrite!)

Once somebody asked me if I'd read "Nicholas Nickleby." I said yes, but I hadn't. (Hypocrite!)

Once a lady showed me around her garden, chatting charmingly the while about her flowers. I pretended great interest but I was bored. (Hypocrite!)

Once a friend wrote a novel and I reviewed it, saying it was very fine—which it wasn't. (Hypocrite!)

Once a man came to me with a letter from an acquaintance. I talked to him for half an hour, was polite, hoped I'd see much more of him—which wasn't my real hope. . . . He was polite, too, and said he'd call again and return a book I'd lent him. (But he didn't and thus was my polite hypocrisy repaid.)

And once a man wrote me a nasty letter, signing his name. I wrote a friendly letter in return, masquerading my resentment. (Hypocrite!)

Once, too, I went somewhere and made a talk and said at the end how much I'd enjoyed it. But it had been agony and I had had no fun at all. (Hypocrite!)

* * *

Anonymous poet, please send stamped and self-addressed letter for more examples of hypocrisy. I can think of hundreds, far worse than these puny examples.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

A friend who studies professional football from close up on the fifty-yard - line tells me that Davy O'Brien, brilliant pack and forward-pass checker for the Philadelphia Eagles, will earn more than 140,000 this year, including salary, payment for testimonials, and one thing and another. That marks a nice reciprocal hook - up between bread and circuses.

Professional football is rapidly becoming big business. It is solvent. It is goading laggard dollars and getting them out into circulation, and it has earned the admiration of all lovers of clean, honest sport. It started in the early nineteen - hundreds with a few former college players of the Duquesne Athletic Club. It grew in small cities like Green Bay, Wis., and Canton, Ohio, where people eagerly wanted big - time football but couldn't get it. It has moved along steadily to the 62,000 gate at this year's Giants - Redskins game in New York, with a grand splurge of public enthusiasm.

Has Good Effect

Football as a business is proving that frank professionalism is having a salutary effect on the colleges, where it hasn't always been so frank. While the pro teams take only college men, and outdo the colleges, with their swing bands, like George Marshall's 105-piece band, their yell masters and impassioned invocations of team loyalty, they never poach on the college preserves and no player is eligible until after his graduation from college. The result has been to sharpen the dividing line between the amateur and the professional. Furthermore, it tends to relieve the colleges of the necessity of advertising their plants by winning football teams.

The shift of a lot of this romantic excitement to the Sunday afternoon professional games has the effect of putting the colleges on their merits and giving them a chance to keep their minds on their work. It is a wholesome sluice for the overweening football interest which has been worrying the pedogogues for years.

Equals Pay Career

A top-cut football player, getting out of college at 21 or 22, may get as much as eight or nine years of seasonal but profitable work — with big returns if his testimonial writing wrist, as well as his legs, remain limber. Mel Hein, captain of Mr. Tim Mara's grand team, the Giants, is thirty. Ken strong is also thirty. Obsolescense seems about the same as that in prize-fighting, but general wear and tear is less, and also less is the danger of ruinous injury.

Some people may have had the idea that pro football headed youth into the dead-end of a fourth decade with their brilliant future behind them. That notion is all wrong. Many or most of these lads are studying for the professions — law, medicine or engineering — or like Tuffy Leeman's finest player in the world, engaging in business. Many of the Chicago players are taking post - graduate courses at the University of Chicago.

Are Geared

The Ivy League colleges contribute few men to the pro-football line-up. These boys are usually geared into a professional or business career in the undergraduate days and do not need to spend additional years to get the money and the kudos of a pro football buildup. Hence most of the players come from the cactus colleges where the best material actually exists. They are uniformly bigger and tougher than the general run of college teams.

In matches between synthetic amateur teams and the pros, the former have fully held their own in skill, tactics and strategy, but a top-rating proteam is an aggregation of fast tanks against which college boys are mere sharp-shooters. They are pulverizing outfits.

For Showmanship

The pro game has, naturally and fittingly, been organized for showmanship, with several variations from the college rules. The goal posts are on the goal line, so that field goals may be kicked. A forward pass is allowed from any point, and the passer need not be five yards back of the line, as in the college game. All this makes for scoring. That's what the public likes, and therefore the pros get the crowds.

From where we sit this seems all to the good and it might appear that similarly effective would be a segregation of the amateur ship from the professional goats in public life. Reformers, doctrinaires, social meliorists, politicians, viewers with alarm are all tagged as amateurs, but are they?. If the pros and amateurs of our public forum could be designated by contrasting uniforms and numbers, surely there would be more honestly and clarity in our social set-up.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Roosevelt's Anger over Budget Query Indicates His Realization of Failure

BY MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, Dec. 14.—At the president's press conference, it was a slight incident, it occupied not over a minutt or two. But as a reflection of Mr. Roosevelt's temperament, it may throw light on events ahead.

Mark Sullivan

One of the newspaper men remarked that Republican Senator Robert A. Taft, in a speech at Boston, had said that the budget would be balanced in two years. Had the president any comment, the newspaper men asked.

Mr. Roosevelt could have passed it over lightly, as he does many questions. Always, against questions that might embarrass, or embroil, he has many armors of defense, many weapons of parry. He must have. For the fact that he performs at these press conferences twice weekly is an incredible achievement of self-confidence and versatility, and also perhaps valor, certainly daring.

Faces Heavy Barrage

He sits at his desk facing a semi-circle of some hundred newspaper men—two hundred of the alertest and most penetrating eyes in the world fixed intently upon him. He holds himself ready to meet any question. How various those questions can be, how unexpected, how sometimes provocative; how sometimes subtle, designed to catch the president off guard; how sometimes charged with possibility of explosiveness—all that will be realized by those who understand the range of temperaments and interests in a hundred newspaper men and the papers they represent.

Mr. Roosevelt must face the questions, not necessarily answer all of them. Nine times out of ten he does answer, sometimes with what seems almost startling frankness and informality. For the tenth question, for the occasional avoidance of answer, he has many arts of defense—a disarming laugh, a smilingly and deliberately cryptic equivocation which the newspaper men understand, sometimes a frank statement that he would prefer not to answer that question.

Silence Gives Clues

But as every one knows, and newspaper men most of all, disinclination to answer a question is sometimes itself an answer. A response which says the responder has no information, sometimes contains all the information any newspaper man needs. And every newspaper man has learned, as every cross-examiner knows, that the most revealing answer in the world may be found in the very impact of an unexpected question upon the features of the person questioned. Consequently, Mr. Roosevelt's arts of self-defense include an expression that is sometimes on his countenance between questions, after he has answered one question and is awaiting the next. It is an expression of, so to speak, inexpressiveness, called in some quarters a "poker face."

Mr. Roosevelt is not by nature cautious; on the contrary, impetuous.. This his associates know. They try, not always with complete success, to guard him against incaution. At his press conferences, there is always present his loyal secretary, Mr. Stephen Early, zealous to guard his chief against misadventure. Mr. Early, his expression a curious compound of vigilance and anxiety, holds himself ready, one senses, to convey warning to his chief, if not in words, by his manner; to somehow physically transmit a message "Look out for that one, chief, there's dyname in it."

No Dynamite

In the question about Senator Taft's statement on the budget, there was not necessarily any dynamite—unless Mr. Roosevelt, himself, by his answer, put it in. He could have passed it by with a smile, or an "Indeed" He could have genially wisecracked about it—he is good at that.

But he did none of these things. He showed instant irritation. As automatically as reaction to a blow, he had the manner of suddenly encountering a challenge—at answering with counter-challenge. He put a snapping quality into his reply. If, he said, Senator Taft knows how to balance the budget, then will Mr. Taft furnish a bill of particulars. Mr. Roosevelt would, he said, give anything in the world for a bill of particulars showing how the budget could be balanced in two years.

Has Said It Himself

Senator Taft's statement was, after all, just an ordinary commonplace of political controversy. One may guess the cause of Mr. Roosevelt's nettlement was in part with himself; that Mr. Taft's remark was merely the detonating occasion for an inner emotion that had long been brewing within Mr. Roosevelt's own mind. For it happens that precisely what Mr. Taft said — that the budget could be balanced in two years — is exactly what Mr. Roosevelt has himself said each year for seven years past. Even after he had abandoned his early policy of economy, after he had adopted the policy of prodigious borrowing and spending, he still sincerely entertained the hope, and confidently conveyed to Congress in his messages and the speeches the expectation, that the budget would be balanced the next year, of at most the year after next.

Failure Realized

That Mr. Roosevelt for seven years carried in his mind two policies that were at war with each other—enormous spending and balancing the budget; that he thought he could be successful with both; and that, as he came to the end of his time, he was forced to realize he must fail — all that composes a phase of Mr. Roosevelt's temperament which might explain his present irritability.

A good many times during the next ten months, Mr. Roosevelt is going to hear criticism of himself about the budget. Will his reaction continue to be one of irritation, perhaps grow to be one of anger? If so, what would be the effect on the fortunes of the county? Would it cause Mr. Roosevelt to try harder to balance the budget? Or would he feel that to do that would be doing what his critics demand, playing into his opponents' hands? What will be the effect on the third term question? Mr. Roosevelt is one in whom the instinct of self - justification is strong. Almost one can imagine Mr. Roosevelt saying to his critics—"If you don't stop nagging me about the budget, I'll run again."

Against System, Not Persons

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

Dr. Frank Buchman, leader of a moral rearmament movement, urges a moratorium on hate and says:

"We cannot go on permanently expecting other nations to repent first."

Perhaps that is right. It is also quite true that even if we do not hate Hitler or Stalin, we must, of necessity, hate the things Hitler and Stalin do, as well as the philosophies for which they stand.

Dr. Buchman and those who agree with him, have reached an erroneous conclusion. They are convinced that present difficulties in Europe root in personal animosity. That isn't true. However much King George and the members of his government might dislike Hitler personally, they wouldn't go to war simply to feed a personal grudge. No, the hatred against which the moral crusaders are preaching is based upon an abhorrence to what has been loosely termed "Hitlerism."

It would be possible to effect a truce with Herr Hitler himself, but it is not possible to effect a truce, morally or otherwise, with the cruelty and the brutal ruthlessness for which his system stands.

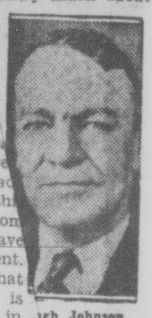
On the Record

By United States Senator George L. Radcliffe, Democrat, of Maryland

There is much discussion nowadays as to whether the United States Government should continue to have a stabilization fund. The fund was created, as we know, a few years ago when wide fluctations in the currencies of certain foreign governments were having a very disruptive effect upon our foreign trade. Ten years ago prudence would not have required our government to create such a fund. Let up hope that some day soon no such fund will be necessary or a better plan for handling the problems can be found.

FDR Not So Good As Fire Warden

By HUGH S. JOHNSON



Hugh Johnson

New York City, Dec. 14—Homing Ambassador Kennedy and Davies didn't tell country much about European conditions in the countries where they were appointed to watch them—except to suggest that they are terrible to talk about. Both were strong with advice about the country from which they have been long absent. They think that Mr. Roosevelt is indispensible — in spite of the third term tradition.

I don't know why they shouldn't think that for the same reason that Mr. Ickes thinks it is something like saying that they themselves are indispensible. None of the three will be there any more if Mr. Roosevelt doesn't. It is O.K. for both of them to think it and say it—but that is no reason why anybody has to see with them or even regard their opinions as particularly important on this point.

Questionable Reputation

The argument is: "The world is on fire and so it is necessary to keep this great fire-putter-out on the job to keep us from getting burned." I don't know just here Mr. Roosevelt gets his reputation as a fire warden. I think that at least up to the explosion in Europe, the foreign relations of our government were conducted by this administration far better than at any other time during my life. It has been reflected in increased respect for this country by the chancelleries of almost every government.

Inward Itching

But since the war flamed and in spite of protestation, even in spite of recent official action, this administration seems to me to be tense with painful self-repression of an acute inward desire to stick a finger in the war pie of the world. That self-repression is, I believe, a result of realizing the overwhelming popular American determination against getting into a new world war. As long as that popular opinion remains, I think that there will be no dangerous move. But if popular thinking should give even the appearance of change, it wouldn't find its government lagging back an inch.

Personal and Public

It isn't easy to blue-print the basis of this belief. It stems in part from personal contacts and conversations but also from significant public words and actions—the Chicago "quarantine" speech in which the president proposed that we engage in economic war against the "aggressor" nations—the well known official impatience under the "neutrality" acts and the obvious desire of the administration to be permitted to apply economic sanctions in its own discretion—the presidential talk about "measures more than mere words but less than war" in disputes which are literally none of our damned business.

The Deadlier War

What some people do not seem to understand is that economic war has become even more deadly than military war in this sly, finessing era when it is called clever to wage war without declaring it. We have contributed our part by taking advantage of a failure to declare war to do things on the economic side that would be a flagrant belligerent if war had been declared. We are doing it in Finland. We have done it in Asia. The administration has done it in compliance with the letter but not the spirit of the law. In spite of clear declarations of Congress that it should have no discretion to engage in either military or economic war—declared or undeclared.

Not Indispensible

On this kind of thinking, I doubt the advertisement of Ambassadors Davies and Kennedy of Mr. Roosevelt as indispensible fire-putter-out. In addition to that doubt, I can't forget that we have domestic fires which Mr. Roosevelt was elected to extinguish—the problems of labor, agriculture, unemployment, federal finance and recovery. After seven years and billions lost, have they been opened? Either here or abroad, I don't see the president as a fire-extinguisher.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Logical Alternative

MR. ROOSEVELT is represented by the background commentators at Washington as in a state of mind. He has thoroughly convinced himself that Congress should increase taxes at the next session in order to meet the heavy expenditures for national defense superimposed upon a budget which was already colossal.

But the president is reported to be hesitating because he is afraid of alienating the sane wing of the Democratic party on the eve of the national election which he hopes to control.

So far as the chief executive has outlined a tax policy in his own mind, he wants an excess corporate profits tax, still higher personal income taxes in middle brackets and the plugging up of "loopholes."

It is pointed out that anything like a repetition of the undistributed profits tax, for which Mr. Roosevelt contended to the last ditch, would split the Democratic party from stem to stern. Although the sensible wing of the Democratic party is for taxes sanely imposed, they are not the kind of taxes Mr. Roosevelt wants, and no one knows this better than Roosevelt.

It is not characteristic of the head of the New Deal to suppress his desires and he may flare out at any time, at whatever cost, but it requires no seventh son of a seventh son to foretell what the effect would be on the national election.

The tax on the undistributed profits of corporations has become a red rag and alone would upset the applecart, but any kind of increase in taxes would meet fierce public and congressional resistance. Members of Congress and the American people as a whole fully realize that expenditures for national defense will soon bring the national debt beyond the statutory limit of $45,000,000 and there is no strong desire to lift that limit in face of the possibility of inflation.

Logically, the only alternative is for the administration to agree to a reduction in expenditures for those purposes justified by the term "emergency," up to the time of the coming of war in Europe. This involves a decision to oppose the pressure groups which have fattened on government handouts for the last eight years.

A decision of that kind would probably be more heroic than is to be expected from the New Deal leader, who has entrenched himself in power by giving away other people's money.

A Senatorial Race

A LIVELY CONTEST is under way in Pennsylvania Republican circles over the party nomination for United States senator.

The candidates, representing three principal party organization factions, are former Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh; state Senator G. Mason Owlett, of Wellsboro, Republican national committeeman, and H. W. Prentis, Lancaster manufacturer.

Reed is supported by the Pittsburgh Mellon family. While not as influential in Republican politics as in the days of the late Andrew Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, the family is still an important factor.

Owlett has the support of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Bristol manufacturer, who supported him in 1938 when he was defeated at the primary by the incumbent senator, James J. Davis.

Prentis is a newcomer to active politics. He is the favorite of Joseph N. Pew, Philadelphia oil firm executive, one of Governor James's original 1938 primary supporters.

The contending factions are quite active at present, giving indication that the nomination is regarded this time as equivalent to election, there being many indications of a heavy Republican trend in the state.

Already Disturbed

ONE of the arguments put forth by third termites is that the American people, by a great majority, do not want to see the economic structure of the country disturbed.

As a matter of fact, the national economic structure has already been disturbed for several years and so badly disturbed that the people would like to have it changed for the better. For instance, they would like to get rid of that unemployed army of 9,000,000 men and women searching in vain for real work at decent wages. There is the New Deal's biggest failure.

Surely a majority of our farmers are not happy about a seventy-five cent price, or less, for wheat, fifty cents for corn and nine cents for cotton. Nor are a majority of the American people very happy over taxes that take almost twenty-five cents out of every dollar they earn, but still fall far short of the total spent by government each year.

The young men and women who have been unable to get started in life, because the New Deal has strangled industrial initiative surely do not want robbery of their opportunity continued. Nor do the small business men who are struggling to keep their heads above the flood of taxes and annoying New Deal red tape. The labor situation under the unfair practices of a national labor board is and has been exceedingly disturbed and there are plenty of indications that the workers do not want this condition continued.

No, it is not a continuance but a change of the economic structure that the people need and undoubtedly want.

New Build Up

ESOTERIC PHILOSOPHY of India appears to be not so mysterious after all. Yoga secrets and discipline and curative skills, stripped of turbans and crystal globes and other paraphernalia, have been resolved into a simple imperative which tells the seekers for happiness that all there is to it is this: "Do nothing."

Dr. Josephine L. Rathbone, of Teachers college, New York, has inaugurated a course, unassumingly tagged Physical Education 168D, in which she endeavors to impress upon her pupils that the way to a happier life on this earth is to take it easy, to cultivate the neglected art of relaxation in an era suffering pathologically from too much tension.

Dr. Rathbone, who visited India, where she witnessed demonstrations by Yogin, warns of the danger of tenseness in modern civilization and stresses the need of the western world to learn the art of relaxation, of simple severance from all the serious business of life for certain intervals, of definite and absolute departure from the world into the quiet escape closet of indifference and dreams of childhood days.

With the world continually and loudly knocking at the door, so sweet a sleep is not easy to win. Many may be eager to join the Do Nothing party, but there are bills overdue and many days of reckoning are at hand and soon the income tax demand will arrive again and there is war and this and that.

This is not to say that Dr. Rathbone is wrong. On the contrary, she gives good advice. Would that all could follow it. That would indeed bring the millennium ever so much closer.

Holiday Traffic

DANGEROUS TRAFFIC CONDITIONS in shopping districts during the Christmas season demand increased vigilance on the part of both motorists and pedestrians, according to a holiday safety bulletin issued by the Keystone Automobile Club, Maryland.

"Motor vehicle traffic as well as pedestrian traffic," it states, "is unusually heavy because of the Christmas shopping 'rush.' Drivers should be extremely careful in passing through shopping districts.

"Care should be exercised at intersections, for pedestrians are liable to dart from the sidewalk at unexpected times. 'Jaywalkers' also, are prevalent at this time."

Pedestrians are also urged to use caution when crossing streets. "Many shoppers," continues the bulletin, "are unused to walking in heavy traffic and become confused. This is especially true of elderly persons. In view of the obvious hazards, we recommend that all walkers cross only at intersections and only upon proper signal. There is no excuse for 'jaywalking' at any time, and especially during this time of the year.

"In brief, we wish to urge upon every motorist and every pedestrian the need for caution in congested areas. Each year accident records soar in the pre-Christmas season and general cooperation will be required to prevent the toll from rising this year. The attempted 'saving' of a few minutes often proves costly in human life."

Good, sound advice, which should be heeded by everybody at this time.

Europe-to-America transatlantic television will be a fact within a few years, according to a news item. Well, if things don't improve over there, we won't look.

Confession of a Hypocrite

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I wrote an article about Saul of Tarsus, about whom I know very little.

The next day a friend of mine, a clergyman, came into my office and said he agreed with my amateur analysis of Saul's conversion to Christianity. (That made me happy.)

Marshall Maslin

This week I received an anonymous poem that abused me for daring to write about religion—a fairly good sonnet in which I was told that if there is an after life or a God to judge us mortals—

"Then shall you know what here
it is you've writ
Are but the words of one rank
hypocrite."

Once a man came to me with a letter from an acquaintance. I talked to him for half an hour, was polite, hoped I'd see much more of him—which wasn't my real hope. . . . He was polite, too, and said he'd call again and return a book I'd lent him. (But he didn't and thus was my polite hypocrisy repaid.)

And once a man wrote me a nasty letter, signing his name. I wrote a friendly letter in return, masquerading my resentment. (Hypocrite!)

The Human Side Of the News

A friend who studies professional football from close up on the fifty-yard - line tells me that Davy O'Brien, brilliant back and forward-pass checker for the Philadelphia Eagles, will earn more than 140,000 this year, including salary, payment for testimonials, and one thing and another. That marks a nice reciprocal hook - up between bread and circuses.

Professional football is rapidly becoming big business. It is solvent. It is goading laggard dollars and getting them out into circulation, and it has earned the admiration of all lovers of clean, honest sport. It started in the early nineteen - hundreds with a few former college players of the Duquesne Athletic Club. It grew in small cities like Green Bay, Wis., and Canton, Ohio, where people eagerly wanted big - time football but couldn't get it. But as every one knows, and newspaper men most of all, disinclination to answer a question is sometimes itself an answer. A response which says the responder has no information, sometimes contains all the information any newspaper man needs. And every newspaper man has learned, as every cross-examiner knows, that the most revealing answer in the world may be found in the very impact of an unexpected question upon the features of the person questioned. Consequently, Mr. Roosevelt's arts of self-defense include an expression that is sometimes on his countenance between questions, after he has answered one question and is awaiting the next. It is an expression of, so to speak, inexpressiveness, called in some quarters a "poker face."

Mr. Roosevelt is not by nature cautious; on the contrary, impetuous.. This his associates know. They try, not always with complete success, to guard him against incaution. At his press conferences, there is always present his loyal secretary, Mr. Stephen Early, zealous to guard his chief against misadventure. Mr. Early, his expression a curious compound of vigilance and anxiety, holds himself ready, one senses, to convey warning to his chief, if not in words, by his manner; to somehow physally transmit a message "Look out for that one, chief, there's dynamite in it."

No Dynamite

In the question about Senator Taft's statement on the budget, there was not necessarily any dynamite—unless Mr. Roosevelt, himself, by his answer, put it in. He could have passed it off with a smile, or an "Indeed"? He could have genially wisecracked about it—he is good at that.

But he did none of these things. He showed instant irritation. As automatically as reaction to a blow, he had the manner of suddenly encountering a challenge—at answering with counter-challenge. He put a snapping quality into his reply. If, he said, Senator Taft knows how to balance the budget, then will Mr. Taft furnish a bill of particulars. Mr. Roosevelt would, he said, give anything in the world for a bill of particulars showing how the budget could be balanced in two years.

Has Said It Himself

Senator Taft's statement was, after all, just an ordinary commonplace of political controversy. One may guess the cause of Mr. Roosevelt's nettlement was in part with himself; that Mr. Taft's remark was merely the detonating occasion for an inner emotion that had long been brewing within Mr. Roosevelt's own mind. For it happens that precisely what Mr. Taft said — that the budget could be balanced in two years — is exactly what Mr. Roosevelt has himself said each year for seven years past. Even after he had abandoned his early policy of economy, after he had adopted the policy of prodigious borrowing and spending, he still sincerely entertained the hope, and confidently conveyed to Congress in his messages and the speeches the expectation, that the budget would be balanced the next year, of at most the year after next.

Failure Realized

That Mr. Roosevelt for seven years carried in his mind two policies that were at war with each other—enormous spending and balancing the budget; that he thought he could be successful with both; and that, as he came to the end of his time, he was forced to realize he must fail — all that composes a phase of Mr. Roosevelt's temperament which might explain his present irritability.

A good many times during the next ten months, Mr. Roosevelt is going to hear criticism of himself about the budget. Will his reaction continue to be one of irritation, perhaps grow to be one of anger? If so, what would be the effect on the fortunes of the county? Would it cause Mr. Roosevelt to try harder to balance the budget? Or would he feel that to do that would be doing what his critics demand, playing into his opponents' hands? What will be the effect on the third term question? Mr. Roosevelt is one in whom the instinct of self - justification is strong. Almost one can imagine Mr. Roosevelt saying to his crftics—"If you don't stop nagging me about the budget, I'll run again."

Against System, Not Persons

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

Dr. Frank Buchman, leader of a moral rearmament movement, urges a moratorium on hate and says:

"We cannot go on permanently expecting other nations to repent first."

Perhaps that is right. It is also quite true that even if we do not hate Hitler or Stalin, we must, of necessity, hate the things Hitler and Stalin do, as well as the philosophies for which they stand.

Dr. Buchman and those who agree with him, have reached an erroneous conclusion. They are convinced that present difficulties in Europe root in personal animosity. That isn't true. However much King George and the members of his government might dislike Hitler personally, they wouldn't go to war simply to feed a personal grudge. No, the hatred against which the moral crusaders are preaching is based upon an abhorrence to what has been loosely termed "Hitlerism."

It would be possible to effect a truce with Herr Hitler himself, but it is not possible to effect a truce, morally or otherwise, with the cruelty and the brutal ruthlessness for which his system stands.

On the Record

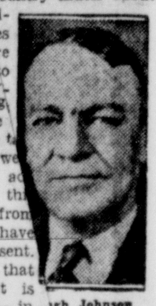
By United States Senator George L. Radcliffe, Democrat, of Maryland

There is much discussion nowadays as to whether the United States Government should continue to have a stabilization fund. The fund was created, as we know, a few years ago when wide fluctations in the currencies of certain foreign governments were having a very disruptive effect upon our foreign trade. Ten years ago prudence would not have required our government to create such a fund. Let up hope that some day soon no such fund will be necessary or a better plan for handling the problems can be found.

FDNot So Good As Fire Warden

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

New York City, Dec. 14—Homing Ambassador Kennedy and Davies didn't tell country much about European conditions in the where they were appointed to watch them- cept to suggest that they are terrible to t about. Both were strong with advice about the country from which they have been long absent. They think that Mr. Roosevelt is indispensible — in spite of the third tradition.



Hugh Johnson

I don't know why they shouldn't think that for the same reason that Mr. Ickes thinks it is something like saying that they themselves are indispensible. None of the three will be there any more if Mr. Roosevelt doesn't say. It is O.K. for both of them think it and say it—but that is no reason why anybody has to see with them or even regard their opinions as particularly important on this point.

Questionable Reputation

The argument is: "The world is on fire and so it is necessary to keep this great fire-putter-out on the job to keep us from getting burned." I don't know just where Mr. Roosevelt gets his reputation as a fire warden. I think that at least up to the explosion in Europe, the foreign relations of our government were conducted by this administration far better than at any other time during my life. It has been reflected in increased respect for this country by the chancellories of almost every government.

Inward Itching

But since the war flamed and in spite of protestation, even in spite of recent official action, this administration seems to me to be tense with painful self-repression of an acute inward desire to stick a finger in the war pie of the world. That self-repression is, I believe, a result of realizing the overwhelming popular American determination against getting into a new world war. As long as that popular opinion remains, I think that there will be no dangerous move. But if popular thinking should give even the appearance of change, it wouldn't find its government lagging back an inch.

Personal and Public

It isn't easy to blue-print the basis of this belief. It stems in part from personal contacts and conversations but also from significant public words and actions—the Chicago "quarantine" speech in which the president proposed that we engage in economic war against the "aggressor" nations—the well known official impatience under the "neutrality" acts and the obvious desire of the administration to be permitted to apply economic sanctions in its own discretion—the presidential talk about "measures more than mere words but less than war" in disputes which are literally none of our damned business.

The Deadlier War

What some people do not seem to understand is that economic war has become even more deadly than military war in this sly, finessing era when it is called clever to wage war without declaring it. We have contributed our part by taking advantage of a failure to declare war to do things on the economic side that would be a flagrant belligerent if war had been declared. We are doing it in Finland. We have been it in Asia. The administration has done it in compliance with the letter but not the spirit of the law in spite of clear declarations of Congress that it should have no discretion to engage in either military or economic war—declared or undeclared.

Not Indispensible

On such kind of thinking, I doubt the advertisement of Ambassadors Davies and Kennedy of Mr. Roosevelt as indispensible fire-putter-out. In addition to that doubt, I can't forget that we have domestic fires which Mr. Roosevelt was elected to extinguish—the problems of labor, agriculture, unemployment, federal finance and recovery. After seven years and billions lost, have they been opened? Either here or abroad, I don't see the president as a fire-extinguisher.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

ohn Boettiger omplains about LRB Decision

emorandum Read at Hearing of Committee Investigating Board

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—A memandum stating that John Boettir, President Roosevelt's son-in- had vehemently accused the ational Labor Relations Board of aking a decision based on "a disrtion of the facts" and "illogical ferences" was read here into e record of the House committee vestigating the board.

The document, written by Elwyn Eagen, the Board's regional dictor at Seattle, also said that oettiger had accused a Board exminer of unfairness and had indited that he would see that infortion at his disposal "reached the oper authorities."

The committee counsel also inoduced documents, the purport of hich was that Harry Bridges, forer West Coast director of the CIO, a campaign against Towne Nyander, Regional Board director at s Angeles, who subsequently reigned.

William M. Leiserson, member of e Labor Board, denied, however, at Bridges had anything to do th Nylander's resignation, or "disssal," as he called it.

The committee counsel, Edmund Toland, inquired whether Nyander's drinking with AFL mems was the cause of his suspenon.

"No, I don't think that that incident — the drinking — was conected with his suspension," Leisern replied. "But that incident of unkenness — with another simir incident — did have everything do with his dismissal — he reigned."

Decision in Guild's Favor

At the start of the day's hearings, harles Fahy, counsel for the Labor oard, demanded that as a matter f "fairness and impartiality," the ommittee immediately hear replies charges leveled at Board members and its secretary, Nathan Witt, previous testimony.

Boettiger is publisher of the Seatle Post-Intelligencer. Against that aper, the American Newspaper uild filed discrimination charges volving the dismissal of two wo- employes. Ultimately, the abor Board ruled in the Guild's vor. Soon afterward, in the presce of his counsel and two representatives of the Guild, Boettiger ve Eagen his opinion of the decion.

"Mr. Boettiger leaned back in his air," Eagen reported in his memondum, addressed to Witt, "and ated that he had something to to me as a representative of Board, that what he had to say as in no sense a reflection upon personally, but as I was the only available representing the oard he would speak his piece to .

"He stated that he thought the oard's order was based upon a stortion of the facts produced at e hearing and illogical inferences, at he personally resented the deion very much and was only comying so as not to embarass the dministration and to avoid proging the controversy. He also ated he did not want to do anying which would jeopardize the ry fine relations which he had th the Newspaper Guild.

"He made some rather extensive marks about the Trial Examiner's fairness and the fact that the oard would not consider the comny's protest in regard to the Trial aminer who, he was later informhad been discharged for unfairss.

Boettiger Sympathetic

"Boettiger stated that he was sympathetic with the act, but when it was administered by oard which made the kind of sion it made in this case, that didn't blame employers for comning about the Board.

He stated very definitely that he not intend to take the matter with the president, that he er used his family connections accomplish anything in which might be personally interested. indicated, however, that he ld see that his information hed the proper authorities. He cated that he did not intend to licize his feelings or to make n known generally. He asked not to do so, but inferred that thought I would communicate substance of his conversation he Board."

he committee's witness throughthe day was Leiserson, newest nber of the Board, and most of day was devoted to the introtion of memoranda he had writto other Board officials critng procedure and policies of the ncy.

Movie Actors Charge Oil Stock Swindle

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP)—Movie actors Frank Morgan, Ralph Bellamy and J. Reginald Owen charge in a criminal complaint filed here they had bought $132,000 worth of oil stock which turned sour.

The complaint names Harry Hanbury, oil promoter of Shreveport, La., who allegedly sold the three stock in oil wells in Texas and Louisiana without the permit required by California law.

One Texas well gave Owen a small return, said the complaint, but the Louisiana well, in which all three invested, returned nothing except a fraction of their investment when the machinery was sold.

Morgan said he invested $24,000, Bellamy $36,000 and Owen $72,000.

The shawn, brought by crusaders from the Orient, is the ancestor of the oboe, English horn and bassoon of the modern orchestra.

Officer Describes Escape of Bremen From a Submarine

British Undersea Craft Forced To Dive To Escape Bombers

Berlin, Dec. 14 (AP)—The story of how crewmen sprang to the boats and watched Nazi planes drive a British submarine far beneath the sea to save the $20,000,000 Bremen on her last treacherous voyage home from Arctic Murmansk was told last night by an officer of the adventurous liner.

The crew was ready to abandon ship, life boats were manned and only the engine room watch left on duty—when a guardian airplane radioed "attack no longer to be feared," the officer said.

His name was not disclosed.

The British submarine was sighted early yesterday morning in clear weather and a calm sea, the officer continued. Commodore Adolf Ahrens was on the bridge with most of the higher officers.

German planes, the officer reported, hovered on both sides of the ship searching the waters for miles.

Capt. Ahrens ordered full speed ahead on a zig-zag course. Simultaneously a German plane radioed "English U-boat in sight."

Alarm sirens screeched on all decks. The crew rushed to the life boats, leaving only a few of the engine room crew on duty.

The German plane power-dived toward the submarine while the Bremen's crew watched apprehensively, but before the airplane could attack the submarine submerged.

(British sources in London said the submarine did not torpedo the Bremen because it would have been against international law to do so without warning.)

Just where the luxury liner was berthed remained a military secret although authorities indicated she was at Bremerhaven.

Observatory Finds Five New Stars

Austin, Tex., Dec. 14 (AP) — Five new stars belonging to the mysterious group of "white dwarfs" have been discovered by McDonald observatory, university of Texas officials disclosed.

Dr. Otto Struve, observatory director told the officials that the discoveries, which bring the group's known total to twenty-four, may upset current theories as to the generation of energy.

Dr. Gerald P. Kuiper, research associate who has sighted thirteen of the twenty-four "heavy stars," operated the observatory's 82-inch reflector for the last three months to make his discoveries.

"These stars have volumes of the order of that of the earth, but their masses are approximately equal to that of the sun," Dr. Struve said. "Hence their densities are fantastically large, in some cases exceeding one thousand tons per cubic inch."

Astronomers and physicists have been interested vitally in the "dwarfs." They promised to throw light upon such fundamental problems as the generation of energy in the interiors of stars.

"Present theories assume that hydrogen atoms are slowly converted into helium and heavier elements," Dr. Struve pointed out. "This process should gradually exhaust the supply of hydrogen, and the theory predicts that 'white dwarfs' at the end of the evolutionary cycle should be particularly devoid of all hydrogen.

"Professor Kuiper's work shows that hydrogen is fairly abundant in the stars investigated at McDonald observatory. No solution has been found except that, as Dr. Kuiper points out, the white dwarfs may well represent the beginning stages of the evolutionary sequence rather than the closing stages."

Movie Actors Charge Oil Stock Swindle

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP)—Movie actors Frank Morgan, Ralph Bellamy and J. Reginald Owen charge in a criminal complaint filed here they had bought $132,000 worth of oil stock which turned sour.

The complaint names Harry Hanbury, oil promoter of Shreveport, La., who allegedly sold the three stock in oil wells in Texas and Louisiana without the permit required by California law.

One Texas well gave Owen a small return, said the complaint, but the Louisiana well, in which all three invested, returned nothing except a fraction of their investment when the machinery was sold.

Morgan said he invested $24,000, Bellamy $36,000 and Owen $72,000.

Insurance Man Is Shot and Robbed

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP)—Two men who forced a Baltimore insurance man to stop his car, then shot and robbed him and left him by the roadside near death were sought by police tonight while the victim fought for his life ni a hospital.

The bandits took $80 from the man who identified himself to Patrolman John Bealefeld as E. Bayne Harnett, 69, Baltimore manager for the Teachers' Protective Union of Lancaster, Pa., a health-and-accident insurance organization.

The crew of a city dump truck, who as they approached saw a man run from where Harnett was lying to a car across the road, found the victim. A bullet had passed through his body a few inches from his heart.

Harnett told Detective John Fox a dark sedan containing two men forced his machine to the roadside on Cherry Hill road near Seamon avenue. With drawn guns they leaped out, he said, and one of them took his money. He said he was unable to remember what happened after that.

The truck crew told police they saw a woman in the parked car, but Harnett said th ecar contained only the two men.

A Word from the Wise Is Sufficient

London, (AP)—Admiral Jellicoe of the British Grand Fleet, writing after the close of the World war, said that at the start of that conflict—

"I have often wondered why the Germans did not make greater efforts to reduce our strength in capital ships by destroyer or submarine attacks on our bases in those early days."

Rep. David J. Ward Seeks Renomination

Salisbury, Md., Dec. 14 (AP) — A Democratic primary contest took shape in the first congressional district of Maryland here with Rep. David J. Ward's announcement that he would seek renomination.

Ward said in a statement he would be a candidate to retain the seat to which he was elected last summer, filling the unexpired term of former Rep. T. Alan Goldsborough, who was appointed a federal judge in the District of Columbia.

Another Democrat, State Senator Dudley G. Roe of Queen Anne's county, finance chairman and Majority Floorleader in the upper house, announced last night he would seek the party's congressional nomination from the first, or eastern shore district.

Roe pledged himself to a ten-point program "designed for the advancement of the eastern shore." Ward said he had given "much thought" to a platform but would refrain from a discussion of issues at present and stand on "my past record."

Ward was nominated unanimously by the Democratic state convention last spring to succeed Goldsborough. In a special election June 6, he defeated his Republican opponent, A. Stengle Marine of Cambridge, by a 3 to 2 majority.

Right Town but The Wrong State

Las Vegas, N. M., Dec. 13 (AP) — Miss Wayland Nixon, of Little Rock, Ark., stepped off a bus and looked around for her fiance, who was to fly to Las Vegas from San Bernardino, Calif., to marry her.

No fiance. Sympathetic Las Vegans soon solved the riddle. Then Miss Nixon went to meet her anxious fiance who waited impatiently—at Las Vegas, Nev.

HOW SANTA'S HELPERS MAKE THAT PRETTY DOLL

Santa Claus' helpers are busy these days making those pretty dolls Mary and Sally get for Christmas. It's a major industry and requires expert workmanship. Even the doll's clothes are carefully planned by designers, who must keep abreast of the latest fashion trends.

Trade Agreements Attacked by Holt

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Attacking reciprocal trade agreements, Senator Holt (D-W Va) has asserted imports of beef cattle in the last fiscal year exceeded by 57,000 head the 611,000 cattle on West Virginia's farms in the same period.

"We should protect the American market for the American farmer," he said in a letter addressed to farmers in West Virginia.

"The farmers have been having a hard enough time to make ends meet without opening our markets by reduced duties to foreign countries. . . .

"Even though I was criticized when I voted against the trade agreements act, time has proven I represented the interest of West Virginia."

"Bandit Tactics" Charged to Finns

Moscow, Dec. 14 (AP) — A Soviet newspaper complained tonight that sharpshooters of Finland's white-clad ski units were resorting to the "use of bandit tactics in sudden attacks on our columns." The "bandit tactics" cited included skiing in stocking feet.

"The enemy does not engage in open battle," wrote the war correspondent of Red Karelia, which is published near the Finnish frontier. "Hidden under white robes and thus skillfully camouflaged, they suddenly dart from the woods to shoot at our advancing units.

"Then in all haste they run, frequently taking off their boots to ski only in their stockings."

Another article described the profusion with which the Finns are laying mines on roadways and even paths.

There's No Smooth Road Ahead For U. S. Army Trucks and Autos

AP Feature Service

Baltimore—The parenthesis-shaped legs of the cavalryman today are resting on the floorboard of a powerful truck.

Millions of dollars are being spent to motorize troops of the U. S. army.

From every fighting service, students are being sent to the Holabird Quartermaster Depot here to learn how to take apart motors, how to rebuild autos.

But the army is planning to have a minimum of work for its trained mechanics. In its trucks and staff cars the army is demanding—and getting—performance far beyond that required for civilian purposes.

These pictures, all taken at the Holabird depot, show what the Army's motor vehicles must do.

An officers' car speeds over a concrete bump designed to resemble a tank trap. Commanders' autos are built to travel anywhere—road or no road.

Case of Keats Shows Advance Of Plague War

Modern Treatment Would Have Saved Life of Genius

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Geniuses are particular liable to have tuberculosis. Perhaps their genius is due more to the product of the bacillus than to innate ability. The fact of their susceptibility, however, has allowed us to obtain historical records which show quite clearly the way in which tuberculosis was treated in other days.

John Keats died about 120 years ago. He was a medical student and was licensed to practice medicine. He should have known the early symptoms and been able to make his own diagnosis. His mother died when he was 15 years old, and while we have very meager records of her, it is safe to assume that so early a death meant tuberculosis and that she was the source of his infection.

His health began to break down in 1816. He sought relief in various climates but, instead of resting, he thought that walking and strenuous exercise would restore his health. This, of course, is entirely contrary to our modern practice, in which rest is the first element in treatment. His younger brother developed consumption and John Keats nursed him for a while, a most unwholesome thing for him to have done. Apparently neither he nor anyone else recognized the similarity of his own symptoms and those of his brother.

Friend Told Story

His friend, Charles Brown, told the story that one night Keats came to his house in a pitiful state ,resembling violent intoxication. He had caught a chill riding outside a stage coach. Brown put him to bed. As he got between the cold sheets he coughed and then said: "Bring me a candle. I must see that blood." He gazed for some moments at the stain and said, "I know the color—it is arterial blood. I must die." But even with that symptom a doctor reassured him and told him there was nothing the matter.

In 1818 he went on a walking tour in Scotland. The fatigue and hardships proved too great a strain for him. Here, for the first time, an Inverness doctor made the diagnosis.

In 1820 it was evident to everyone that he was dying. As a last hope he set out on a journey for Naples, but died in Rome in February, 1821. The idea of sending so sick a man on a long, arduous journey of that kind was little less than cruelty to animals.

Different Today

Today every detail of the management of his case would be different. In the first place, the diagnosis would be made early. Treatment begun in an early stage is far more hopeful than late treatment. Secondly, he would be put to bed and not allowed to associate with other tuberculosis patients, unless, at least, every precaution were taken to prevent cross infection. It is probable that his lung would have been collapsed and the tuberculin toxine squeezed out of it. Perhaps in that case we would never have had the "Ode to a Grecian Urn."

With the application of modern forms of treatment, we feel that the conquest of tuberculosis is quite possible.

Engagement of Miss Alice Marsden And William E. Shuck Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Marsden of Mansfield, O., formerly of this city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to William E. Shuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shuck, North Mechanic street. Wedding date has been set for Saturday, March 30.

Both Miss Marsden and Mr. Shuck were graduated from the Allegany high school and are employed by the Celanese Corporation of America.

Event for Employes

When the employes of the Crystal Laundry gathered together Wednesday evening for an oyster and beer party at the company's plant, to a few it was something new, to others it was old stuff. Among the old employes were Miss Martha Walker, who has been with the company ever since the doors were thrown open back in 1898, and John Schlunt, who has been piloting a delivery vehicle for the company for forty-odd years.

Dancing progressed by easy stages from waltzing, to fox trots, to square dances, and finally wound up with a few effervescent couples holding an informal jitterbug contest with Juanita Knippenberg and Harold Athey carrying off the honors. Mrs. Sadie Barnard performed several specialty dances originated by herself. Music was furnished by Wilmer Brown whose accordian playing rivals in smoothness the shaves he dispenses during the day at a local barber shop.

Among those present were:

Ruth Smith, Jennie Gibson, Margaret Dean, Reba McIntosh, Lucy Meyers, Clara Reith, Martha Walker, Catherine Brant, Juanita Knipperenberg, Sadie Barnard, Wilda Snyder, Margaret Yeargan, Katherine Richardson, Lucy Lueck, Clifty Leasure, Elizabeth McIntosh, Thelma Dern, Ruth Deremer, Bernadette Trost.

William Cunningham, Robert Crone, George M. Young, Ellsworth Myers, William Ellsworth, G. C. Fazenbaker, George Twigg, Robert Leasure, Albert Wagner, L. J. Harrigan, Arthur Schlunt, Theodore Haller, John Schlunt, Harold Athey, Thomas Shires and Louis D. Young.

Have Jingle Party

Santa was a little previous last night when G. C. Murphy's Shamrock club entertained with a Christmas jingle party at the store, Baltimore street. As is their usual costume entertainment was the main feature of the evening. Refreshments were served.

Those who attended are:

Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Katherine Carlomany, Belle Weatherwax, Helen Casey, Helen Davis, Emma Conners, Jane Bruce, Phyllis Ryland, Lona Hull, Buena Bittinger, Howard Johnson, Peggy Bishoff, Nellie Hite, Lillian Zimmerman, Peggy Cozad, Mary Evelyn Hill, Eleanor Murphy, Marjorie Zais, Ruth Keyser, Robert Kuhn, Edith Fisher, Dorothy Hyde, Melita Fisher, E. Karnoff, Naoma Shaffer, Elsie Lowery, F. Davidson, Farrol Stevens, Thelma Walker, Evelyn Mitchell, Arlene Watring.

Ann Thompson, Lewis Metz, Minola Baker, Dorothy Bowen, M. McDaniels, Elizabeth Binnix, A. Cumisky, Z. Eyer, Edith Rupencamp, Mary Messman, D. Kenny, Erma Johnson, Eleanor Taylor, Mildred Payne, Pauline Athey, Kathleen Faney, Myrtle Dun, Grace Robinette, Geady James, Beulah Geeler, Edith Cessna, Mildred Weakley, Helen Clayton, Bess Danecker, Pauline Shroyer, Dorothy Valentine, Lou Collins, Hazel Plummer.

Events in Brief

William Torrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Torrington, The Dingle, will be in the cast of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," the second production of the year of the Troubadors, a dramatic group comprised of students of Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va. The play will be presented December 15 and 16 at the campus theater.

The Women's Sport club will meet this evening at the Central Y. M. C. A. to hear the nominating committee's report on officers for the ensuing year, but will hold the nominating meeting in January. Contributions for the Christmas baskets will be accepted at the "Y".

Miss Thekla D. Price reported the committee for the colored Sunday school Christmas party to be given at 8 o'clock December 26 at SS. Peter and Paul School, at a meeting of the Merici Veteran Unit of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade Wednesday evening at SS. Peter and Paul cafeteria.

Past Masters Night was observed by Ohr Lodge No. 131 of the Masons last evening in the Masonic Temple, Past masters of the lodge had charge of the degree work on a class.

The Climbers' Club held its annual covered dish supper Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Mabel Price, 17 North Allegany street.

The Allegany High Alumni Association will hold its annual holiday dance Thursday, December 28 at the school. The Society Ramblers will play. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Miss Georgeanna Kraus, Albert Wolfe, Mrs. Albert Kline and Mr. and Mrs Merrill Golden.

The Vera Blinn Missionary Society will meet January 8 at the home of Mrs. Edward Walker, 622 Lincoln street.

The Christmas party of the Union Grove Homemakers Club was held Wednesday at noon at the home of Mrs. Clyde W. Love, Union Grove road. Following a covered dish luncheon, movies were shown and then taken of the club members.

The Frances E. Willard Bible Class of Kingsley Methodist church will meet at 8 o'clock this evening at the home of Mrs. Juanita Kaylor, 714 Maryland avenue. Presents will be exchanged and class sisters revealed.

Elizabeth Star Lodge No. 7 of the Shepherds of Bethlehem will hold a card party at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the Junior Order hall, Polk street.

The January meeting of the Loyal Daughters Bible class of Kingsley Methodist church will be held at the home of Mrs. Benjamin F. Ryan, 750 Maryland avenue.

Personals

Mrs. Paul Bloom, 124 South street, underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday morning at Memorial hospital.

Engagement of Miss Alice Marsden And William E. Shuck Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Marsden of Mansfield, O., formerly of this city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to William E. Shuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shuck, North Mechanic street. Wedding date has been set for Saturday, March 30.

Both Miss Marsden and Mr. Shuck were graduated from the Allegany high school and are employed by the Celanese Corporation of America.

Event for Employes

When the employes of the Crystal Laundry gathered together Wednesday evening for an oyster and beer party at the company's plant, to a few it was something new, to others it was old stuff. Among the old employes were Miss Martha Walker, who has been with the company ever since the doors were thrown open back in 1898, and John Schlunt, who has been piloting a delivery vehicle for the company for forty-odd years.

Dancing progressed by easy stages from waltzing, to fox trots, to square dances, and finally wound up with a few effervescent couples holding an informal jitterbug contest with Juanita Knippenberg and Harold Athey carrying off the honors. Mrs. Sadie Barnard performed several specialty dances originated by herself. Music was furnished by Wilmer Brown whose accordian playing rivals in smoothness the shaves he dispenses during the day at a local barber shop.

Among those present were:

Ruth Smith, Jennie Gibson, Margaret Dean, Reba McIntosh, Lucy Meyers, Clara Reith, Martha Walker, Catherine Brant, Juanita Knipperenberg, Sadie Barnard, Wilda Snyder, Margaret Yeargan, Katherine Richardson, Lucy Lueck, Clifty Leasure, Elizabeth McIntosh, Thelma Dern, Ruth Deremer, Bernadette Trost.

William Cunningham, Robert Crone, George M. Young, Ellsworth Myers, William Ellsworth, G. C. Fazenbaker, George Twigg, Robert Leasure, Albert Wagner, L. J. Harrigan, Arthur Schlunt, Theodore Haller, John Schlunt, Harold Athey, Thomas Shires and Louis D. Young.

Have Jingle Party

Santa was a little previous last night when G. C. Murphy's Shamrock club entertained with a Christmas jingle party at the store, Baltimore street. As is their usual costume entertainment was the main feature of the evening. Refreshments were served.

Those who attended are:

Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Katherine Cariomany, Belle Weatherwax, Helen Casey, Helen Davis, Emma Conners, Jane Bruce, Phyllis Ryland, Lona Hull, Buena Bittinger, Howard Johnson, Peggy Bishoff, Nellie Hite, Lillian Zimmerman, Peggy Cozad, Mary Evelyn Hill, Eleanor Murphy, Marjorie Zais, Ruth Keyser, Robert Kuhn, Edith Fisher, Dorothy Hyde, Melita Fisher, E. Karnoff, Naoma Shaffer, Elsie Lowery, F. Davidson, Farrol Stevens, Thelma Walker, Evelyn Mitchell, Arlene Watring.

Pauline McFadden, Ronnie Clerihue, Alma Mullenan, Ruth Smith, Marjorie Haller, Azelma France, William Becker, Martha Giles, Betty Farrell, Mary Moore, Bettie Moore, Rebecka Lehman, Mary Foreman, Thelma Miller, William Lewis, Joseph Byrne, William Golladay, Fred Hosey, Ray Milway, Ellis Broadwater, Charles Beckworth, Harry Williams, Herbert Ponton, Carl Lowe, Betty Smith, Mary Jane Shillingburg, Wayne Larimer and Larry F. Flynn.

Events in Brief

One Man's Greed Is Another Man's Supper

Union City, Tenn. (AP)—Hospital inmates here and at nearby Martin profited when ambitious duck hunters bagged more than the law allows. The bag limit is 10.

The state game warden confiscated the over-limit ducks, turned 20 over to the Union City Hospital and seven to the Martin Hospital.

Don't Harp on Details

In telling a story or relating an incident, don't go into too much detail, or you may become boring. Tell it as picturesquely as possible, "hitting the high spots," as it were, and leaving out unimportant details.

WIFE PRESERVERS

In caring for your fine china, always rinse each dish directly after a meal. This will do much to preserve the luster of its decoration.

Dessert Is Brought In As Separate Course

A reader asks where the dessert is placed on the dinner table. The dessert is served as a separate course, and is not brought in until the dishes of the main meal are removed. Then it is brought in in individual servings which are placed in front of each person.

Or, if it is a cake or pudding, it may be brought in whole with plates or dishes suitable to serve it in, and served by the hostess in individual portions.

Beauty With a BANG

* * * * * *

By HELEN FOLLETT

BANGS ARE coming back with a whoop and a bang. It's a swing away from the naked forehead idea which has prevailed for years; very lovely it was, but enough is too much sometimes.

Forehead fringes are the solution of a stern beauty problem when the forward hairline is not attractive, scooting upon either side, leaving baldish places that should be covered. A soft fluff can be finger waved, the ends turned up or under as one wishes. It isn't necessary to have a straight-across cut; there can be a rounded finish, which is chic and sassy.

Let the round-faced lassie beware of the bang. Shortening the width of the brow, it makes the lower portion of the face appear broader and the nose larger, more prominent. That type of duckie looks best with a center parting, rolls on the crown of the head, hair not very full at the sides. Shining sleekness is better for her than undulations, as a rule.

Our old friend, beau catcher, has returned. Little curly cues in a row, piquant and as naive as a pair of silk mitts.

Coiffures seem to be doing a go-as-you-please race, no standardized mode prevailing. We see an uppity hair dress now and then; all right if its on the right darling. Longish bobs are a drug on the market, but the pretties consider them romantic, so they hang around.

You never know what nail polish is going to be up to. For a time mauve was the rage, then white had a fling; still has, for that matter. Now there's a run on nasturtium tones which look lovely with dark velvets and duvetyns.

Red oak is a new color that comes in finger-nail polish and lipsticks. It is more like dark cherry than red oak, is recommended by beauty experts to wear with plaids and the season's rich brown fabrics. Burnt almond is a coppery tint that looks well with green, beige, grey and black. True reds, fuchsia and orchids still hold their own where finger-nail shimmer is displayed.

HAVE YOU any beauty problems? Let the Beauty Box Editor help you solve them. Address all inquiries regarding beauty to the Editor of the Beauty Box, care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose an addressed, stamped (three cents) envelope for reply.

"There is more approximation in the rhythms of talk, faster rhythms that fit into the peace of modern life. The influence of newspaper headlines, directed at the hurried reader, has helped to popularize short forceful words, expressive monosyllables. There is devotion to doing strange things with words."

Enough To Take Words Out of Their Mouths

Lexington, Ky. (AP)—The banqueter's dream came true when 325 county farm agents held a dinner at the University of Kentucky.

There were NO speeches.

Clyde Watts, who presided, announced at the outset there would be none. The participants ate, sang songs and waited. But there were no speeches.

"It's all too strange to believe," one gray-haired banquet veteran sighed.

What Would You Think?

Clay Center, Kan. (AP)—Appearance can be deceiving. A couple marched into the probate justice's office at Clay Center, followed by a man carrying a big gun. The explanation was simple. The out-of-town couple wanted a marriage license but the judge was out hunting. So they ran him down and he accompanied them back to the office.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BALANCE THE FACTORS

IN DECIDING close questions between No Trump contracts and minor suit ones, a sound and thorough bidder weighs one factor against another. Holding singletons in his partner's suits will discourage him from No Trump because he can lead only once for a finesse, and may take no tricks in it at all. But having one of his own suits solid, or approximately so, should partly offset that risk, as he seems likely to be able to make a run of tricks there which brings him pretty close to a No Trump game without counting on side tricks, yet leaves him pretty far from a minor game.

	♠ 9 ♥ A K 8 7 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ 10 8 4 3 2
♠ 3 ♥ 4 ♦ Q 9 8 6 5 ♣ A K Q J 9 7	N. W. E. S.	♠ A K 8 6 2 ♥ Q J 6 5 ♦ K J ♣ 6 5
	♠ Q J 10 7 5 4 ♥ 10 9 3 2 ♦ A 10 7 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

East and West showed a misfit quickly on this deal. West began by bidding 1-Club, East 1-Spade, West 2-Diamonds, East 2-Hearts, West 3-Diamonds to indicate his six-five distribution and East 3-Spades, showing his five-four and also the strength to go farther.

West, a sound card counter, knew absolutely that his conventional partner had exactly four cards in the minor suits, and would be bound to have either two-card support for his six-card clubs or else three-card support for his five-card diamonds. But to make a game in either of those suits meant avoidance of three losing tricks, whereas at No Trump he could afford to lose four. He decided in favor of 3-No Trumps because his clubs appeared solid.

The decision turned out favorably, as he made an overtrick at No-Trump, losing only one trick in diamonds and two in hearts. Had he bid 4-Clubs over his partner's 3-Spades, East would have gone to 5-Clubs, which would have been set through the loss of one trick in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 10 9 6 ♥ J 8 2 ♦ 10 4 3 2 ♣ 9 6 4
♠ J 7 3 2 ♥ K 9 7 6 5 ♦ Q ♣ 8 7 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ Q ♥ A Q 4 ♦ A K J 9 7 5 ♣ A Q 10
	♠ A K 8 5 4 ♥ 10 3 ♦ 8 6 ♣ K J 5 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding which leads West into a slam on this deal, after South's opening 1-Spade?

IN DECIDING close questions between No Trump contracts and minor suit ones, a sound and thorough bidder weighs one factor against another. Holding singletons in his partner's suits will discourage him from No Trump because he can lead only once for a finesse, and may take no tricks in it at all. But having one of his own suits solid, or approximately so, should partly offset that risk, as he seems likely to be able to make a run of tricks there which brings him pretty close to a No Trump game without counting on side tricks, yet leaves him pretty far from a minor game.

	♠ 9 ♥ A K 8 7 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ 10 8 4 3 2
♠ 3 ♥ 4 ♦ Q 9 8 6 5 ♣ A K Q J 9 7		♠ A K 8 6 2 ♥ Q J 6 5 ♦ K J ♣ 6 5
	♠ Q J 10 7 5 4 ♥ 10 9 3 2 ♦ A 10 7 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

East and West showed a misfit quickly on this deal. West began by bidding 1-Club, East 1-Spade, West 2-Diamonds, East 2-Hearts, West 3-Diamonds to indicate his six-five distribution and East 3-Spades, showing his five-four and also the strength to go farther.

West, a sound card counter, knew absolutely that his conventional partner had exactly four cards in the minor suits, and would be bound to have either two-card support for his six-card clubs or else three-card support for his five-card diamonds. But to make a game in either of those suits meant avoidance of three losing tricks, whereas at No Trump he could afford to lose four. He decided in favor of 3-No Trumps because his clubs appeared solid.

The decision turned out favorably, as he made an overtrick at No-Trump, losing only one trick in diamonds and two in hearts. Had he bid 4-Clubs over his partner's 3-Spades, East would have gone to 5-Clubs, which would have been set through the loss of one trick in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 10 9 6 ♥ J 8 2 ♦ 10 4 3 2 ♣ 9 6 4
♠ J 7 3 2 ♥ K 9 7 6 5 ♦ Q ♣ 8 7 2		♠ Q ♥ A Q 4 ♦ A K J 9 7 5 ♣ A Q 10
	♠ A K 8 5 4 ♥ 10 3 ♦ 8 6 ♣ K J 5 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding which leads West into a slam on this deal, after South's opening 1-Spade?

Davis and Larkin Fight Tonight Will Be on the Radio

New Series of Library of Congress Recitals Is Scheduled

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, Dec. 14—Welterweights will be the subject of the prize fight broadcasting scheduled for WJZ-NBC list at 10 o'clock Friday night. It's a non-title contest between Al Davis and Tippy Larkin, with Sam Taub and Bill Stern giving the necessary vocal details.

Another series of Library of Congress recitals will start on WJZ-NBC at 9:30 just before the fight. It will be presented by the Budapest String Quartett, William Primrose, violist, as the assisting artist. The program originates from Washington.

Margo To Be Guest

Margo, Mexican born Broadway dramatic star, appears as the Kate Smith guest on WABC-CBS at 8. She will do a radio adaptation of her play "The World We Make."

Dr. Walter Damrosch, in his WJZ-NBC Music Appreciation hour at 2, will deal with woodwinds and fairy tales in music.

"Yesterday's Children," as conducted by Dorothy Gordon on WJZ-NBC at 7:30 to revive in drama the books of childhood days, will bring Swinging Benny Goodman to the microphone and the same time dramatize the favorite story of his younger days, "Dick Merriwell's Rescue."

Scout Special

A special Boy's Life week program, under auspices of the Boy Scouts, is to be heard on WABC-CBS at 4.

Here's the guest list for Georgie Jessel on WEAF-NBC at 9:30: Fannie Hurst, Charlie Butterworth, Minstrel Lazy Dan and Carl Seagren, musical baker.

Scheduled from Europe: NBS-chains 8 a. m.; WABC-CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55 p. m. and 11; MBS 9, 10:20; WEAF-NBC-east 11.

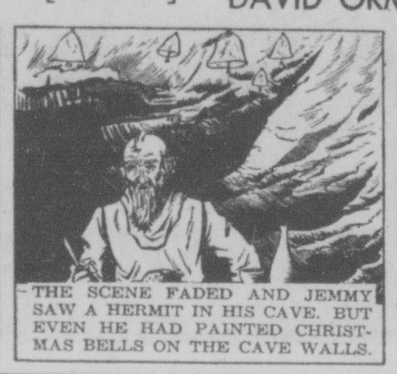
A Christmas Fantasy [Part 11]

By DAVID ORME and WILLIAM SHERB

JEMMY, TRAVELLING WITH THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS BELLS, SEES A POOR MOTHER AND CHILD FACING A COLD CHRISTMAS.

THE SPIRIT SHOWED JEMMY A MANSION FILLED WITH HAPPY FOLK. "THEY'VE SHARED WITH OTHERS, THAT'S WHY THEY'RE HAPPY NOW," SAID THE SPIRIT.



THE SCENE FADED AND JEMMY SAW A HERMIT IN HIS CAVE. BUT EVEN HE HAD PAINTED CHRISTMAS BELLS ON THE CAVE WALLS.

$2,500 Diamond Ring Found in Ice Cube

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—A missing $2,500 diamond ring was found here in an ice cube.

It was frozen fast, but was visible through the ice when detectives, who had searched milk bottles and vegetables, finally hauled out a refrigerator tray.

The ring belonged to Charles F. Frauzwa, a Buffalo dentist, who awoke Tuesday minus the ring and $70 in cash.

Two women who gave their names as Betty Becker, 38, and Olive Hudson, 33, were charged with suspicion of robbery and possession of "knockout drops" after the ring was found in their apartment.

Chamber of Commerce To Show Ickes He Is Wrong on Power

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—In response to a challenge by Secretary Ickes, the United States Chamber of Commerce has announced that it would soon make public a survey which, it said recently, demonstrated that electric utilities can meet any emergency in sight "without further intrusion of the federal government into the power business."

Ickes had said that the chamber's failure to produce the report indicated that it had no such survey. The chamber, he added, seemed to have produced conclusions first with the hope of "filling in your 'facts' afterward."

Four Nations Unfair To American Flies

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP) — The treasury has ruled that England, Germany, Japan and Belgium were unfair to American flies.

Because these countries have provided ribbon fly-catchers at less than a "fair price," the treasury put a special "dumping" tariff on these articles.

France was found innocent of this charge, but guilty of underselling wool knitted berets and was penalized similarly.

A Christmas Fantasy [Part 11]

By DAVID ORME and WILLIAM SHERB

THE SPIRIT SHOWED JEMMY A MANSION FILLED WITH HAPPY FOLK. "THEY'VE SHARED WITH OTHERS, THAT'S WHY THEY'RE HAPPY NOW," SAID THE SPIRIT.

THE SCENE FADED AND JEMMY SAW A HERMIT IN HIS CAVE. BUT EVEN HE HAD PAINTED CHRISTMAS BELLS ON THE CAVE WALLS.

$2,500 Diamond Ring Found in Ice Cube

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—A missing $2,500 diamond ring was found here in an ice cube.

It was frozen fast, but was visible through the ice when detectives, who had searched milk bottles and vegetables, finally hauled out a refrigerator tray.

The ring belonged to Charles P. Frauzwa, a Buffalo dentist, who awoke Tuesday minus the ring and $70 in cash.

Two women who gave their names as Betty Becker, 38, and Olive Hudson, 33, were charged with suspicion of robbery and possession of "knockout drops" after the ring was found in their apartment.

Chamber of Commerce To Show Ickes He Is Wrong on Power

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—In response to a challenge by Secretary Ickes, the United States Chamber of Commerce has announced that it would soon make public a survey which, it said recently, demonstrated that electric utilities can meet any emergency in sight "without further intrusion of the federal government into the power business."

Ickes had said that the chamber's failure to produce the report indicated that it had no such survey. The chamber, he added, seemed to have produced conclusions first with the hope of "filling in your 'facts' afterward."

Four Nations Unfair To American Flies

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP) — The treasury has ruled that England, Germany, Japan and Belgium were unfair to American flies.

Because these countries have provided ribbon fly-catchers at less than a "fair price," the treasury put a special "dumping" tariff on these articles.

France was found innocent of this charge, but guilty of underselling wool knitted berets and was penalized similarly.

STUBBORN HEAD COLDS

RELIEVE stuffiness and misery this proved way: Melt a spoonful of Vicks VapoRub in boiling water, then breathe in the steaming medicated vapors.

THEN AT BEDTIME, rub VapoRub on throat and chest to get full benefit of its long-continued action while you sleep. And you will be delighted with VICKS VAPORUB

How To Make Sure Of a Merry Christmas

AP Feature Service

Christmas is the merriest season of the year, but it's also one of the most dangerous, the National Safety Council points out. December usually is the most hazardous month for motorists; falls and burns help boost December accident rates, too. Here are some things to keep in mind, the Safety Council says, if you want to have a merry Christmas.

DON'T use lighted candles on Christmas trees; use carefully wired electric lights.

DON'T use cotton, pyroxylin plastics, paper or other inflammable objects for trimming the tree; use metal tinsel, and mica or flake-asbestos for snow.

PLACE TREE a safe distance from stoves or fireplaces.

MAKE TREE fire-resistant. This is how the U. S. Forest Service says to do that: Divide the weight of your tree by 4 and whatever the result is, buy that many pounds of ammonium sulphate and dissolve it in water, 1½ pints of water to each pound of ammonium sulphate. Cut the end of your tree trunk on a diagonal, put some solution in a jar and stick the diagonal butt into the solution. Add solution as the tree drinks it up.

COTTON WHISKERS or cotton trimming on his suit is very dangerous for Santa Claus. They can be made fire-resistant by dipping or spraying them with a 15 per cent solution of sulphide of ammonia.

NEVER LEAVE a lighted tree unguarded at any time.

REMOVE TREE from house before it becomes dry.

KEEP CANDLES and open lights away from window curtains, paper wreaths or bells.

DRIVE CAREFULLY.

IF THE WEATHER is icy, put plenty of salt and sand on steps and sidewalk.

BE WARY of Christmas "spirits."

Holiday Shopping Easy Compared To First Lady's

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"How many Christmas presents do you give?" an inquiring reporter asked Mrs. Roosevelt at her last press conference.

"I hope I shall never know," laughingly answered the First Lady.

And the wonder grows at the unbelievable number of things she is able to accomplish. Take Christmas, for instance. It would seem to be a year's job in itself. Yet she manages it by doing her Christmas shopping all the year round. When she visits projects during the spring and summer where such colonial industries as hand-woven spreads, runners, table doilies and towels, have been revived, she is a generous buyer. Handicrafts made by the blind find her an ardent patron. She buys toys made by the physical handicapped, but it's safe to say little soldiers are not among her purchases.

Recently at her press conference, someone asked if the published statement that she had bought a hundred dozen handkerchiefs for Christmas gifts was true. "Not quite so many," she said, "only a hundred boxes of handkerchiefs containing three each."

Big Tree and Gifts

At the White House there are always three Christmas trees loaded with gifts, and these in addition to presents sent by express and parcel post. There is an enormous tree in the East Room, on which the White House tourists may gloat, and have the feeling prevalent in this administration that the White House is the people's house and that they have a share in it.

There is a second tree for the White House entourage, which contains a gift for everyone, from the secretariat down to the potato peeler and the man who takes out the ashes. Not only is everyone on the White House payroll included, but their families as well. Wives, children, sometimes grandchildren come to the big tree to be received by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and get a warm handshake and a present besides.

Tree For Family

Then there is the family tree, outside the President's bedroom door, where the family, even to "their visiters and their cousins and their aunts", is remembered. Hyde Park gets its full quota of gifts, and there are innumerable presents which go to New York, not only to friends and relatives, but to charitable organizations in which Mrs. Roosevelt has been interested. No wonder she confessed she had no idea of the number of presents given at Christmas.

But a rigid card catalogue is kept with the names and addresses of everyone receiving a gift from the President and his wife. The gifts are written in, so that there may be no duplication of last year's, or the year-before presents.

Someone once asked Mrs. Roosevelt to define Christmas, and she answered, "It's the way we'd like to feel toward everyone all during the year."

In Dismal Alley

Last Christmas it was my privilege to go with the President's wife on some of her Christmas rounds. After distributing baskets of food to the needy, she wound up the day at a dismal alley known as Snow's Court, to sing Christmas carols with the alley dwellers. There was a drizzling rain. The residents of the court were of the class known as underprivileged. Youngsters too small to stand were held up by parents and all joined in singing "Holy Night."

And after Mrs. Roosevelt had seen that the other newspaper reporter and myself had been comfortably deposited in her car and delivered to our own doors, we discovered a secret about the First Lady's Christmas. We heard she had slipped into St. Thomas' Church alone to attend the midnight service and sat in the last pew to escape recognition.

In Love with a Married Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've fallen deeply in love with a man who is separated from his wife but not divorced. He often asks me to go out with him, and while I have gone a time or two, I hesitate to make it a habit. He and his wife have not been living together for almost a year, and as he says nothing about divorce, I don't know what to do. Should I accept further invitations, or should I drop him entirely?

MARGARET

If the man is not actually divorced, he is really another woman's husband in the eyes of the law. I knew of a certain man who was "separated" from his wife for many

Of All the Cheek!

By HELEN FOLLETT

HOLLOW cheeks bothering you? They make one look gaunt and hungry. Fashion artists like to draw their paper ladies to look like that, but in real life it doesn't go over so well. Health is fashionable. Certainly the best feller doesn't want to drag a wraith to the party, doesn't want his pretty posie to look as if she is going to wilt before the evening is half over.

The muscles of the face must be developed, tissues firmed. A yawning exercise is recommended. Open the mouth wide, pull the lip corners far back. Blow up toy balloons; that's another good stunt. Blow like everything. These diversions strengthen the trumpeter's muscles.

Every night, after the face has been washed with a bland soap and warm water, dry the surface thoroughly. Spread on a heavy cream, working upward from the chin. Place the fingers and thumbs over the cheeks and claw, pulling out the flesh as far as you can. A few minutes of this treatment, then skip around with an ice cube to get blood streams going faster. Let the cream remain on over night.

In the morning apply cold water; you won't need soap then. Use the ice again. Help along this good work by drinking a glass of cream and milk, half and half, with each meal.

No rouge. It forms a shadow, makes cheeks look even hollower.

Combined with coppery-colored hair, the cherry or geranium lipstick is terrible. The redhead must choose her complexion batik with care. Nothing should be used that clashes with the color of her flaming halo, which is her chief beauty asset.

VIRGINIA DALE . . . full cheeks give her face a pleasing contour.

Red hair is of varying tones so there can be no hard and fast rules. Pay little attention to the color of the skin, which is usually fair, or the color of her eyes. Concentrate on the matter of matching tresses and lipstick so there will not be a color war that will knock one out of beauty form.

Dorothy Lamour Wins Hair Cutting Tilt

Hollywood, Dec. 14 (AP)—Dorothy Lamour won the hair-cutting argument.

She was asked by twentieth Century studio to cut her long locks for the role of a night club singer but Dorothy said, "No, never."

After testing her with sundry hair get-ups, the studio settled on bangs.

FALSE TEETH

Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store. —Advertisement

How To Make Sure Of a Merry Christmas

AP Feature Service

Christmas is the merriest season of the year, but it's also one of the most dangerous, the National Safety Council points out. December usually is the most hazardous month for motorists; falls and burns help boost December accident rates, too. Here are some things to keep in mind, the Safety Council says, if you want to have a merry Christmas.

DON'T use lighted candles on Christmas trees; use carefully wired electric lights.

DON'T use cotton, pyroxylin plastics, paper or other inflammable objects for trimming the tree; use metal tinsel, and mica or flake-asbestos for snow.

BE SURE your ladder is safe before you hang decorations.

PLACE TREE a safe distance from stoves or fireplaces.

MAKE TREE fire-resistant. This is how the U. S. Forest Service says to do that: Divide the weight of your tree by 4 and whatever the result is, buy that many pounds of ammonium sulphate and dissolve it in water, 1½ pints of water to each pound of ammonium sulphate. Cut the end of your tree trunk on a diagonal, put some solution in a jar and stick the diagonal butt into the solution. Add solution as the tree drinks it up.

COTTON WHISKERS or cotton trimming on his suit is very dangerous for Santa Claus. They can be made fire-resistant by dipping or spraying them with a 15 per cent solution of sulphide of ammonia.

NEVER LEAVE a lighted tree unguarded at any time.

REMOVE TREE from house before it becomes dry.

KEEP CANDLES and open lights away from window curtains, paper wreaths or bells.

DRIVE CAREFULLY.

BE WARY of Christmas "spirits."

Holiday Shopping Easy Compared To First Lady's

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"How many Christmas presents do you give?" an inquiring reporter asked Mrs. Roosevelt at her last press conference.

"I hope I shall never know," laughingly answered the First Lady.

And the wonder grows at the unbelievable number of things she is able to accomplish. Take Christmas, for instance. It would seem to be a year's job in itself. Yet she manages it by doing her Christmas shopping all the year round. When she visits projects during the spring and summer where such colonial industries as hand-woven spreads, runners, table doilies and towels, have been revived, she is a generous buyer. Handicrafts made by the blind find her an ardent patron. She buys toys made by the physical handicapped, but it's safe to say little soldiers are not among her purchases.

Recently at her press conference, someone asked if the published statement that she had bought a hundred dozen handkerchiefs for Christmas gifts was true. "Not quite so many," she said, "only a hundred boxes of handkerchiefs containing three each."

Big Tree and Gifts

At the White House there are always three Christmas trees loaded with gifts, and these in addition to presents sent by express and parcel post. There is an enormous tree in the East Room, on which the White House tourists may gloat, and have the feeling prevalent in this administration that the White House is the people's house and that they have a share in it.

There is a second tree for the visiters and their cousins and their aunts", is remembered. Hyde Park gets it full quota of gifts, and there are innumerable presents which go to New York, not only to friends and relatives, but to charitable organizations in which Mrs. Roosevelt has been interested. No wonder she confessed she had no idea of the number of presents given at Christmas.

Good Manners Will Be Acquired Under Examples

Parents Should Help To Inculcate Them in the Home

By GARRY C. MYERS, PhD.

We are anxious to have our children learn good manners, since we wish that others think well of them. Back of this wish is the stronger hidden wish to have others think well of us, the parents of these children. We know that our own manners are measured by the manners of our children.

This hidden wish of ours is a constant hindrance to our success at cultivating good manners in our children. Even at an early age these children sense our hidden motives and resent our urgings about their manners. Since for them to acquire good manners costs them effort, they hardly feel enthusiastic about expending this effort just to satisfy the pride and vanity of their parents.

Our children would be so much more ready to co-operate with us in respect to good manners if they felt that the learning and practice of good manners were to their personal advantage, if they discerned that good manners would, in the long run, make them happier and more likable—facts which rarely are discovered by children until they are nearly grown.

How shall we help our children ascertain much earlier than they usually do the real purpose and nature of good manners? Just to tell them so might not be very effective, especially if at one time they heard us say how glad they will be some day to have learned good manners, and at another time how ashamed we are that they have such terrible manners.

First of all, we parents need to exercise good manners towards our children and toward others in our children's presence. We need to be constant and consistent. How well we practice the nice amenities of social grace toward our children, and toward each other, during the hours and days in the family when we have no "company," will determine chiefly our success at making our children want to have good manners. The very emphasis we tend to put on manners when we are hosts or guests magnify, in contrast, our delinquencies in the social graces at other times and our children's belief that our purposes are selfish.

What It Means

To have good manners all the time, everywhere, especially among our own loved ones and closest friends is to be unselfish, considerate, gracious.

Good manners tend to express themselves in the person who habitually is thoughtful and considerate of others, of whom we might say. "He has abundance of the Grace of God in his heart." Naturally, he is sensitive to the social conventions and eager to observe them. He knows there are certain accepted ways of showing proper consideration for others and he makes these ways his ways.

Whatever we can do to help our children grow more considerate of the rights and feelings of others builds in them the basic spirit of good manners.

Would you like to have a list of books on manners for children and youths to read? Then write me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What do you think of having the child wash out his mouth with soap after saying some naughty words?

A. I don't think much of it. A quiet, truthful remark, "We don't say such things in our home," might suffice. Otherwise, forbid and prescribe a penalty as for any other disobedience. Most efforts at suiting the penalty to the offense are childish and absurd.

PATTERN 9255

When days are cold and gray outside, make sunshine indoors by wearing this bright housedress, Marian Martin's Pattern 9255. It takes no time at all to stitch up under the Sew Chart's clear guidance. Isn't the curve of the yokes charming? You might like them in pretty contrast, with perhaps short sleeves, back bodice and optional pockets to match. Made in a checked fabric, the bias-cut side panels of the skirt, front and back, show up effectively. For an "at home" style, have a low neck and short sleeves, but if you want this dress for undercoat wear, make it with a round neckline and long, full sleeves.

Pattern 9255 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 35 inch fabric and 1 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Fashion is at your finger-tips . . with a Marian Martin winter pattern book in your hands! For your ten nimble fingers plus page after page of her easy patterns add up to sure style success. This book offers a fine selection of suits, dresses and coats, whether you're a career woman, socialite, housewife or co-ed. There are tailoreds, day and evening frocks, cheery home styles, youngster togs and gift ideas for everyone. Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Good Manners Will Be Acquired Under Examples

Parents Should Help To Inculcate Them in the Home

By GARRY C. MYERS, PhD.

We are anxious to have our children learn good manners, since we wish that others think well of them. Back of this wish is the stronger hidden wish to have others think well of us, the parents of these children. We know that our own manners are measured by the manners of our children.

This hidden wish of ours is a constant hindrance to our success at cultivating good manners in our children. Even at an early age these children sense our hidden motives and resent our urgings about their manners. Since for them to acquire good manners costs them effort, they hardly feel enthusiastic about expending this effort just to satisfy the pride and vanity of their parents.

Our children would be so much more ready to co-operate with us in respect to good manners if they felt that the learning and practice of good manners were to their personal advantage, if they discerned that good manners would, in the long run, make them happier and more likable—facts which rarely are discovered by children until they are nearly grown.

How shall we help our children ascertain much earlier than they usually do the real purpose and nature of good manners? Just to tell them so might not be very effective, especially if at one time they heard us say how glad they will be some day to have learned good manners, and at another time how ashamed we are that they have such terrible manners.

First of all, we parents need to exercise good manners towards our children and toward others in our children's presence. We need to be constant and consistent. How well we practice the nice amenities of social grace toward our children, and toward each other, during the hours and days in the family when we have no "company," will determine chiefly our success at making our children want to have good manners. The very emphasis we tend to put on manners when we are hosts or guests magnify, in contrast, our delinquencies in the social graces at other times and our children's belief that our purposes are selfish.

What It Means

To have good manners all the time, everywhere, especially among our own loved ones and closest friends is to be unselfish, considerate, gracious.

Good manners tend to express themselves in the person who habitually is thoughtful and considerate of others, of whom we might say, "He has abundance of the Grace of God in his heart." Naturally, he is sensitive to the social conventions and eager to observe them. He knows there are certain accepted ways of showing proper consideration for others and he makes these ways his ways.

Whatever we can do to help our children grow more considerate of the rights and feelings of others builds in them the basic spirit of good manners.

Would you like to have a list of books on manners for children and youths to read? Then write me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What do you think of having the child wash out his mouth with soap after saying some naughty words?

A. I don't think much of it. A quiet, truthful remark, "We don't say such things in our home," might suffice. Otherwise, forbid and prescribe a penalty as for any other disobedience. Most efforts at suiting the penalty to the offense are childish and absurd.

The Angel's Visit

—Bassano (1510-1592)
Metropolitan Museum Of Art

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them . . . and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. ST. LUKE (Chapter 2).

years. He had a grand time having affairs with other girls, as he could always say "I'm not in a position to marry." I understand he paid his wife large sums of money not to get a divorce, because that would have interfered with his freedom. As you say you are "deeply in love" you've got to watch your step. If you have marriage in view, be sure that he's going to get a divorce.

Whether you accept an occasional invitation depends on your own standards. It's a trying situation, and you have my sympathy and good wishes.

The Road to Unhappiness

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was happy enough until I met Her. She is one of those girls who takes a man by storm. She is pretty, has a good background, and I couldn't understand why she rushed me. Naturally, I was flattered. The other fellows in the crowd—I was the latest addition—seemed to stand off as if waiting, which puzzled me at first.

Then without warning she dropped me, and then I heard this was an old habit of hers. Before long, I saw her do the same thing to the "next." I was terribly disappointed at first, but soon got over it. I intend to pay back that lady in her own coin. How—when—where, I don't know, but some day.

RUSHEE

The type of girl about which you write usually pays herself back and with compound interest. In her mad rush after thrills, she loses all seense of values. Thrill seekers make bad life partners, but this you may be slow to realize while the wound smarts.

Self-Educated Are Successful, Too

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is it really necessary to have a college education to become a writer of short stories? It is entirely out of the question for me to go to college because of financial conditions at home.

I still go to high school and you'll probably think I'm just a silly kid, as the grownups in my family do. But I'm serious, and it will mean so much to me if you answer my letter. I read your column every day, but have never seen anything to cover my problem. Please help me.

WONDERING

If I were to give you the names of outstanding authors who have never been to college, it would swamp this page. Upon receipt of a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you a list of some good books for beginners, which you may be able to obtain at your public library.

$3,000 a Year Job Has Few Applicants

Baltimore, Dec. 13 (AP) — The State Board of Correction looked over an attractive $3,000 a year state job today, and wondered why there isn't stronger competition for it.

The job, that of superintendent of the women's section at the House of Correction at Jessups, will be filled within a few weeks providing an eligible list can be created from the small list of applicants.

The lack of interest in the post puzzles Willis R. Jones, chairman of the board of correction.

"We've had complaints in the past that Maryland women haven't received enough consideration when state jobs were filled," he said. "In the specifications for this one, we made residence in Maryland for two years or more a requisite. But the women still have not responded.

"I know there are plenty of capable and intelligent women who can fill the job, but we haven't heard from them."

The deadline for filing applications is Dec. 15. In addition to the salary, the post provides an apartment and maintenance.

Quints Use Typewriter Donated by American

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 14 (AP)—That clattering you hear out in the Dionne quintuplets' nursery isn't a new war—it's five typewriters.

Each of the little girls, now in their sixth year, has a specially constructed machine. They have daily workouts in their preparations to become "career girls."

The typewriters, the gift of a United States manufacturer, have keys for French accents, signs for multiplication, addition, subtraction, division 'n everything.

Production in the 13-year-old Ira G. Yates oil field of Texas totals approximately 250,000,000 barrels.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Quints Use Typewriter Donated by American

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 14 (AP)—That clattering you hear out in the Dionne quintuplets' nursery isn't a new war—it's five typewriters.

Each of the little girls, now in their sixth year, has a specially constructed machine. They have daily workouts in their preparations to become "career girls."

The typewriters, the gift of a United States manufacturer, have keys for French accents, signs for multiplication, addition, subtraction, division 'n everything.

Production in the 13-year-old Ira G. Yates oil field of Texas totals approximately 250,000,000 barrels.

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

30-Round Pro Fight Card on Tap Tonight

Cleo McNeal and Billy Bullock in Main 10-Rounder

Local Fans Liked Negro Battler in Bout Last Month

Good Supporting Card To Feature Show at Armory

The Cumberland Athletic Club, otherwise Tommy Maus and Lew Yankelevitz, stages its second pro fight show at the State Armory here tonight with a 30-round program getting under way at 8:45 p. m. Maus has been talking about a sell-out for several days. Whether the wish is father to the thought and the thought to the speech, only tonight will tell.

Cleo McNeal, Canton, Ohio, negro welterweight who made a good impression at the initial offering of the propromoters last month has been brought back to furnish more fireworks. This evening he meets Jimmy Bullock, junior welter, from Greensboro, N. C.

Eddie Ross, Bullock's manager, pipes off that he does not expect his boy to go the way of Vic Finazzo of Baltimore, who succumbed before McNeal's leather in the ninth round last month. The fact is Finazzo really should not have been in the ring, having injured his hand when taking a beating a week previous to showing here.

Good Prelim Card

A good supporting card has been lined for this evening's show, and really seems to be the attraction for the fans if Maus' sell-out predictions come true.

Bill Niland has been training and seems to have taken a setback by Homer Jackson of Frostburg to heart. He will meet Al Hillegas of Central City, Pa., in the curtain-raiser of four rounds, scheduled to start at 8:45 o'clock.

The appearance of "Hank" Lindsay on the card in his pro fight debut against another local boy, Kayo Shrout, has also proven a mecca for quite a few fans. Shrout will be making his pro bow also. He has a fair to middling record as an amateur and should make it interesting for Lindsay. Lindsay got his boxing in college. It is a scheduled four round affair. They are heavyweights.

"Bucky" Walbert of this city, an amateur who is stepping into the pay class, meets Homer Jackson, the Frostburg boy who beat Niland. Jackson came into the pro game in his Niland bout. Walbert has been reported suffering from an injury to his leg but apparently is going to make a go of it despite that.

The eight-round semi-final, slated to go on after the main event which won't start before 9:30 at the earliest, will find Charley Brant, Somerset, Pa., southpaw knockout specialist, opposing Earl Kidd, of Akron, Ohio, a light - heavyweight from Manager J. R. Basco's stable.

Homer Jackson Is Loser in Baltimore

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP)—Charley Gomer, former Baltimore chef, pounded the midriff and face of Norment Quarles into a rich hamburger color tonight to win by a technical knockout in the eighth round.

It was Gomer's seventeenth straight victory. Quarles, onetime southern conference collegiate champion from Hendersonville, N. C., defeated Gomer twice before but tonight he was hammered almost at will.

Gomer weighed 134, one pound less than Quarles.

In the preliminaries Homer Jackson, 150, of Cumberland, Md., ran into a murderous right in the first round from Pedro Sisko, 145, Baltimore, and was knocked to the floor, striking his head. Gamely, he got to his feet but appeared dazed and the referee awarded the fight to Sisko.

Vic Finazzo, 147, Baltimore, and Frankie Lit, 145, Washington, ran around the ring for two rounds and the referee ruled there was no contest. Lit appeared unable to stand up before Finazzo.

Manuel Rosa, 140, Baltimore, won a four round decision from Lee Rosen, 136, also of Baltimore.

Louis Aims To Quit Ring Undefeated, Rich in 1941

By RING LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

New York, Dec. 14.—It will be interesting to see if Joe Louis can get away with the trick he is now planning to pull—something no heavyweight champion has ever got away with before.

Joe plans to knock out A, B, and C in 1940—and maybe E and D, if these unknown quantities are available. Then he will take a quick look at 1941. If Mike Jacobs, his overseer, can produce one final, bang-up, big-money match, Joe will take it, as much to pay his last respects to Uncle Michael as for any other reason.

Then he'll quit the business cold and never fight again. That's the plan.

You might argue that Gene Tunney realized this heavyweight dream of retiring undefeated, rich, and all-conquering, but I wouldn't agree. Mr. Tunney was a two-fight champion, who fought in a lucky age when two fights were enough to win him a million and a half dollars. He beat Dempsey for the title. He defended against Dempsey. Then, carefully snubbing such fairly dangerous merchants at Jack Sharkey, he hand-picked himself a farewell match with Tom Heeney, the inoffensive Rock from Down Under, and got the hell out of there with the loot.

This is no reflection on the manly marine. He behaved with great common sense, and is no doubt a better and happier citizens for having done so. But the point I was making about Louis is that he has fought them all, beaten them all, and threatens to retire not only with something in the old tobacco-box, but with no more worlds to conquer.

This is a trick that Tunney failed to consummate. It was also beyond the powers of Napoleon Bonaparte and James J. Jeffries, both of whom felt the pinch of the times after they retired, and came back to the ring once too often.

Remember, Louis hasn't turned the trick yet. Remember, too, that it's not going to be as easy as it looks. There are several reasons why his grand campaign may be foiled. One is the possibility of a lucky punch to Joe's whiskers somewhere in the next year and a half. Tony Galento, not in Joe's league as a fighter, came dangerously close to tipping the boat clean over.

Another peril is the complicated nature of the fight business, which may handcuff Joe for longer than he likes to think, as it shackled many a good fighter before him. Every time Michael Strauss Jacobs promotes a big fight, he lays the groundwork for further fights, willy-nilly. It's the old treadmill. Taxes must be paid, investments must be protected, further deals must be arranged.

Has All Money He Needs

Talking to Louis the other evening, I felt sure, for the first time, that he can dispense with the fight business from now on. He has all the money he'll ever need, he plans no ventures which will require further capital, and he has no wish for more fights. The same applies to his managers.

It's a point of pride with them to clean up certain scattered tags of unfinished business—this winter's bookings, fights with Conn and Nova if they qualify, and a return match with the boisterous Galento.

"I gotta take care of those things" said Louis the other night, speaking a piece for the stable. "I wanta show Galento can't knock me down when he wants to. I don't wanta quit and then people say I couldn't beat Billy Conn. I'll fight Conn whenever he's ready. Nova too. And Farr, and all them boys. But it's gotta be quick. I'm pretty near ready to leave this business."

As far as the Louis stable is concerned, one year's work will take care of all this. But already—and here's where the danger looms—they have vaguely committeed themselves to one more outdoor fight in 1941 for Mike Jacobs. I do not wish to introduce a coarse note to this discussion, but that "one more fight" has a faintly familiar sound. It's like the guy who is out late with some drunk, and says, "all right, just one more," to humor the lush, in the hope of finally getting him home to bed.

The drunk in this case is the fight business. Louis can get along without the fight business, but can the fight business, as it stands today, get along without Louis? And will Joe have the strength of mind to leave it anyway, committeed as he feels himself to be the drunk's wife (in a manner of speaking), Mike Jacobs?

In our book, it's still no better than even money that the boy can get away with it.

Eight Golfers in First Round Tie In Miami Open

Score Two-Under-Par 68's with Byron Nelson in Group

By LARRY ROLLINS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP) — Eight golfers, among them National open champion Byron Nelson, scored two-under-par 68's today to share the first round lead in the $10,000 Miami open.

Battling for the year's professional supremacy, Nelson played steady, unspectacular golf to put together a pair of 34's and forge two strokes ahead of his rival, Henry Picard, in their feud for the Harry Vardon trophy. P. G. A. champion Picard, who equalled par on each nine for his 70, leads Nelson by five points for the full year's competition.

Others in Group

Even with Nelson at the end of a par-shattering round in which twenty-two golfers bettered regulation figures were Ralph Guldahl, two-time National open champion; Sam Snead, the slugging White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., husky starting a comeback after a siege of illness; Jimmy Hines, of New York; Dick Metz, of Chicago; Stanley Horne, of Montreal; Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N. C., and Art Clark, of Uniontown, Pa.

Fourteen others, including an amateur, Wilford Wehrle, of Chicago, clipped a stroke off par with 69's. The professionals at that notch were Craig Wood, of New York; Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia; Jim Turnesa, of Providence, R. I.; Maurrie O'Connor, of Belleville, N. J.; Jimmy McHale, of Saranac, N. Y.; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark.; Frank More, of Reading, Pa.; Joe Turnesa, of Rockville Center, N. Y.; Denny Shute, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Marvin Stahl, of Lansing, Mich.; Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y.; Ralph Hutchinson, of Bethlehem, Pa., and Paul Runyan, of White Plains.

Other Scores

Picard, who made a birdie and a bogie of each side, shared the 70 spot with Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Boston, last year's Miami open winner; Johnny Revolta, of Chicago; Bill Heinlein, of Indianapolis; Felix Serafin, of Scranton, Pa.; Frank Walsh, of Deal, N. J.; Henry Poe, of Reading, Pa., and Sam Byrd, of Philadelphia.

Guldahl had the best chance to carve out a clear cut lead. Out in par 35, he clicked off four birdies in the next six holes and needed only pars on the final three for a 66. He made a par 3 on the sixteenth, but bogeyed the seventeenth, where he missed the green, and then three-putted for a five on the par four home hole.

Fort Hill Defeats J-V's 42-38 in Two Extra Period Tilt

Wallace Ullery Chalks Up Winning Points for Sentinels

Fort Hill High School defeated the Frostburg Jayvees at Frostburg last night and got revenge for the opening game record that the future Teachers marred here, but it took Bobby Cavanaugh's boys two extra periods to do it, 42-38.

It was Wallace Ullery who found the range for the Sentinels' two field goals in the second extra period to sew up the long-winded contest.

Leading 9-4 at the quarter, and 20-18 at the half, Fort Hill slipped behind the Jayvees' 27-24 at the three quarters. It was tied-up at 32-32 as the final whistle blew, and the end of the first extra session found the count deadlocked at 36-36. It was tied again at 38-38 but Ullery came through with two twin-pointers to put the battle in the Sentinel win column.

Ullery, Bell and Dean featured for Fort Hill, with Robinson, Connor and Thomas outstanding for the Jayvees.

Tomorrow Fort Hill meets Thomas, W. Va., High here.

No Outstanding Grid Performer Produced in 1939

Nile Kinnick Who Caught Public Fancy Ninth In Ranking

Seattle, Dec. 14 (AP)—The 1939 football season failed to produce an outstanding performer—statistically, that is.

There were no Whizzer Whites, as of 1937, nor Davey O'Briens, as of 1938, who not only caught the popular fancy but who also captured statistical honors as yardage gainers on the ground and in the air.

This was the conclusion today of the American Football Statistical Bureau.

The gridder who did catch the popular fancy, Nile Kinnick, iron man from Iowa, ranked ninth among the season's greatest ground-gainers, gaining 998 yards in eight games. He ranked fourth in average yards gained per game with 124.8.

While Kinnick goes down in the books as the public's 1939 hero by acclaim, three other backs take statistical honors—Kenny Washington, great negro halfback from the University of California at Los Angeles; Tom Harmon, the Michigan spook, and Kay Eakin, the Arkansas Traveler.

Photo Finnish

These three wound up in a photo finish for individual total offensive honors. Washington gained 1,365 yards in 10 games to rank first. Harmon was nine yards back at 1,356 in eight games, and Eakin was 14 yards behind Harmon at 1,356 in ten games.

In the average yards gained per game, Harmon was first with 169.5; Washington second with 136.5, and Eakin third with 134.2.

Harmon's 868 yards from rushing topped the 1938 mark of 831 set by Len Ashmont of Fordham.

Texas Aggies To Take Trimmings To "Sugar Bowl"

Entire Student Body Will "Thumb" Way to New Orleans

College Station, Texas, Dec. 14 (AP) —The Texas Aggies, ranked by experts as the nation's No. 1 football team, will barge into the Sugar Bowl against Tulane with:

A fifty-man squad.

A 210 piece band.

A dog mascot.

And a goodly part of the college's 6,000 cadets.

The cadets, the dog mascot and the band have long been known as the Aggies' "twelfth man." They couldn't play without 'em.

Every man who came out for varsity football and remained, including the ineligibles who didn't see a minute's service, will make the trip.

And that big squad will include Big John Kimbrough, the All-America fullback who suffered a broken cardrum in the final game against Texas. He has been pronounced sound by physicians.

No furore such as has surrounded the Tennessee trip to the Rose Bowl and the Missouri jaunt to the Orange Bowl developed over taking the Aggie band.

Taken for Granted

It's taken for granted that the "twelfth man" will go along. Things wouldn't be right if that massive band, led by Reveille, tiny dog with a big maroon "T" on its blanket, didn't precede the Aggies on the field.

The throaty roar of thousands of khaki-clad "brothers," many of whom will spend days thumbing their way to New Orleans, is as much a part of the Aggie setup as a quarterback.

The Aggie athletic council unanimously voted to send the band, second largest collegiate band in the nation, to the New Orleans classic, expenses paid. No definite check has been made on the number of studenst expected to do, but 1,500 tickets have been sold to date.

Maryland Wins

College Park, Md., Dec. 14 (AP) — The University of Maryland basketball team downed weak Randolph-Macon 47-16 tonight.

The Terps started a sophomore team which piled up a 6-2 lead before it was replaced by the varsity. Maryland's regulars sent the score to 25-3 at one point and were leading at the half 29-6.

Charley Weidinger, converted grid star, sparked the Terps with 11 points to lead both teams. Art Wood and Adam Bengoechea, Maryland forwards, followed in point scored.

The Yellow Jackets were erratic and failed to solve the Terps zone defense. Bill Phelps stood out for the visitors with two field goals.

New York Giants Salvage Glory In All-Star Berths

Get Four on Pro Team While Champ Packers Place One

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Shorn of their team title, the New York Giants today salvaged a measure of satisfaction with the announcement that four of their number were selected for the 1939 national pro football league first all-star team, chosen by a vote of the 10 coaches.

The Chicago Bears placed three men, the Washington Redskins two, and the Philadelphia Eagles and the newly-crowned Green Bay Packers, one each.

Two Freshmen Land

Only four players are repeaters, and for the first time in league history two first-year men—Davey O'Brien of the Eagles and Bill Osmanski of the Bears — were selected.

Mel Hein was chosen for the seventh consecutive year at center, and other players who repeated their 1938 performances were Don Hutson of Green Bay, Dan Fortmann and Joe Stydahar of the Bears.

Hutson, holder or sharer of every pass-receiving record, received 43 points, the highest individual vote. Fortmann was second with 37, with Hein and Stydahar tied for third with 36 each.

Two rookies—Ki Aldrich of the Chicago Cardinals at center and Parker Hall of the Cleveland Rams at halfback,—won second team berths, and three others chosen for the second team were first team choices last year. They were Ed Widseth, New York Giant tackle; Ace Parker, Brooklyn quarterback, and Lloyd Cardwell, Detroit halfback.

Potomac State Is Again Point Loser To Saints 35 to 34

Keyser, W. Va., Dec. 14—Potomac State College again ran into the difficulty of making just one more point here tonight, dropping its second game of the week by that meagre margin to St. Francis College, 35-34.

It was a close battle all the way with the score tied 9-9 at the quarter, 16-15 at the half, favor St. Francis and 27-23 at the three-quarters with the Saints still in front.

As soon as the final period opened, however, Harmon tied it up at 27-all and from there on out it was a nip and tuck affair with Tabscott attempting and missing a foul goal, which enabled Selby to toss in the winning marker for the visitors.

Tabscott paced State with 14 points and, with Hawkins, played a good floor game. Patcher and Budrogovich were the stellar players for St. Francis. St. Francis scored 11 fouls in 12 attempts.

30-Round Pro Fight Card on Tap Tonight

Cleo McNeal and Billy Bullock in Main 10-Rounder

Good Supporting Card To Feature Show at Armory

The Cumberland Athletic Club, otherwise Tommy Maus and Lew Yankelevitz, stages its second pro fight show at the State Armory here tonight with a 30-round program getting under way at 8:45 p. m. Maus has been talking about a sell-out for several days. Whether the wish is father to the thought and the thought to the speech, only tonight will tell.

Cleo McNeal, Canton, Ohio, negro welterweight who made a good impression at the initial offering of the propromoters last month has been brought back to furnish more fireworks. This evening he meets Jimmy Bullock, junior welter, from Greensboro, N. C.

Eddie Ross, Bullock's manager, pipes off that he does not expect his boy to go the way of Vic Finazzo of Baltimore, who succumbed before McNeal's leather in the ninth round last month. The fact is Finazzo really should not have been in the ring, having injured his hand when taking a beating a week previous to showing here.

Good Prelim Card

A good supporting card has been lined for this evening's show, and really seems to be the attraction for the fans if Maus' sell-out predictions come true.

Bill Niland has been training and seems to have taken a setback by Homer Jackson of Frostburg to heart. He will meet Al Hillegas of Central City, Pa., in the curtain-raiser of four rounds, scheduled to start at 8:45 o'clock.

The appearance of "Hank" Lindsay on the card in his pro fight debut against another local boy, Kayo Shrout, has also proven a mecca for quite a few fans. Shrout will be making his pro bow also. He has a fair to middling record as an amateur and should make it interesting for Lindsay. Lindsay got his boxing in college. It is a scheduled four round affair. They are heavyweights.

"Bucky" Walbert of this city, an amateur who is stepping into the pay class, meets Homer Jackson, the Frostburg boy who beat Niland. Jackson came into the pro game in his Niland bout. Walbert has been reported suffering from an injury to his leg but apparently is going to make a go of it despite that.

The eight-round semi-final, slated to go on after the main event which won't start before 9:30 at the earliest, will find Charley Brant, Somerset, Pa., southpaw knockout specialist, opposing Earl Kidd, of Akron, Ohio, a light - heavyweight from Manager J. R. Basco's stable.

Homer Jackson Is Loser in Baltimore

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP)—Charley Gomer, former Baltimore chef, pounded the midriff and face of Norment Quarles into a rich hamburger color tonight to win by a technical knockout in the eighth round.

It was Gomer's seventeenth straight victory. Quarles, onetime southern conference collegiate champion from Hendersonville, N. C., defeated Gomer twice before but tonight he was hammered almost at will.

Gomer weighed 134, one pound less than Quarles.

In the preliminaries Homer Jackson, 150, of Cumberland, Md., ran into a murderous right in the first round from Pedro Sisko, 145, Baltimore, and was knocked to the floor, striking his head. Gamely, he got to his feet but appeared dazed and the referee awarded the fight to Sisko.

Vic Finazzo, 147, Baltimore, and Frankie Lit, 145, Washington, ran around the ring for two rounds and the referee ruled there was no contest. Lit appeared unable to stand up before Finazzo.

Manuel Rosa, 140, Baltimore, won a four round decision from Lee Rosen, 136, also of Baltimore.

Louis Aims To Quit Ring Undefeated, Rich in 1941

By RING LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

New York, Dec. 14.—It will be interesting to see if Joe Louis can get away with the trick he is now planning to pull—something no heavyweight champion has ever got away with before.

Joe plans to knock out A, B, and C in 1940—and maybe E and D, if these unknown quantities are available. Then he will take a quick look at 1941. If Mike Jacobs, his overseer, can produce one final, bang-up, big-money match, Joe will take it, as much to pay his last respects to Uncle Michael as for any other reason.

Then he'll quit the business cold and never fight again. That's the plan.

You might argue that Gene Tunney realized this heavyweight dream of retiring undefeated, rich, and all-conquering, but I wouldn't agree. Mr. Tunney was a two-fight champion, who fought in a lucky age when two fights were enough to win him a million and a half dollars. He beat Dempsey for the title. He defended against Dempsey. Then, carefully snubbing such fairly dangerous merchants at Jack Sharkey, he hand-picked himself a farewell match with Tom Heeney, the inoffensive Rock from Down Under, and got the hell out of there with the loot.

This is no reflection on the manly marine. He behaved with great common sense, and is no doubt a better and happier citizens for having done so. But the point I was making about Louis is that he has fought them all, beaten them all, and threatens to retire not only with something in the old tobacco-box, but with no more worlds to conquer.

This is a trick that Tunney failed to consummate. It was also beyond the powers of Napoleon Bonaparte and James J. Jeffries, both of whom felt the pinch of the times after they retired, and came back to the ring once too often.

Remember, Louis hasn't turned the trick yet. Remember, too, that it's not going to be as easy as it looks. There are several reasons why his grand campaign may be foiled. One is the possibility of a lucky punch to Joe's whiskers somewhere in the next year and a half. Tony Galento, not in Joe's league as a fighter, came dangerously close to tipping the boat clean over.

Another peril is the complicated nature of the fight business, which may handcuff Joe for longer than he likes to think, as it shackled many a good fighter before him. Every time Michael Strauss Jacobs promotes a big fight, he lays the groundwork for further fights, willy-nilly. It's the old treadmill. Taxes must be paid, investments must be protected, further deals must be arranged.

Has All Money He Needs

Talking to Louis the other evening, I felt sure, for the first time, that he can dispense with the fight business from now on. He has all the money he'll ever need, he plans no ventures which will require further capital, and he has no wish for more fights. The same applies to his managers.

It's a point of pride with them to clean up certain scattered tags of unfinished business—this winter's bookings, fights with Conn and Nova if they qualify, and a return match with the boisterous Galento.

"I gotta take care of those things" said Louis the other night, speaking a piece for the stable. "I wanta show Galento can't knock me down when he wants to. I don't wanta quit and then people say I couldn't beat Billy Conn. I'll fight Conn whenever he's ready. Nova too. And Farr, and all them boys. But it's gotta be quick. I'm pretty near ready to leave this business."

As far as the Louis stable is concerned, one year's work will take care of all this. But already—and here's where the danger looms—they have vaguely committeed themselves to one more outdoor fight in 1941 for Mike Jacobs. I do not wish to introduce a coarse note to this discussion, but that "one more fight" has a faintly familiar sound. It's like the guy who is out late with some drunk, and says, "all right, just one more," to humor the lush, in the hope of finally getting him home to bed.

The drunk in this case is the fight business. Louis can get along without the fight business, but can the fight business, as it stands today, get along without Louis? And will Joe have the strength of mind to leave it anyway, committeed as he feels himself to be the drunk's wife (in a manner of speaking), Mike Jacobs?

In our book, it's still no better than even money that the boy can get away with it.

Eight Golfers in First Round Tie In Miami Open

Score Two-Under-Par 68's with Byron Nelson in Group

By LARRY ROLLINS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP) — Eight golfers, among them National open champion Byron Nelson, scored two-under-par 68's today to share the first round lead in the $10,000 Miami open.

Battling for the year's professional supremacy, Nelson played steady, unspectacular golf to put together a pair of 34's and forge two strokes ahead of his rival, Henry Picard, in their feud for the Harry Vardon trophy. P. G. A. champion Picard, who equalled par on each nine for his 70, leads Nelson by five points for the full year's competition.

Others in Group

Even with Nelson at the end of a par-shattering round in which twenty-two golfers bettered regulation figures were Ralph Guldahl, two-time National open champion; Sam Snead, the slugging White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., husky starting a comeback after a siege of illness; Jimmy Hines, of New York; Dick Metz, of Chicago; Stanley Horne, of Montreal; Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N. C., and Art Clark, of Uniontown, Pa.

Fourteen others, including an amateur, Wilford Wehrle, of Chicago, clipped a stroke off par with 69's. The professionals at that notch were Craig Wood, of New York; Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia; Jim Turnesa, of Providence, R. I.; Maurrie O'Connor, of Belleville, N. J.; Jimmy McHale, of Saranac, N. Y.; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark.; Frank More, of Reading, Pa.; Joe Turnesa, of Rockville Center, N. Y.; Denny Shute, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Marvin Stahl, of Lansing, Mich.; Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y.; Ralph Hutchinson, of Bethlehem, Pa., and Paul Runyan, of White Plains.

Other Scores

Picard, who made a birdie and a bogie of each side, shared the 70 spot with Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Boston, last year's Miami open winner; Johnny Revolta, of Chicago; Bill Heinlein, of Indianapolis; Felix Serafin, of Scranton, Pa.; Frank Walsh, of Deal, N. J.; Henry Poe, of Reading, Pa., and Sam Byrd, of Philadelphia.

Guldahl had the best chance to carve out a clear cut lead. Out in par 35, he clicked off four birdies in the next six holes and needed only pars on the final three for a 66. He made a par 3 on the sixteenth, but bogeyed the seventeenth, where he missed the green, and then three-putted for a five on the par four home hole.

Fort Hill Defeats J-V's 42-38 in Two Extra Period Tilt

Wallace Ullery Chalks Up Winning Points for Sentinels

Fort Hill High School defeated the Frostburg Jayvees at Frostburg last night and got revenge for the opening game record that the future Teachers marred here, but it took Bobby Cavanaugh's boys two extra periods to do it, 42-38.

It was Wallace Ullery who found the range for the Sentinels' two field goals in the second extra period to sew up the long-winded contest.

Leading 9-4 at the quarter, and 20-18 at the half, Fort Hill slipped behind the Jayvees' 27-24 at the three quarters. It was tied-up at 32-32 as the final whistle blew, and the end of the first extra session found the count deadlocked at 36-36. It was tied again at 38-38 but Ullery came through with two twin-pointers to put the battle in the Sentinel win column.

Ullery, Bell and Dean featured for Fort Hill, with Robinson, Connor and Thomas outstanding for the Jayvees.

Tomorrow Fort Hill meets Thomas, W. Va., High here.

No Outstanding Grid Performer Produced in 1939

Nile Kinnick Who Caught Public Fancy Ninth In Ranking

Seattle, Dec. 14 (AP)—The 1939 football season failed to produce an outstanding performer—statistically, that is.

There were no Whizzer Whites, as of 1937, nor Davey O'Briens, as of 1938, who not only caught the popular fancy but who also captured statistical honors as yardage gainers on the ground and in the air.

This was the conclusion today of the American Football Statistical Bureau.

The gridder who did catch the popular fancy, Nile Kinnick, iron man from Iowa, ranked ninth among the season's greatest ground-gainers, gaining 998 yards in eight games. He ranked fourth in average yards gained per game with 124.8.

While Kinnick goes down in the books as the public's 1939 hero by acclaim, three other backs take statistical honors—Kenny Washington, great negro halfback from the University of California at Los Angeles; Tom Harmon, the Michigan spook, and Kay Eakin, the Arkansas Traveler.

Photo Finnish

These three wound up in a photo finish for individual total offensive honors. Washington gained 1,365 yards in 10 games to rank first. Harmon was nine yards back at 1,356 in eight games, and Eakin was 14 yards behind Harmon at 1,356 in ten games.

In the average yards gained per game, Harmon was first with 169.5; Washington second with 136.5, and Eakin third with 134.2.

Harmon's 868 yards from rushing topped the 1938 mark of 831 set by Len Ashmont of Fordham.

Texas Aggies To Take Trimmings To "Sugar Bowl"

Entire Student Body Will "Thumb" Way to New Orleans

College Station, Texas, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Texas Aggies, ranked by experts as the nation's No. 1 football team, will barge into the Sugar Bowl against Tulane with:

A fifty-man squad.

A 210 piece band.

A dog mascot.

And a goodly part of the college's 6,000 cadets.

The cadets, the dog mascot and the band have long been known as the Aggies' "twelfth man." They couldn't play without 'em.

Every man who came out for varsity football and remained, including the ineligibles who didn't see a minute's service, will make the trip.

And that big squad will include Big John Kimbrough, the All-America fullback who suffered a broken cardrum in the final game against Texas. He has been pronounced sound by physicians.

No furore such as has surrounded the Tennessee trip to the Rose Bowl and the Missouri jaunt to the Orange Bowl developed over taking the Aggie band.

Taken for Granted

It's taken for granted that the "twelfth man" will go along. Things wouldn't be right if that massive band, led by Reveille, tiny dog with a big maroon "T" on its blanket, didn't precede the Aggies on the field.

The throaty roar of thousands of khaki-clad "brothers," many of whom will spend days thumbing their way to New Orleans, is as much a part of the Aggie setup as a quarterback.

The Aggie athletic council unanimously voted to send the band, second largest collegiate band in the nation, to the New Orleans classic, expenses paid. No definite check has been made on the number of studenst expected to do, but 1,500 tickets have been sold to date.

Maryland Wins

College Park, Md., Dec. 14 (AP) — The University of Maryland basketball team downed weak Randolph-Macon 47-16 tonight.

The Terps started a sophomore team which piled up a 6-2 lead before it was replaced by the varsity. Maryland's regulars sent the score to 25-3 at one point and were leading at the half 29-6.

Charley Weidinger, converted grid star, sparked the Terps with 11 points to lead both teams. Art Wood and Adam Bengoechea, Maryland forwards, followed in point scored.

The Yellow Jackets were erratic and failed to solve the Terps zone defense. Bill Phelps stood out for the visitors with two field goals.

Get Four on Pro Team While Champ Packers Place One

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Shorn of their team title, the New York Giants today salvaged a measure of satisfaction with the announcement that four of their number were selected for the 1939 national pro football league first all-star team, chosen by a vote of the 10 coaches.

The Chicago Bears placed three men, the Washington Redskins two, and the Philadelphia Eagles and the newly-crowned Green Bay Packers, one each.

Two Freshmen Land

Only four players are repeaters, and for the first time in league history two first-year men—Davey O'Brien of the Eagles and Bill Osmanski of the Bears — were selected.

Mel Hein was chosen for the seventh consecutive year at center, and other players who repeated their 1938 performances were Don Hutson of Green Bay, Dan Fortmann and Joe Stydahar of the Bears.

Hutson, holder or sharer of every pass-receiving record, received 43 points, the highest individual vote. Fortmann was second with 37, with Hein and Stydahar tied for third with 36 each.

Two rookies—Ki Aldrich of the Chicago Cardinals at center and Parker Hall of the Cleveland Rams at halfback,—won second team berths, and three others chosen for the second team were first team choices last year. They were Ed Widseth, New York Giant tackle; Ace Parker, Brooklyn quarterback, and Lloyd Cardwell, Detroit halfback.

Potomac State Is Again Point Loser To Saints 35 to 34

Keyser, W. Va., Dec. 14 Potomac State College again ran into the difficulty of making just one more point here tonight, dropping its second game of the week by that meagre margin to St. Francis College, 35-34.

It was a close battle all the way with the score tied 9-9 at the quarter, 16-15 at the half, favor St. Francis and 27-23 at the three-quarters with the Saints still in front.

As soon as the final period opened, however, Harmon tied it up at 27-all and from there on out it was a nip and tuck affair with Tabscott attempting and missing a foul goal, which enabled Selby to toss in the winning marker for the visitors.

Tabscott paced State with 14 points and, with Hawkins, played a good floor game. Patcher and Budrogovich were the stellar players for St. Francis. St. Francis scored 11 fouls in 12 attempts.

Ambers Tops Grove for 'Comeback' Title

Lightweight King Is Top Choice in Annual AP Poll

Ambers Regaining Ring Title Gets Him Nod over Hurler

Tony Galento Places Third with Fights After Illness

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Lou Ambers, the first fighter ever to regain the lightweight championship from the man who dethroned him, has been elected the prize "comeback" of 1939 by the country's sports experts who participated in the Associated Press' ninth annual poll.

The little Herkimer Hurricane, who won his 135-pound title back from Henry Armstrong in their famous "battle of the fouls," barely nosed out the veteran Lefty Moses Grove of the Boston Red Sox for the distinction, with 56 points to 50 for the pitcher. Tony Galento, the heavyweight fighter, placed third with 43 points.

Altogether, 67 athletes were nominated as first, second or third choice by 73 writers. Ambers was the first choice of 13, while 10 plunked for Grove and 9 for Tony. Three points were awarded for first, two for second, one for third.

Ambers Win Clouded

Whereas Ambers' victory over Armstrong in their second battle was clouded somewhat by the fact he was awarded five rounds on fouls, Grove's remarkable performance was clean-cut.

In 1938 Lefty's arm went dead and as he was on the brink of 40 there wasn't much hope he ever would pitch effective ball again. Yet he came back the past season to win 15 games, lose only four and keep the Red Sox in second place in the American League.

Galento's someback was from the siege of double pneumonia that laid the great bartender low and threatened to end his ring career just when he was about to reach the contender class. Also, when Tony made his heroic stand against champion Joe Louis and then knocked out Lou Nova, he wiped out the memory of several malodorous build-up bouts.

Meade Is Fourth

Fouth on the list with 29 points, and the choice of six voters as the outstanding comeback, was Don Meade, the little jockey from South Dakota. Restored to the saddle after being grounded nearly three years by racing officials, he was the leading winner of the season.

Niles Kinnick, Iowa footballer, and Al Hostak, Seattle middleweight fighter, each received four first-place votes. Dick Metz, Chicago golfer; Dutch Leonard, the veteran pitcher who won 20 games for Washington; Curt Davis, St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, and Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher, gained two first-place votes apeice.

Potomac Edison

The Demands won all three from the Powers with Rodman spilling 438. Cook upset 411 for the winners. None of the losers were able to break 400 for a set.

The Watts beat the Volts three games as Brant and Twigg toppled 445 and 429 for the winners. Cowherd and Conley spilled 426 and 456 for the losers.

The Ohms won two from the Amperes with a better balanced attack although Mattingly and Meaders of the losers spilled 490 and 423.

Browns Have Big Chain

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 14—The Browns' poor showing in the American league isn't do to a dearth of minor league farms. The St. Louis club now controls 10 of them.

AS HOSTAK RETAINED CROWN

Collegians Out To Beat Bearded Beauties Sunday

Clash Sunday at SS. Peter and Paul Gym Here-- Prelim 2 P. M.

The Cumberland Collegians are out to repeat last year's triumph when they tangle with the famed House of David quintet Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the SS. Peter and Paul School court.

Tuesday night, the local team showed it could take and win. Way behind in the second period, the Collegians rallied to nose out the Potomac State Catamounts 48-47 at Keyser, ... their opening tussle, the local hoopmen turned back the Texaco Firechiefs of Hollidaysburg, Pa., 37-36 for their other one-point victory.

Last year, the House of David or "bearded beauties" invaded this city and lost by seven points, 48-41. The bewhiskered hoopmen usually prove drawing cards and a large crowd is expected to see the renewal of the series.

Carry Six Men

The House of David squad consists of only six players. They are Jack Cronin and Jimmie Woods, guards; Abbey Acker, Warren Jacques and Matt Sheehan, forwards, and Joe Bellis, center.

Cronin is a veteran of several years' experience with the bearded outfit. Before joining the club in 1935, he played with leading semi-pro clubs in New York. He is six feet, two inches tall and has been one of the team's steadiest and most reliable performers.

Acker started his court career with a Paterson, N. J., high school outfit and later appeared with several semi-pro clubs. The last two years, he was with the Detroit Clowns. Tall and a capable player in all departments of the game, he is expected to be House of David's leading scorer this season.

Bellis, in his third season with the whiskered aggregation, is well-known to fans throughout the eastern states. He played for long periods with the Detroit Clowns and Alabama Pitt's All-Stars. His excellent all-around play has been an outstanding feature of the club's performances.

Small in stature, Jacques, however, is very aggressive. He attended Georgetown University, Washington, and played with that school's quintet. In recent years, he has been prominent in New York circles and was one of the stars of the Montana Field Club of Staten Island which won the championship of that borough annually since 1935. He was with that team last summer when it finished third in the National AAU outdoor tourney in Brooklyn.

Sheehan, a native of Waterbury, Conn., was a member of the Princeton A. A. of Watertown, Conn., which won the Connecticut semi-pro championship for several seasons. Fast and shifty, he is adept at recovering the ball from the backboards.

Woods is one of the most colorful players on the squad and has been an outstanding performer on the House of David diamond aggregation. A slender, black-bearded individual, he is somewhat of a comedian and furnishes the fans with a lot of amusement.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Georgia Tech and Missouri, which will meet in the Orange Bowl at Miami Jan. 1 without benefit of scouting, are exchanging formations by mail, a courteous gesture but one not necessarily indicating that the boys will have to jump out from behind goalposts to surprise each other.

This synthetic scouting isn't exactly a novelty. It is recalled that when Ossie Solem was at Drake, or maybe Iowa, he learned a visiting scout had missed his assignment, so Ossie promptly sent the future opponent a list of his plays.

Then there was the case of two teams whose identity eludes memory. They also agreed to exchange formations. A tight game resulted, and near the end one of the teams suddenly spread out over the field in skirmish order in an intricate play. The other team, baffled by this development, was easy prey.

After the game the losing coach, sputtering and fuming, rushed up to the other mentor.

"Hey, hey," he protested, "that wasn't in that list you sent me."

"Fooled me, too," the other coach blandly explained. "Must have been something the boys thought up on the spur of the moment."

Naturally there is a chance for a little dirty work at the cross-bars in such exchanges, but coaches on the whole are an honest and upright lot who wouldn't stoop to unfair advantage and, anyway, the general style of play of major teams is of such common knowledge that the coaches are not giving away much when they tell how they're going to run off their offense.

In fact, with alumni of the various schools scattered over the country ready to play the part of volunteer firemen and rush up with the basic information needed on the performance of a prospective opponent, scouting would seem a waste of time.

And anyway, it's not the plays that are run but how they are run.

Joe Louis could send an opponent a diagram of all the formations Joe expected to use, including the double fistback followed by a pass, followed by a lateral, but it wouldn't help the prospective victim much. He knows just what Joe is going to do, but stopping him is something else again.

The football scout isn't so much interested in the basic formations of a team.

He's interested in the little things which spell the success or failure of a play—whether so and so moves out three steps or two on such and such a play, and what kind of cheese the guard uses in his mousetrap.

So Coach Bill Alexander and Coach Don Faurot aren't exactly opening their treasure chests and telling each other to help himself.

Hollywood Retains Ardizoia

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 14—Though purchased by the New York Yankees, Rinaldo Ardizoia, southpaw pitcher, will remain next season as a member of the Hollywood Stars. The Yank management figures one more year of seasoning will do him a great deal of good.

Ambers Tops Grove for 'Comeback' Title

Lightweight King Is Top Choice in Annual AP Poll

Ambers Regaining Ring Title Gets Him Nod over Hurler

Tony Galento Places Third with Fights After Illness

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Lou Ambers, the first fighter ever to regain the lightweight championship from the man who dethroned him, has been elected the prize "comeback" of 1939 by the country's sports experts who participated in the Associated Press' ninth annual poll.

The little Herkimer Hurricane, who won his 135-pound title back from Henry Armstrong in their famous "battle of the fouls," barely nosed out the veteran Lefty Moses Grove of the Boston Red Sox for the distinction, with 56 points to 50 for the pitcher. Tony Galento, the heavyweight fighter, placed third with 43 points.

Altogether, 67 athletes were nominated as first, second or third choice by 73 writers. Ambers was the first choice of 13, while 10 plunked for Grove and 9 for Tony. Three points were awarded for first, two for second, one for third.

Ambers Win Clouded

Whereas Ambers' victory over Armstrong in their second battle was clouded somewhat by the fact he was awarded five rounds on fouls, Grove's remarkable performance was clean-cut.

In 1938 Lefty's arm went dead and as he was on the brink of 40 there wasn't much hope he ever would pitch effective ball again. Yet he came back the past season to win 15 games, lose only four and keep the Red Sox in second place in the American League.

Galento's someback was from the siege of double pneumonia that laid the great bartender low and threatened to end his ring career just when he was about to reach the contender class. Also, when Tony made his heroic stand against champion Joe Louis and then knocked out Lou Nova, he wiped out the memory of several malodorous build-up bouts.

Meade Is Fourth

Fouth on the list with 29 points, and the choice of six voters as the outstanding comeback, was Don Meade, the little jockey from South Dakota. Restored to the saddle after being grounded nearly three years by racing officials, he was the leading winner of the season.

Niles Kinnick, Iowa footballer, and Al Hostak, Seattle middleweight fighter, each received four first-place votes. Dick Metz, Chicago golfer; Dutch Leonard, the veteran pitcher who won 20 games for Washington; Curt Davis, St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, and Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher, gained two first-place votes apeice.

AS HOSTAK RETAINED CROWN

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Georgia Tech and Missouri, which will meet in the Orange Bowl at Miami Jan. 1 without benefit of scouting, are exchanging formations by mail, a courteous gesture but one not necessarily indicating that the boys will have to jump out from behind goalposts to surprise each other.

This synthetic scouting isn't exactly a novelty. It is recalled that when Ossie Solem was at Drake, or maybe Iowa, he learned a visiting scout had missed his assignment, so Ossie promptly sent the future opponent a list of his plays.

Then there was the case of two teams whose identity eludes memory. They also agreed to exchange formations. A tight game resulted, and near the end one of the teams suddenly spread out over the field in skirmish order in an intricate play. The other team, baffled by this development, was easy prey.

After the game the losing coach, sputtering and fuming, rushed up to the other mentor.

"Hey, hey," he protested, "that wasn't in that list you sent me."

"Fooled me, too," the other coach blandly explained. "Must have been something the boys thought up on the spur of the moment."

Naturally there is a chance for a little dirty work at the cross-bars in such exchanges, but coaches on the whole are an honest and upright lot who wouldn't stoop to unfair advantage and, anyway, the general style of play of major teams is of such common knowledge that the coaches are not giving away much when they tell how they're going to run off their offense.

In fact, with alumni of the various schools scattered over the country ready to play the part of volunteer firemen and rush up with the basic information needed on the performance of a prospective opponent, scouting would seem a waste of time.

And anyway, it's not the plays that are run but how they are run.

Joe Louis could send an opponent a diagram of all the formations Joe expected to use, including the double fistback followed by a pass, followed by a lateral, but it wouldn't help the prospective victim much. He knows just what Joe is going to do, but stopping him is something else again.

The football scout isn't so much interested in the basic formations of a team.

He's interested in the little things which spell the success or failure of a play—whether so and so moves out three steps or two on such and such a play, and what kind of cheese the guard uses in his mousetrap.

So Coach Bill Alexander and Coach Don Faurot aren't exactly opening their treasure chests and telling each other to help himself.

Moorefield Five To Open Against Loop Champions

Jackets Launch 20-Game Slate January 2 Against Parsons

Moorefield, W. Va., Dec. 14—Moorefield High courtmen, coached by Fred "Tack" Clark, won't open their season until January 2 and in their first test they will stack up against the Parsons High Pantners, defending Potomac Valley Conference champions, on the local floor.

The Jackets will oppose nine conference foes and will meet each in home-and-home engagements. Two tilts have been carded with each Parsons, Ridgeley, Petersburg, Thomas, Romney, Franklin, Circleville, Bayard and Piedmont.

All except two of the contests will be with conference teams. The non-conference skirmishes will be single battles with Wardensville away and Mathias here March 5 when the Jackets close their regular campaign.

Moorefield's squad, with only one regular holdover, has been working dut less than two weeks. Seven other veterans and ten newcomers are on the roster.

Don Miley is the only holdover first-stringer. Others with experience are Charles Bean, Warren Bean, Earl Malcolm, Bobby Bean, Loring Bowman, Carlton Lewis and Walter Shell, all starting their second year.

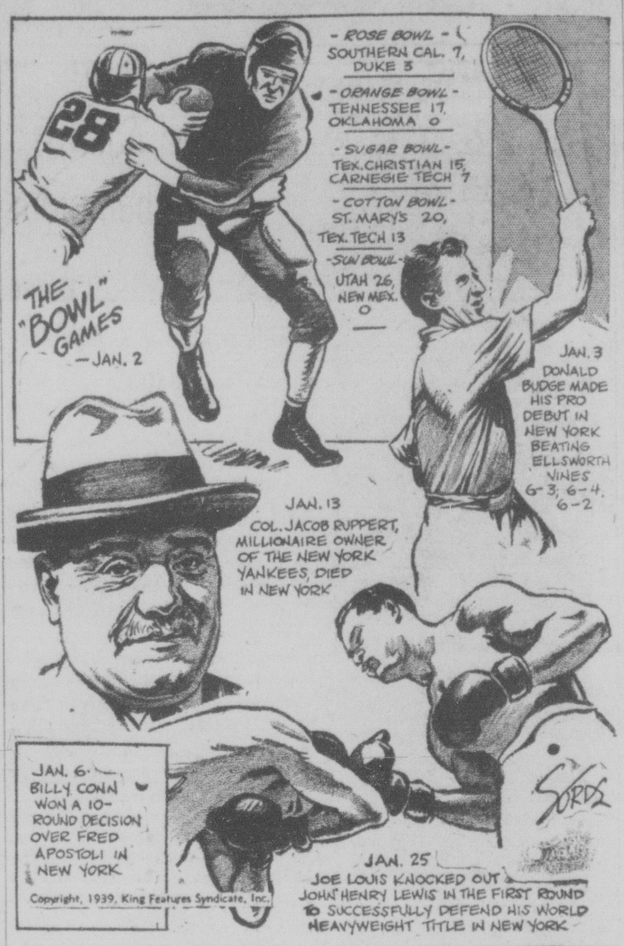
SORDS' 1939 SPORTS PARADE



THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE BREAKS IN THE GAME

No. 1 — Ernie Lombardi.

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 The millions who watch and follow sport see the drifting and the changing headlines slip by. One name today — another name tomorrow. Many of these millions envy the fame that comes in one season to a ball player, a race horse owner, a football star, a leading golfer. They forget how quickly this fame can disappear—how quickly the cheers can turn into jeers, the bravos into boos.

This quick shift back and forth often depends upon the breaks of the game — the tide - run of luck, good or bad, unpredictable, often beyond any human's control.

As a sporting philosopher once wrote, "Dame Fortune is a cock-eyed wench that looks not where she aims."

Almost any winning manager or player will tell you how important the breaks are — what they mean.

What are the breaks of the game?

They are undefinable. Many will tell you that the winner makes the breaks. Not always by a long shot. Just as often "the breaks" make the winner. Maybe more often.

In the matter of breaks we might open this series with Ernie Lombardi, the catcher for the Cincinnati Reds.

A year ago big Ernie was voted the most valuable ball player in the National League. He had been one of the main factors, plus Manager Bill McKechnie, in lifting the Reds from the bottom to a challenging position in a drive for the pennant. He had been one of the season's best and most effective hitters. He had known the black headlines of the press, week after week.

A Year Later

There was no reason why Ernie Lombardi a year later shouldn't have known even greater fame and bigger headlines. For in 1939 he was on the pennant - winning team. He was one of the stars of a team that carried most of his league's publicity, second possibly only to the Yankees.

This brings us to the final game of the last World Series. If the Reds could win this game they still had a chance — with Ruffing, Gomez and Pearson carrying sore arms.

Big Ernie during the series had been outclassed by Bill Dickey, the Yankee catcher. But what catcher today isn't? Big Ernie still had his chance.

Then the final inning of this series comes along. The Reds up to the last inning or so apparently had the game won. Then a messed-up double play between Frey and Myers gave the Yankees their chance.

It was now the ninth inning. Too many things happened in this inning to be reported here, but one of the closing scenes found a Yankee runner bumping Lombardi at the plate. Lombardi drops with a thud. The ball slips from his grip and stops about two feet from his big body.

In the meanwhile, fleet Joe DiMaggio is coming into third. He hasn't reached the base. But Joe takes one quick look at the prone Lombardi. A frantic third-base coach waves him back. But DiMaggio keeps on traveling at top speed.

When DiMaggio is only a few yards from the plate Lombardi suddenly realizes that something is about to happen. A man is about to score from third base when he has the ball in reach only feet from home plate. So big Ernie reaches for the ball and finally staggers to his feet. As he does DiMaggio slides by him for another run, and the packed stands start the call of the wild, the battle boo of the mob.

The Big Change

In 1938 Lombardi had finished his season voted the most valuable in his league. He was the stand-out guy—the top man.

A year later he finishes the season lying on his back in the dirt of home plate—a blazing sun beating down upon him—runner knocking him down and running around the crowd booing and jeering—dazed and bewildered—a heartbroken ex-hero who happened to run into one of those tough breaks of sport.

If Frey and Myers had only handled that double play correctly—the surest and easiest double play of the series—a high school double play—all those terrible things would never have fallen upon the harassed soul of big Ernie.

But they caught him in the big, white spotlight. The glare was on him at that moment, and the hero of 1938 was suddenly the goat of 1939, when Dame Fortune—"the cock-eyed wench"—suddenly turned against him.

"What happened to Lomfardi in that inning?" I recently asked Bill Dickey.

"I don't know," Bill said. "But I can tell you this: almost anything can happen at the plate. It's no safe port in a storm. And Lombardi was in the middle of a storm. You're always likely to be in a storm when that DiMaggio is moving around."

From time to time we'll give you other examples this winter of what the breaks, good or bad, mean in sport. Many of these are beyond any human help. You can call them luck—good luck or bad luck—but they play a vital part, a leading role in the fast-moving history of every type of sporting contest.

Romny Courtmen Will Open Season Durig Next Week

Coac Kyle Hopes To Lift Lidtuesday--But Needs Rival

omney, W. Va., Dec. 14—Potomac Valley Conference games with Franklin, Ridgeley, Moorefield, Petersburg and Keyser appear on the basketball schedule for Romney High School announced by Coach Bob Kyle.

Kyle is trying to secure an opponent for December 19 when Romney hopes to open the campaign here. If he is unsuccessful, then the locals will get under sail December 22 against Alumni cagers.

Sixteen games have been definitely scheduled while three open dates remain to be filled. In addition to home-and-home games with the above five conference foes, two tilts will be played with Capon Bridge and Berkeley Springs while a single contest will be staged with Elk Garden.

Romney will be represented by varsity boys' and girls' outfits and a junior high combination. The girls will play Alumnae, Franklin, Moorefield, Capon Bridge and Berkeley Springs. The juniors will oppose Ridgeley, Petersburg and Keyser.

On the varsity boys' squad, managed by Jack Haines, are 11 veterans. They are Ray Long, Willard Ansell, Paul Harmison, Elmer Sanders, Charles Kackley, Wallace Mauk, Ed Long, Talmidge Newhouse, "Red" Shaffer, Mil Milleson and Buford Saville.

December 19—Open
December 22—Alumni (boys and girls)

Coney-Grantsville Game Halted by Snow

The Central High School-Grantsville High School basketball games scheduld for last evening at Central's gm, Lonaconing, were called off yesterday afternoon at 4:30 when it was evident the heavy snowfll in the Grantsville section would make travel hazardous.

Professor Arthur F. Smith was notified by the Grantsville school officials and immediately busied himself notifying Central players and generally spreading the announcement of the postponement.

Petersburg, W. Va., High plays Central's teams at Coney tonight.

St. Peters at Oakland

Westernport, Md., Dec. 14—Patsy Spano's boys' basketball team of St. Peter's high school of this place will play its first game away from home Friday evening when it will journey to Oakland to meet the Oakland high school team of Garrett county.

The locals have played only one game this season when they nosed out the Alumni team Sunday 30-29 in an exciting battle.

SORDS' 1939 SPORTS PARADE

THE BREAKS IN THE GAME

No. 1 — Ernie Lombardi

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 The millions who watch and follow sport see the drifting and the changing headlines slip by. One name today — another name tomorrow. Many of these millions envy the fame that comes in one season to a ball player, a race horse owner, a football star, a leading golfer. They forget how quickly this fame can disappear—how quickly the cheers can turn into jeers, the bravos into boos.

This quick shift back and forth often depends upon the breaks of the game — the tide - run of luck, good or bad, unpredictable, often beyond any human's control.

As a sporting philosopher once wrote, "Dame Fortune is a cock-eyed wench that looks not where she aims."

Almost any winning manager or player will tell you how important the breaks are — what they mean.

What are the breaks of the game?

They are undefinable. Many will tell you that the winner makes the breaks. Not always by a long shot. Just as often "the breaks" make the winner. Maybe more often.

In the matter of breaks we might open this series with Ernie Lombardi, the catcher for the Cincinnati Reds.

A year ago big Ernie was voted the most valuable ball player in the National League. He had been one of the main factors, plus Manager Bill McKechnie, in lifting the Reds from the bottom to a challenging position in a drive for the pennant. He had been one of the season's best and most effective hitters. He had known the black headlines of the press, week after week.

A Year Later

There was no reason why Ernie Lombardi a year later shouldn't have known even greater fame and bigger headlines. For in 1939 he was on the pennant - winning team. He was one of the stars of a team that carried most of his league's publicity, second possibly only to the Yankees.

This brings us to the final game of the last World Series. If the Reds could win this game they still had a chance — with Ruffing, Gomez and Pearson carrying sore arms.

Big Ernie during the series had been outclassed by Bill Dickey, the Yankee catcher. But what catcher today isn't? Big Ernie still had his chance.

Then the final inning of this series comes along. The Reds up to the last inning or so apparently had the game won. Then a messed-up double play between Frey and Myers gave the Yankees their chance.

It was now the ninth inning. Too many things happened in this inning to be reported here, but one of the closing scenes found a Yankee runner bumping Lombardi at the plate. Lombardi drops with a thud. The ball slips from his grip and stops about two feet from his big body.

In the meanwhile, fleet Joe DiMaggio is coming into third. He hasn't reached the base. But Joe takes one quick look at the prone Lombardi. A frantic third-base coach waves him back. But DiMaggio keeps on traveling at top speed.

When DiMaggio is only a few yards from the plate Lombardi suddenly realizes that something is about to happen. A man is about to score from third base when he has the ball in reach only feet from home plate. So big Ernie reaches for the ball and finally staggers to his feet. As he does DiMaggio slides by him for another run, and the packed stands start the call of the wild, the battle boo of the mob.

The Big Change

In 1938 Lombardi had finished his season voted the most valuable in his league. He was the stand-out guy—the top man.

A year later he finishes the season lying on his back in the dirt of home plate—a blazing sun beating down upon him—runner knocking him down and running around the crowd booing and jeering—dazed and bewildered—a heartbroken ex-hero who happened to run into one of those tough breaks of sport.

If Frey and Myers had only handled that double play correctly—the surest and easiest double play of the series—a high school double play—all those terrible things would never have fallen upon the harassed soul of big Ernie.

But they caught him in the big, white spotlight. The glare was on him at that moment, and the hero of 1938 was suddenly the goat of 1939, when Dame Fortune—"the cock-eyed wench"—suddenly turned against him.

"What happened to Lomfardi in that inning?" I recently asked Bill Dickey.

"I don't know," Bill said. "But I can tell you this: almost anything can happen at the plate. It's no safe port in a storm. And Lombardi was in the middle of a storm. You're always likely to be in a storm when that DiMaggio is moving around."

From time to time we'll give you other examples this winter of what the breaks, good or bad, mean in sport. Many of these are beyond any human help. You can call them luck—good luck or bad luck—but they play a vital part, a leading role in the fast-moving history of every type of sporting contest.

LaSalle Opens Season with Beall Tonight

Frostburg Team Initial Rival of Local Team Here

Ted Rowan, Tall Center, Lost to Home Team for Inaugural

Petersburg at Lonaconing with Several Other Games in Section

Coach Art Slocum's LaSalle high school basketball team tonight opens its season at SS. Peter and Paul school court, where the North Enders will launch their campaign by opposing Coach Eddie Finzel's Beall High courtmen of Frostburg at 8:30 o'clock.

The LaSalle-Beall tussle will follow a preliminary at 7:30, in which Episcopal courtmen of the Junior Sunday School League will tangle with the LaSalle Jayvees, an all-freshman aggregation. "Chick" Imes will referee the main attraction.

Rowan Injured

Ted Rowan, one of the tallest boys on the LaSalle squad, won't start due to a sprained ankle. He had been slated to hold down the center berth.

Coach Slocum is undecided on his first five, but it is probable that William Smith, Francis "Penny" Shaffer, Harry Aaron and Dick Boyle will be among those getting the call.

Three Games Saturday

In addition to this evening's Beall-LaSalle clash, Petersburg will invade Lonaconing to meet Central. Bayard will entertain Elk Garden, St. Mary's of Hagerstown will journey to Berkeley Springs and St. Peter's of Westernport and Oakland will meet at Oakland.

Three games are on Saturday's slate. Fort Hill will be host to Piedmont in the latter's opener and Circleville teams will tangle with Alumni combinations.

Knights, Esquires and Seniors Win KP Tilts

The K. of P. League saw the Knights annex two games from the Juniors, the Esquires two from the Chiefs and the Pages a like number from the Seniors. W. Shipway of the Knights with 191 and 476 was the league's scorer for the evening.

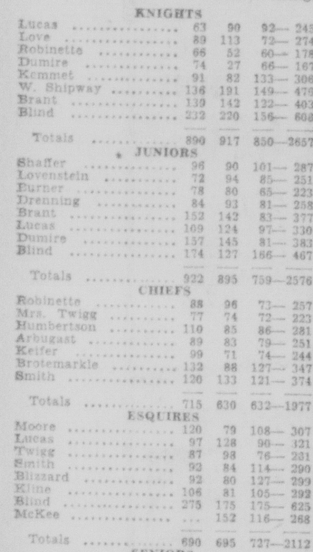
PRO GRIDDER WEDS



Andy Farkas, professional football star, and his bride, the former Ellen Marie Ryan, 22, of Detroit, Mich., a nurse, smile happily after their marriage in Detroit. Their romance began in 1937 when Farkas, playing for Detroit University, was taken to Providence Hospital where his bride worked.

KID JOCKEY SET FOR BIG YEAR IF HE CAN SHAKE TUMBLE JINX

By J. R. ANDERSON
AP Feature Service

Louisville, Ky.—He's been under foot a lot, but take it from railbirds, Jack ("Tumblebug") Flinchum may be on top one of these days.

The 17-year-old Miamisburg, Ohio, apprentice jockey (in race track lingo he's a "bug" rider) has made a promising start despite the misfortune of having fallen or been spilled in nearly every meet he's been in since he accepted his first mount about a year ago. (That's where the "tumble" comes in.)

These mishaps, however, have not daunted the frail little fellow in his determination to become a top-notch jockey nor apparently have they dimmed his value as a procpective "knight of the leather."

His father, Roy Fletchum, reportedly was offered approximately $10,000 for Jack's contract by Woolford farm, but he declined since R. S. Byrum has first call.

Jack won't become a fullfledged jockey in the west until next March 14, a year from the date he rode his first winner, at Hot Springs, Ark.

Young Fletchum comes by his horsemanship through environment because his father long has been a pony and horse trainer.

When he was about fourteen, Jack started working and rubbing horses. Two years later he was boosted into a saddle and his jockey career was launched. He has had mounts at Beulah Park, Hawthorne, Dade Park, Churchill Downs, Keeneland, Oaklawn, North Randall and Latonia.

Owing principally to tumbles, some of which have kept him on the sidelines with injuries for a week or two, the Ohio "tumblebug" seldom has ridden through an entire meeting. Accidents have cost him a chance to grab top piloting honors at several meets, but he's managed to finish second more than once.

With a record that measures up to the sterling yearling performances of such ex-riders as the late Eugene James and Ivan Parke, observers believe the approaching winter campaign largely will determine Jack's future—whether he will become just another rider or advance toward the big time jobs.

If he can live up to his father's boast—that Jack "has been practically glued to a saddle ever since he was three years old"—J. Flinchum is a name likely to appear often in the race charts and in the money.

Pat Comiskey To Get Real Battle In Garden Tonight

Meets Steve Dudas in "Future Book" Show in New York

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Boxing's "future book" opens in three fistic divisions in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Although there isn't a champion in the lot, three of the six bouts on the card have a distinct bearing on the coming title situations in lightweight, welterweight and heavyweight ranks.

Five of the six principals, headed by heavyweight Patrick Edward Comiskey and welterweight Al Davis, a couple of youngsters undefeated as professionals, feature knockout possibilities. These five have compiled an imposing total of 117 "kayo" victories in 217 fights.

Comiskey has been campaigning professionally only 15 months, has gone to the post 24 times and flattened 22 rivals. He is still a far cry from a polished pounder, but most of the qualified experts say a couple of years from now he will be the man for Joe Louis—and few see any chance of knocking off the Brown Bomber's crown until Pat grows up. He gets his stiffest test in an eight-rounder tomorrow against the veteran Steve Dudas, who knows a lot of the fistic answers Pat still has to learn.

Coming Champs

The headline bout on the card, which is expected to attract a crowd of more than 10,000 and a gross gate of $30,000 or over, finds Davis tangling with Tippy Larkin of Garfield, N. J., in a ten-rounder. Davis, who hails from Brooklyn's knockout ending the fistic career of Tony Canzoneri. Larkin has knocked out 29 of 68 rivals, and from his go with Davis may come an opponent in the next six months or so for Henry Armstrong's 147-pound title.

Promoter Jacobs hopes to get a challenger for lightweight king Lou Ambers' crown from the other attraction, in which Billy Marquart, up-and-coming Canadian, takes on Lew Jenkins, right-hand slugger from Sweetwater, Texas, in eight rounds. Ambers must defend his 135-pound laurels in March, and these two were among the likely contenders named by the champion's manager, Al Weill, a couple of weeks ago.

Caidon Wins Feature on Charles Town Race Card

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Jayne Waugh's Caidon forced the pace all the way and drew away easily in the stretch today to win the $500 Art Brown purse, six and a half furlong sprint for three-year-olds and upward.

Caidon covered the distance in 1.21 and paid $5.40 for $2 win tickets. Jadaan was second and Sea Cadet third.

Scoring by fifteen lengths, the longest margin of the meeting, J. S. Latimer's Circus Lights won the second race, and combined with Mrs. W. C. Byron's Trout Stream, winner of the third, to make a Daily Double worth $69.60 for $2.

Has Unique Honor

New Orleans, La., Dec. 14—Tulane university has a unique football record. It is the only school which has been represented by teams playing in both the Rose Bowl and Sugar Bowl games.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR SWIM STAR

An appeal has gone out from the bedside of Georgia Coleman, 1932 Olympic diving champion, for funds to finance an operation that might save her life and enable her once again to swim and dive as gracefully as she did seven years ago. First Georgia, shown in a Hollywood hospital with her mother, was stricken with infantile paralysis. After recovering from that, she collapsed with a liver ailment.

Potsy Clark Consiored As West Virginia Cach

Morgantown, W. Va., De 14 (AP) — Roy M. Hawley, director of athletics of West Virginia niversity, said tonight the name of George (Potsy) Clark, recenly resigned coach of the Brooklyn professional football team, has been added to the long list of coaches being considered for the Mountaineers next year.

"But no one has been selected yet for the job," Hawley added. "We are considering several good men, including Clark, but much remain to be done before a decision is made."

The director said Clark's name had been mentioned to him by Lou Little, of Columbia, during a football banquet in New York recently.

Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn resigned as coach of the Mountaineers at the end of the season to devote his time to practicing medicine.

Heading the list of men known to be given consideration for the $7,500 a year coaching job are Dr. John Bun Sutherland, formerly of Pitt, and Bill Kern, of Carnegie Tech. Both have visited the campus and talked with officials. Authoritative sources said both are considering offers made.

Petersburg at Lonaconing with Several Other Games in Section

Coach Art Slocum's LaSalle high school basketball team tonight opens its season at SS. Peter and Paul school court, where the North Enders will launch their campaign by opposing Coach Eddie Finzel's Beall High courtmen of Frostburg at 8:30 o'clock.

The LaSalle-Beall tussle will follow a preliminary at 7:30, in which Episcopal courtmen of the Junior Sunday School League will tangle with the LaSalle Jayvees, an all-freshman aggregation. "Chick" Imes will referee the main attraction.

Rowan Injured

Ted Rowan, one of the tallest boys on the LaSalle squad, won't start due to a sprained ankle. He had been slated to hold down the center berth.

Coach Slocum is undecided on his first five, but it is probable that William Smith, Francis "Penny" Shaffer, Harry Aaron and Dick Boyle will be among those getting the call.

Three Games Saturday

In addition to this evening's Beall-LaSalle clash, Petersburg will invade Lonaconing to meet Central, Bayard will entertain Elk Garden, St. Mary's of Hagerstown will journey to Berkeley Springs and St. Peter's of Westernport and Oakland will meet at Oakland.

Three games are on Saturday's slate. Fort Hill will be host to Piedmont in the latter's opener and Circleville teams will tangle with Alumni combinations.

Knights, Esquires and Seniors Win KP Tilts

The K. of P. League saw the Knights annex two games from the Juniors, the Esquires two from the Chiefs and the Pages a like number from the Seniors. W. Shipway of the Knights with 191 and 476 was the league's scorer for the evening.

PRO GRIDDER WEDS

Andy Farkas, professional football star, and his bride, the former Ellen Marie Ryan, 22, of Detroit, Mich., a nurse, smile happily after their marriage in Detroit. Their romance began in 1937 when Farkas, playing for Detroit University, was taken to Providence Hospital where his bride worked.

KID JOCKEY SET FOR BIG YEAR IF HE CAN SHAKE TUMBLE JINX

By J. R. ANDERSON
AP Feature Service

Louisville, Ky.—He's been under foot a lot, but take it from railbirds, Jack ("Tumblebug") Flinchum may be on top one of these days.

The 17-year-old Miamisburg, Ohio, apprentice jockey (in race track lingo he's a "bug" rider) has made a promising start despite the misfortune of having fallen or been spilled in nearly every meet he's been in since he accepted his first mount about a year ago. (That's where the "tumble" comes in.)

These mishaps, however, have not daunted the frail little fellow in his determination to become a top-notch jockey nor apparently have they dimmed his value as a prospective "knight of the leather."

His father, Roy Fletchum, reportedly was offered approximately $10,000 for Jack's contract by Woolford farm, but he declined since R. S. Byrum has first call.

Jack won't become a fullfledged jockey in the west until next March 14, a year from the date he rode his first winner, at Hot Springs, Ark.

Young Fletchum comes by his horsemanship through environment because his father long has been a pony and horse trainer.

When he was about fourteen, Jack started working and rubbing horses. Two years later he was boosted into a saddle and his jockey career was launched. He has had mounts at Beulah Park, Hawthorne, Dade Park, Churchill Downs, Keeneland, Oaklawn, North Randall and Latonia.

Owing principally to tumbles, some of which have kept him on the sidelines with injuries for a week or two, the Ohio "tumblebug" seldom has ridden through an entire meeting. Accidents have cost him a chance to grab top piloting honors at several meets, but he's managed to finish second more than once.

With a record that measures up to the sterling yearling performances of such ex-riders as the late Eugene James and Ivan Parke, observers believe the approaching winter campaign largely will determine Jack's future—whether he will become just another rider or advance toward the big time jobs.

If he can live up to his father's boast—that Jack "has been practically glued to a saddle ever since he was three years old"—J. Flinchum is a name likely to appear often in the race charts and in the money.

Pat Comiskey To Get Real Battle In Garden Tonight

Meets Steve Dudas in "Future Book" Show in New York

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Boxing's "future book" opens in three fistic divisions in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Although there isn't a champion in the lot, three of the six bouts on the card have a distinct bearing on the coming title situations in lightweight, welterweight and heavyweight ranks.

Five of the six principals, headed by heavyweight Patrick Edward Comiskey and welterweight Al Davis, a couple of youngsters undefeated as professionals, feature knockout possibilities. These five have compiled an imposing total of 117 "kayo" victories in 217 fights.

Comiskey has been campaigning professionally only 15 months, has gone to the post 24 times and flattened 22 rivals. He is still a far cry from a polished pounder, but most of the qualified experts say a couple of years from now he will be the man for Joe Louis—and few see any chance of knocking off the Brown Bomber's crown until Pat grows up. He gets his stiffest test in an eight-rounder tomorrow against the veteran Steve Dudas, who knows a lot of the fistic answers Pat still has to learn.

Coming Champs

The headline bout on the card, which is expected to attract a crowd of more than 10,000 and a gross gate of $30,000 or over, finds Davis tangling with Tippy Larkin of Garfield, N. J., in a ten-rounder. Davis, who hails from Brooklyn's knockout ending the fistic career of Tony Canzoneri. Larkin has knocked out 29 of 68 rivals, and from his go with Davis may come an opponent in the next six months or so for Henry Armstrong's 147-pound title.

Promoter Jacobs hopes to get a challenger for lightweight king Lou Ambers' crown from the other attraction, in which Billy Marquart, up-and-coming Canadian, takes on Lew Jenkins, right-hand slugger from Sweetwater, Texas, in eight rounds. Ambers must defend his 135-pound laurels in March, and these two were among the likely contenders named by the champion's manager, Al Weill, a couple of weeks ago.

Caidon Wins Feature on Charles Town Race Card

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Jayne Waugh's Caidon forced the pace all the way and drew away easily in the stretch today to win the $500 Art Brown purse, six and a half furlong sprint for three-year-olds and upward.

Caidon covered the distance in 1.21 and paid $5.40 for $2 win tickets. Jadaan was second and Sea Cadet third.

Scoring by fifteen lengths, the longest margin of the meeting, J. S. Latimer's Circus Lights won the second race, and combined with Mrs. W. C. Byron's Trout Stream, winner of the third, to make a Daily Double worth $69.60 for $2.

Has Unique Honor

New Orleans, La., Dec. 14—Tulane university has a unique football record. It is the only school which has been represented by teams playing in both the Rose Bowl and Sugar Bowl games.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR SWIM STAR

An appeal has gone out from the bedside of Georgia Coleman, 1932 Olympic diving champion, for funds to finance an operation that might save her life and enable her once again to swim and dive as gracefully as she did seven years ago. First Georgia, shown in a Hollywood hospital with her mother, was stricken with infantile paralysis. After recovering from that, she collapsed with a liver ailment.

Potsy Clark Considered As West Virginia Coach

Morgantown, W. Va., Dec 14 (AP) — Roy M. Hawley, director of athletics of West Virginia niversity, said tonight the name of George (Potsy) Clark, recently resigned coach of the Brooklyn professional football team, has been added to the long list of coaches being considered for the Mountaineers next year.

"But no one has been selected yet for the job," Hawley added. "We are considering several good men, including Clark, but much remains to be done before a decision is made."

The director said Clark's name had been mentioned to him by Lou Little, of Columbia, during a football banquet in New York recently.

Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn resigned as coach of the Mountaineers at the end of the season to devote his time to practicing medicine.

Heading the list of men known to be given consideration for the $7,500 a year coaching job are Dr. John Bain Sutherland, formerly of Pitt, and Bill Kern, of Carnegie Tech. Both have visited the campus and talked with officials. Authoritative sources said both are considering offers made.

Star Makes Plans

Cleveland, O., Dec. 14 — Alex (Bud) Cook, Cleveland pro hockey center, plans to study figure skating when the hockey season ends. Cook says he hopes to become a figure skating instructor.

nta May Find He's the Dog House

By The Associated Press

Santa Claus will be in the dog use if he doesn't pack along a rain or snow to break a severe ins drought.

Most of the area needs moisture stock and the coming crop ason.

The fall season has been almost nless in the old dust bowl of stern Kansas, eastern Colorado and the Oklahoma panhandle where the dry spell is most severe.

Most seriously threatened are the winter wheat belt and the stock country. Much winter wheat in western Kansas and western Nebraska failed to germinate in the dry soil. The grain which sprouted is dying from lack of moisture.

Timely showers in eastern Kansas have kept wheat growing but dry creeks and ponds force farmers to haul water to keep stock alive.

In southwestern Nebraska, McCook has had no rain for more than three months.

Charles Hezmalhalch, deputy Colorado engineer, estimated the flow of Colorado streams, which are headwaters of such rivers as the Platte, Republican, Arkansas, Rio Grande and Colorado, is but half of normal.

Canning Crops School Set for December 19-20

College Park, Dec. 13 — The annual Canning Crops school, sponsored by the University of Maryland in cooperation with the Tri-State Packers' Association, will be held this year at College Park on December 19 and 20. The meetings will be in the horticulture building and will begin at 10 a. m.

Some of the topics which will be discussed at the sessions are "Practical Control of the Mexican Bean Beetle," "Fertilizing Sweet Corn and Rotations for Canning Crops," "Soil Fertility and Tomato Production," "Lima Bean Production Methods" "Effect of Hormone Treatments on Tomato Yields," "Practical Use of Pea Grading Methods," "Corn Planting Dates to Overcome the Japanese Beetle."

Off on the Right Foot

Fulton, Ky., (AP) — When William H. Stafford of Bradford, Tenn. and Miss Odean Weatherspoon of Rutherford, Tenn., stepped into a Fulton shoe store, all they wanted was information about where they might obtain a marriage license. But J. T. Powell, owner of the store, persuaded them to have the ceremony right there. The couple got their marriage license ,found a justice of the peace and returned for the marriage.

Railroading Will Hit New High In U. S. on Night of December 24

Trains Still Most Popular Item in Santa's Pack for Boys Just as Dolls Are for Girls

Every boy wants a train for Christmas and every little girl a doll

By HELEN WELSHIMER
Central Press Correspondent

New York, Dec. 12 — On the night of Dec. 24, when stars are brightest, railroading will reach a new high in these United States.

By 12 o'clock close to eight million pieces of new steel track will have been laid, and 600,000 new trains will have taken their places on the rails.

None of this pronounced industry will affect the Sante Fe, Canadian Pacific, Pennsylvania or other transportation systems whose locomotives whizz through tunnels and up mountains. America's living rooms are going to feel the influence of this peak in travel.

For children do not change. Every little boy wants a train for Christmas and every little girl wants a doll. Railroading has been the favorite indoor sport of American youngsters since the day when the first miniature engine appeared on a toy counter.

The Train Comes First

One manufacturer whose factories make two-thirds of the trains that will take off on Christmas Eve, has made a survey of children's Christmas wants. The wants are not spectacular or exciting, the officials report. True, there are toy speed boats now that will do 100 feet a minute, turn around, and come back to the home basin. There are airplanes that will do tailspins and sideslips, when a boy opens the throttle at the remote control. These will be desired. But not until the boy first acquires his train.

Little boys are surprisingly conventional, according to the statistics. The report, based on former years' experiences, shows that 20 conventional type of trains are sold to one steam - liner. Three freights are purchased for every passenger train.

This is easy to understand, the men who make railroads for parlor and game - room use, explain. Boys are active creatures. All the best passenger train can do is run and blow its whistle. But a freight may have derricks, cranes, dump cars, freight crossings, anything that the longest freight which holds you up at a crossing has.

Stream - liners had a brief day four years ago, when adult railroads first took them up. But children returned to the old - style because they are better able to study its mechanism.

More Trimmings now

The train a father buys for his son, however, is considerably more complicated than the one his father put under his own Christmas tree. It has so many more trimmings. For instance, now you can buy illuminated stations, park grass for scattering along the tracks, power stations, signal towers, lampposts, standard gauge bridges.

Your living room may have everything the New York Central has.

As for little girls—

While their brothers race to nowhere and back, they still cling to dolls, nad baby dolls are the favorites year after year. New York doll showings, anticipating Christmas needs, recently summed up their gleanings.

The cuddly doll comes first. Some of them have eyes that roll from side to side, some can drink, and many of them can be bathed.

Teen - age dolls of which Deanna Durbin's prototypes are most popular, appeared last season and still are in demand. Clothes for them grow more like real 'girls' clothes each day. In fact, many dolls come with whole wardrobes.

Just as a small boy once was satisfied with a single train and a simple track, so a little girl could hug a doll in its only white dress. Now the train is electrified, and the doll has a dozen changes. Complications of our complex civilization have entered the toy world.

But —

The little boy still prefers the conventional type of train, and a little girl wants a doll that can be cuddled, which leaves the heart of childhood essentially unchanged.

Other Dolls

Of course there are character dolls —"Dorothy" dolls, and the "Straw Man" doll from the Wizard of Oz"; Walt Disney's "Pinocchio," which is scheduled for holiday release, and some of the fantastic people from the production of Gulliver's Travels," also a December feature.

But these are sidelines. Dolls, in child language, should be made to be held. And trains, in the same simple tongue, should whistle.

The toy makers, knowing this last truth so well, have equipped their trains with electric whistles that echo from the crossroads and the bridges. In fact, with 400,000 of these whistling trains plus 200,000 others with their sound systems, it is doubtful if you'll be able to detect the Christmas chimes above the joyful sirens.

THE SIXTH anniversary of prohibition repeal, which fell on Tuesday of last week, reminds us that it is well to take stock of certain social benefits which have occured. Candid study reveals that the Government gets the immense tax revenue from liquor instead of gangsters, the bootlegger is being gradually eliminated, coastal smuggling has virtually ceased, the saloon, in its old malodorous form, has not returned in former force, and it is responsibly reported that drinking among the young has declined. Beyond all this is the changed mental attitude toward the liquor industry and its problems. Instead of being deemed nonexistent because forbidden, the problems are frankly faced and more competently handled by the law-enforcement agencies of government.

Permanent Car Plates Considered

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 14 (AP) — A proposal that a system of issuing permanent motor-vehicle licenses be set up in Maryland was made at the third meeting of the legislative Council today.

Senator Emanuel Gorfine (Dem.-Fourth Baltimore), proposed that the council study the proposal with the view of submitting legislation on it at the next Assembly. A similar system has proved workable in Connecticut, he reported.

Gorfine's proposal was one of five submitted today.

Delegate John S. White (Dem-Prince George's) suggested that the legislature enact "reasonable license fees for vendors who dispense merchandise from vehicles or other forms of conveyances."

Delegate Bertram D. Boone (Dem-Fifth Baltimore), suggested the council take steps to insure that all legislative jobholders during sessions be competent workers and report for work daily.

A plan for exemption from taxation of land scientifically reforested under state supervision was suggested by Delegate Charles Carroll (Dem-Howard). Under the program he suggested the exemption would be limited to the maturity of the new trees and in any case to twenty-five years.

R. Lee Windsor, a Baltimorean, asked the council to seek waivure of the fifty-five-year limit for applicants for merit system jobs provided the person who obtains a job after reaching that age would be ineligible for a pension.

Today's session was devoted to a discussion of proposals submitted, but Dr. Horace Flack, council secretary, said the group could get down to work after the first of the year when factual data necessary for the drafting of proposed legislation would be ready.

Thief Sets Fire to Church When Money Box Is Empty

Glendale, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP) — A thief who didn't find any money in the First Congregational church set fire to the edifice after writing this note on a typewriter:

"Next time leave some dough in this joint."

The fire was discovered before it gained much headway.

THE SIXTH anniversary of prohibition repeal, which fell on Tuesday of last week, reminds us that it is well to take stock of certain social benefits which have occured. Candid study reveals that the Government gets the immense tax revenue from liquor instead of gangsters, the bootlegger is being gradually eliminated, coastal smuggling has virtually ceased, the saloon, in its old malodorous form, has not returned in former force, and it is responsibly reported that drinking among the young has declined. Beyond all this is the changed mental attitude toward the liquor industry and its problems. Instead of being deemed nonexistent because forbidden, the problems are frankly faced and more competently handled by the law-enforcement agencies of government.

Permanent Car Plates Considered

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 14 (AP) — A proposal that a system of issuing permanent motor-vehicle licenses be set up in Maryland was made at the third meeting of the legislative Council today.

Senator Emanuel Gorfine (Dem.-Fourth Baltimore), proposed that the council study the proposal with the view of submitting legislation on it at the next Assembly. A similar system has proved workable in Connecticut, he reported.

Gorfine's proposal was one of five submitted today.

Delegate John S. White (Dem-Prince George's) suggested that the legislature enact "reasonable license fees for vendors who dispense merchandise from vehicles or other forms of conveyances."

Delegate Bertram D. Boone (Dem-Fifth Baltimore), suggested the council take steps to insure that all legislative jobholders during sessions be competent workers and report for work daily.

A plan for exemption from taxation of land scientifically reforested under state supervision was suggested by Delegate Charles Carroll (Dem-Howard). Under the program he suggested the exemption would be limited to the maturity of the new trees and in any case to twenty-five years.

R. Lee Windsor, a Baltimorean, asked the council to seek waivure of the fifty-five-year limit for applicants for merit system jobs provided the person who obtains a job after reaching that age would be ineligible for a pension.

Today's session was devoted to a discussion of proposals submitted, but Dr. Horace Flack, council secretary, said the group could get down to work after the first of the year when factual data necessary for the drafting of proposed legislation would be ready.

Thief Sets Fire to Church When Money Box Is Empty

Glendale, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP) — A thief who didn't find any money in the First Congregational church set fire to the edifice after writing this note on a typewriter:

"Next time leave some dough in this joint."

The fire was discovered before it gained much headway.

Stocks Open Strong, but Decline As Cotton Futures Break Sharply

Much Profit-Taking Noticed Following Recent Advances

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The stock market's rallying fervor cooled perceptibly today as recently buoyant cotton futures broke sharply and other strong staples turned irregular.

Recovery forces were none too depressed, however, because it was realized many raw material prices had shot up to two-year peaks and invited the cashing of profits by speculative operators.

The share list rushed ahead fractions to more than two points at the start, but when the commodity section began to waver, there was a gradual letdown.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .1 of a point on the day, finishing at 50.8. Of stocks changing hands, 313 were down, 290 up and 222 unchanged. Dealings slowed on the sell-off and transfers for the session amounted to 887,450 against 1,061,150 the day before, which was the largest aggregate since Nov. 10.

Happenings overseas apparently failed to spur trends either way.

Colt's Patent Fire Arms rose 2½ in the Curb on modest turnover. Others a point or so higher included American Cyanamid "B," Niles-Bement-Pond, Gulf Oil and Lake Shore. Turnover of 202,000 shares compared with 209,000 Wednesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—Heavy trading, most of it profit taking, kept wheat prices fluctuating rapidly in a very active session today but after early gains of two cents a bushel had established new highs for more than two years the market slumped below yesterday's close.

Wheat closed ½ lower to ⅛ higher compared with yesterday's finish, December $1.01¾-⅞, May 99⅜-⅝.

Early in the session rye and soy beans reached new highs in almost two years or longer while oats sold close to the best levels since mid-1937. Corn closed ½-1¼ lower, December 55, May 56¼-⅜; oats ⅝-¾ down; rye ¾-⅞ down and lard unchanged to 5 lower. Soy beans, however, closed 1½-2¾ higher.

"Eternally Yours" Is Entertaining Film

With Loretta Young and David Niven starred as the romantic team, Walter Wanger's new comedy romance, "Eternally Yours," was presented to a capacity audience last night at the Maryland Theater under the United Artists banner. The new picture is one of the finest and funniest pictures to issue from Hollywood in many months and definitely takes its place as one of the season's top - notch films.

"Eternally Yours" was directed by Tay Garnett, which means that it has showmanship, tempo, verve, excitement and thrills. It is a comedy romance in the best sense of the word — its dialogue is sharp, crisp and witty; its scenes are a delightful blend of romance, comedy and drama; it moves with pace and suspense; it is photographed with imagination and beauty. In fact, special mention must be made of the background shots and special effects which have been woven into the story with remarkable realism.

In support of the two stars, "Eternally Yours" has a featured cast including Billie Burke, Zasu Pitts, Hugh Herbert, Broderick Crawford and Ralph Graves, and each in turn must be credited with excellent performances. Also, it must be mentioned in passing, that the screenplay from which "Eternally Yours" was filmed was written by two of Hollywood's leading scenarists, Gene Towne and Graham Baker.

"Eternally Yours" tells the exciting story of the Great Arturo, a gay and witty magician and his beautiful wife, Anita. It takes this romantic couple to all the gay capitals of Europe where they receive the plaudits of the crowds and lead a very hectic life. The Great Arturo, being a showman at heart, loves the noise and excitement and glamour. But after a while, Anita begins to long for a more peaceful existence. But when Arturo hears of her plan to retire to a Connecticut farmhouse, he refuses to believe that she is serious.

She proves she is by running away. He follows her in a chase which makes him cancel a world tour and leaves him penniless.

"Mountain Rhythm" And "The Ware Case"

Smiley Burnette, popular screen comedian, made a discovery during the filming of his latest picture, "Mountain Rhythm," starring Gene Autry, coming today to the Embassy Theater. Although it delighted him very much, it nearly caused everyone else working on the picture to go without water — or dring from their hands.

When out on location with the rest of the cast and crew of "Mountain Rhythm," Smiley happened to be holding a heavy drinking glass in his hands while indulging in a little impromptu singing. Upon reaching high "C", his voice, on becoming small and fine, retained such a power that the glass shattered into a dozen pieces. So tickled was Smiley, that he proceeded to gather up all the glasses in the hotel and practiced on them with his cellar - depth baritone, doubtless with the idea of someday being able to knock everyone at the Metropolitan out of their seats.

The second feature is the thrill-mystery drama "The Ware Case" starring Clive Brook and Jane Baxter. In addition to the two features you will see the last chapter of the serial "Mandrake, The Magician" starring Warren Hull.

Film Vividly Re-enacts Turbulent History Era

One of the bloodiest and most dramatic periods in all history, the fighting 15th century, will reach the screen for the first time when Universal's Tower of London" open tomorrow at the Liberty theatre.

A year in the making, the new drama offers Basil Rathbone in perhaps his strongest role as the diabolic Richard III, infamous "Crookback" king, and includes some of Hollywood's absent dramatic players in its cast of hundreds.

Boris Karloff of "Frankenstein" and other horror roles also has a powerful part as Richard's ally, the fearsome executioner of the Tower. Ian Hunter is seen as Edward IV and Barbara O'Neil follows her hit performance in "When Tomorrow Comes" with the role of Edward's wife, Elyzabeth.

Nan Grey and John Sutton portray the romantic leads and Vincent Price, Leo G. Carroll, Lionel Belmore, Miles Mander, Rose Hobart, Ralph Forbes, Frances Robinson, Ernest Cossart, G. P. Huntley, Donnie Dunagan and Ronald Sinclair are other principals.

The story centers around the life of Richard, whose ambitions and treachery lead him to destroy five who stand between him and the throne. Among his victims are the "two little princes in the Tower."

Jane Withers Official "Cal" in New Film

Jitterbug Jane Withers received formal notice of her reception into one of the largest swing clubs in America during the filming of "Chicken Wagon Family," her latest 20th Century-Fox film, which is currently unreeling at the Garden Theatre.

Jane rushed about the set showing Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Weaver, Spring Byington, Kane Richmond and Director Herbert I. Leeds the scroll she received, certifying that she is now a full-fledged member of Bob Crosby's "Bob Cats," an organization dedicated to "hot licks" and "off the elbow" music. Signed by Chief Cat Crosby, the scroll initiates the 13-year-old actress into one of the most extensive groups of "cats" and "alligators" in the country.

Jane had met the band leader when both were appearing in Pittsburgh, during personal appearance tours. Between shows, the young actress sat in on several jam sessions with Crosby and his Dixie Land swingsters. At that time she announced a desire to become a "Bob Cat" and Crosby didn't forget.

The jitterbug scroll occupies a prominent position in Jane's big, beautiful playhouse.

Also on the Garden program is "Billy the Kid Returns," starring Roy Rogers.

DOUBLE-BARRELLED ROMANCE

ON THE RANGE

Smiley Burnette and Gene Autry in a scene from the new Republic Picture, "Mountain Rhythm," now showing at the Embassy theater.

Jamaica Inn

Charles Laughton returns to the screen in a story of swashbuckling adventure in "Jamaica Inn" which is playing to crowded houses at the Strand today and tomorrow.

Supported by a lovely Irish newcomer, Maureen O'Hara, and by Leslie Banks, Robert Newton and Emlyn Williams, Laughton plays the role of Stir Humphrey Pengallan, in the screen adaptation of Daphne duMaurier's novel.

The story has its setting along the coast of Cornwall in England, and tells of the wreckers, land pirates who thrived by luring ships to the rocks and stripping them.

Laughton, a debauched aristocrat, is in league with these bandits. In scenes of seething excitement, the picture shows how a pair of romantic youngsters unmask Laughton and bring his gang to justice. Alfred Hitchcock directed the picture for Paramount.

O. Henry Outlaw

The famous, smiling desperado of the Old Southwest, the Cisco Kid, rides again into the Arizona badlands and meets his most exciting adventure in "The Cisco Kid and the Lady," 20th Century-Fox film which opens at the Strand Sunday. But this time there's a new Cisco played by handsome Cesar Romero, a swaggering, defiant, gay romantic caballero as ever O. Henry could have wished. The stagecoach is robbed, a gold mine plundered and badmen die of pistol poisoning—all of which puts Cisco in the mood for love spells a good theater time for all.

Stocks Open Strong, but Decline As Cotton Futures Break Sharply

Much Profit-Taking Noticed Following Recent Advances

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The stock market's rallying fervor cooled perceptibly today as recently buoyant cotton futures broke sharply and other strong staples turned irregular.

Recovery forces were none too depressed, however, because it was realized many raw material prices had shot up to two-year peaks and invited the cashing of profits by speculative operators.

The share list rushed ahead fractions to more than two points at the start, but when the commodity section began to waver, there was a gradual letdown.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .1 of a point on the day, finishing at 50.8. Of stocks changing hands, 313 were down, 290 up and 222 unchanged. Dealings slowed on the sell-off and transfers for the session amounted to 887,450 against 1,061,150 the day before, which was the largest aggregate since Nov. 10.

Happenings overseas apparently failed to spur trends either way.

Colt's Patent Fire Arms rose 2½ in the Curb on modest turnover. Others a point or so higher included American Cyanamid "B," Niles-Bement-Pond, Gulf Oil and Lake Shore. Turnover of 202,000 shares compared with 209,000 Wednesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—Heavy trading, most of it profit taking, kept wheat prices fluctuating rapidly in a very active session today but after early gains of two cents a bushel had established new highs for more than two years the market slumped below yesterday's close.

Wheat closed ½ lower to ¼ higher compared with yesterday's finish, December $1.01¾-⅞, May 99⅜-⅝.

Early in the session rye and soy beans reached new highs in almost two years or longer while oats sold close to the best levels since mid-1937. Corn closed ½-1¼ lower, December 55, May 56¼-⅜; oats ⅝-¾ down; rye ¼-⅝ down and lard unchanged to 5 lower. Soy beans, however, closed 1½-2¾ higher.

"Eternally Yours" Is Entertaining Film

With Loretta Young and David Niven starred as the romantic team, Walter Wanger's new comedy romance, "Eternally Yours," was presented to a capacity audience last night at the Maryland Theater under the United Artists banner. The new picture is one of the finest and funniest pictures to issue from Hollywood in many months and definitely takes its place as one of the season's top - notch films.

"Eternally Yours" was directed by Tay Garnett, which means that it has showmanship, tempo, verve, excitement and thrills. It is a comedy romance in the best sense of the word — its dialogue is sharp, crisp and witty; its scenes are a delightful blend of romance, comedy and drama; it moves with pace and suspense; it is photographed with imagination and beauty. In fact, special mention must be made of the background shots and special effects which have been woven into the story with remarkable realism.

In support of the two stars, "Eternally Yours" has a featured cast including Billie Burke, Zasu Pitts, Hugh Herbert, Broderick Crawford and Ralph Graves, and each in turn must be credited with excellent performances. Also, it must be mentioned in passing, that the screenplay from which "Eternally Yours" was filmed was written by two of Hollywood's leading scenarists, Gene Towne and Graham Baker.

"Eternally Yours" tells the exciting story of the Great Arturo, a gay and witty magician and his beautiful wife, Anita. It takes this romantic couple to all the gay capitals of Europe where they receive the plaudits of the crowds and lead a very hectic life. The Great Arturo, being a showman at heart, loves the noise and excitement and glamour. But after a while, Anita begins to long for a more peaceful existence. But when Arturo hears of her plan to retire to a Connecticut farmhouse, he refuses to believe that she is serious.

She proves she is by running away. He follows her in a chase which makes him cancel a world tour and leaves him penniless.

"Mountain Rhythm" And "The Ware Case"

Smiley Burnette, popular screen comedian, made a discovery during the filming of his latest picture, "Mountain Rhythm," starring Gene Autry, coming today to the Embassy Theater. Although it delighted him very much, it nearly caused everyone else working on the picture to go without water — or dring from their hands.

When out on location with the rest of the cast and crew of "Mountain Rhythm," Smiley happened to be holding a heavy drinking glass in his hands while indulging in a little impromptu singing. Upon reaching high "C", his voice, on becoming small and fine, retained such a power that the glass shattered into a dozen pieces. So tickled was Smiley, that he proceeded to gather up all the glasses in the hotel and practiced on them with his cellar - depth baritone, doubtless with the idea of someday being able to knock everyone at the Metropolitan out of their seats.

The second feature is the thrill-mystery drama "The Ware Case" starring Clive Brook and Jane Baxter. In addition to the two features you will see the last chapter of the serial "Mandrake, The Magician" starring Warren Hull.

Film Vividly Re-enacts Turbulent History Era

One of the bloodiest and most dramatic periods in all history, the fighting 15th century, will reach the screen for the first time when Universal's Tower of London" open tomorrow at the Liberty theatre.

A year in the making, the new drama offers Basil Rathbone in perhaps his strongest role as the diabolic Richard III, infamous "Crookback" king, and includes some of Hollywood's absent dramatic players in its cast of hundreds.

Boris Karloff of "Frankenstein" and other horror roles also has a powerful part as Richard's ally, the fearsome executioner of the Tower. Ian Hunter is seen as Edward IV and Barbara O'Neil follows her hit performance in "When Tomorrow Comes" with the role of Edward's wife, Elyzabeth.

Nan Grey and John Sutton portray the romantic leads and Vincent Price, Leo G. Carroll, Lionel Belmore, Miles Mander, Rose Hobart, Ralph Forbes, Frances Robinson, Ernest Cossart, G. P. Huntley, Donnie Dunagan and Ronald Sinclair are other principals.

The story centers around the life of Richard, whose ambitions and treachery lead him to destroy five who stand between him and the throne. Among his victims are the "two little princes in the Tower."

Jane Withers Official "Cat" in New Film

Jitterbug Jane Withers received formal notice of her reception into one of the largest swing clubs in America during the filming of "Chicken Wagon Family," her latest 20th Century-Fox film, which is currently unreeling at the Garden Theatre.

Jane rushed about the set showing Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Weaver, Spring Byington, Kane Richmond and Director Herbert I. Leeds the scroll she received, certifying that she is now a full-fledged member of Bob Crosby's "Bob Cats," an organization dedicated to "hot licks" and "off the elbow" music. Signed by Chief Cat Crosby, the scroll initiates the 13-year-old actress into one of the most extensive groups of "cats" and "alligators" in the country.

Jane had met the band leader when both were appearing in Pittsburgh, during personal appearance tours. Between shows, the young actress sat in on several jam sessions with Crosby and his Dixie Land swingsters. At that time she announced a desire to become a "Bob Cat" and Crosby didn't forget.

The jitterbug scroll occupies a prominent position in Jane's big, beautiful playhouse.

Also on the Garden program is "Billy the Kid Returns," starring Roy Rogers.

DOUBLE-BARRELLED ROMANCE

ON THE RANGE

Smiley Burnette and Gene Autry in a scene from the new Republic Picture, "Mountain Rhythm," now showing at the Embassy theater.

Jamaica Inn

Charles Laughton returns to the screen in a story of swashbuckling adventure in "Jamaica Inn" which is playing to crowded houses at the Strand today and tomorrow.

Supported by a lovely Irish newcomer, Maureen O'Hara, and by Leslie Banks, Robert Newton and Emlyn Williams, Laughton plays the role of Stir Humphrey Pengallan, in the screen adaptation of Daphne duMaurier's novel.

The story has its setting along the coast of Cornwall in England, and tells of the wreckers, land pirates who thrived by luring ships to the rocks and stripping them.

O. Henry Outlaw

The famous, smiling desperado of the Old Southwest, the Cisco Kid, rides again into the Arizona badlands and meets his most exciting adventure in "The Cisco Kid and the Lady," 20th Century-Fox film which opens at the Strand Sunday. But this time there's a new Cisco played by handsome Cesar Romero, a swaggering, defiant, gay romantic caballero as ever O. Henry could have wished. The stagecoach is robbed, a gold mine plundered and badmen die of pistol poisoning—all of which puts Cisco in the mood for love spells a good theater time for all.

Firemen from the Skies May Protect U. S. Forests

1. In experiments to stamp out "spot fires" in America's forests before they get a head start, the U. S. Forest Service is trying out parachute-firemen. Here's one (a professional jumper) steering himself close to an imaginary blaze in the Chelan National Forest near Winthrop, Wash.

2. He comes down in the top of a tall tree. The jumper wears a special uniform of heavy canvas and a mask, both designed to protect him from harm he plops along the branches. The Forest Service is taking no chances.—each jumper is equipped with a spare parachute, too.

3. The jumper cuts loose and climbs down to earth, looking like a man from Mars. The flyer who carried him out, guided by the abandoned parachute, circles the spot and drops fire-fighting equipment, "iron rations" and drinking water to the man who is tackling the blaze single-handed below him.

Trade Pact Authority Called "Outlandish"

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Authority given the state department to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements was described as "outlandish" by Harry W. Ebberts, Wheeling, W. Va., business man, in a letter to Representative Schiffler, R-W Va).

Urging Schiffler to advocate a repeal of the trade agreements act, Eberts referred specially to the Venezuelan treaty cutting excise taxes on oil.

"Oil is a serious competitor of the coal business, he stated, "and the coal business is the main backbone of the industry in our district x x x.

"There is a serious possibility of the Venezuelan agreement displacing the consumption of approximately 12,000,000 tons of bituminous coal annually.

Natural Error

Fort Worth, Tex., (AP)—Jo Martin and Fenton Clark weren't surprised when the United States army recently invited them to join the U. S. Air corps. Other people besides army officers, misled by their names, write to the two Texas Christian University co-eds under the impression they are young men. "I'm always getting some kind of advertisement for men's clothes," says Miss Clark.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Even if other medicines have failed you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Chronic bronchitis can develop if your chest cold is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. See that the name Creomulsion is on the bottle and you will get the genuine product and the relief you want.

MEET OUR SANTA—

...And get a new thrill out of Christmas Shopp ing!

ONCE upon a time you took Santa for granted. A little later you decided that the good Lord surely must love Santa Claus—he made so many of them! Now—maybe—you don't even believe in the old gentleman any more. So it's time, we think, that you met OUR Santa Claus.

Please get us straight. This Santa Claus of ours is not just one person. He is more people than you could shake a stick at . . . men and women who during most of the year work at their jobs for possibly the same reasons you do: sales people, elevator operators, supervisors, buyers, wrappers, delivery men, heaps and heaps of folks. From now until after December 25th every one of these boys and girls is Santa Claus—the genuine article!

WE SAY this with good reason. You can't be a Santa Claus unless you're ready, willing and eager practically to break your neck just to make folks happy. And from now until Christmas every one of us don't care if school keeps or not as long as we all manage to make your Christmas shopping pleasant, worthwhile and profitable to you.

There are approximately 2,000 of us Santa Clauses. Not all of us will wait on you or guide you through our stores or deliver your presents. Some of us you'll never see; we're away out of sight, wrapping up your purchases, routing them, checking them to see that they get to your door on time, and doing lots of other things.

BUT all of us are on the job and enjoying it . . . not playing Santa Claus for a little while but being Santa Claus. We are enjoying it because it is a man-size chore and because so much depends on every one of us in making your Merry Christmas come true!

Only in Cumberland Will You See Him . . . .

HE'S 40 FEET HIGH!

Standing at the East end of Baltimore street looking down over this veritable fairy land of Christmas joy stands Cumberland's own Jolly Saint Nick . . . Over 40 feet high (you've never seen anything quite like him) with a merry twinkle in his eye he extends a glad hand to you and you and you . . . Wishing one and all a merry, merry Christmas.

Remember—Only in Cumberland Will You Find So Big A Santa Claus

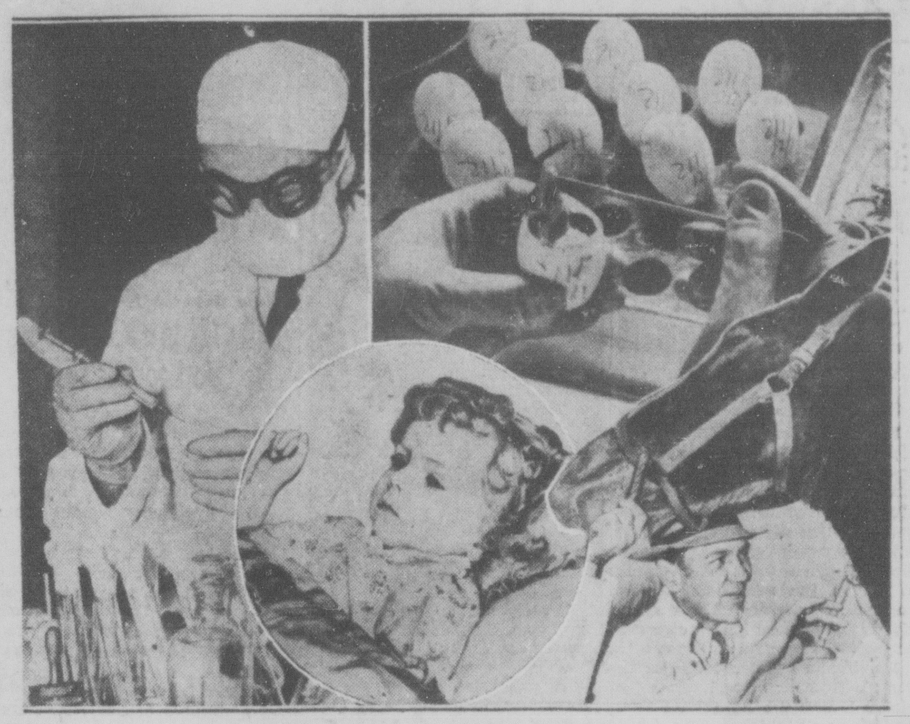
Jews Honor Steel Magnate

Mrs. Myron C. Taylor, wife of the former chairman of the U. S. Steel Corp., receives from New York's Governor Herbert Lehman the medal awarded to her husband by the magazine, "The American Hebrew," for his work as American representative on the intergovernmental committee on refugees. Taylor could not attend the ceremony in New York because of illness. (Central Press)

Scientists Push War on Sleeping Sickness



Although unwilling to make specific claims, scientists see great progress in the war on sleeping sickness in a new serum technique which uses the unborn chick as a source. The eleven-day-old chick is inoculated with the sleeping sickness virus as shown at left. When chick is about to break out of shell, embryo is removed (top) and made into vaccine, which is injected in horses (right). Physicians hope development of new vaccine will bring recovery to such victims of sleeping sickness as little Mary Ellen Reardon, of Chicago (inset) who was stricken March 25, 1938. (Central Press)

A Little Louder, Mr. Secretary

The High C of Hugs

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York City celebrates his 57th birthday, receiving a birthday hug and a baton from Mme. Marcelle Denya, prima donna of Paris Opera Company. The mayor, a lover of music, was invited to lead an orchestra at a benefit concert to aid emigre musicians.

House Committee Investigating NLRB

Bounced Out of Office—Encore

W. L. Miller, former chairman of the Georgia State Highway Board, thrown bodily from his Atlanta office recently, took possession of his desk and chair, and was promptly heaved out again, landing on his son, as shown above. Miller's forced abdication is result of differences between himself and Governor Rivers.

Royal Interlude from War

Like other British youngsters, the children of the Duke and Duchess of Kent have been evacuated to the west of England. The Duke, now serving with the royal navy, plays with his son during a leave of absence. (Central Press)

The Coal Burner for England

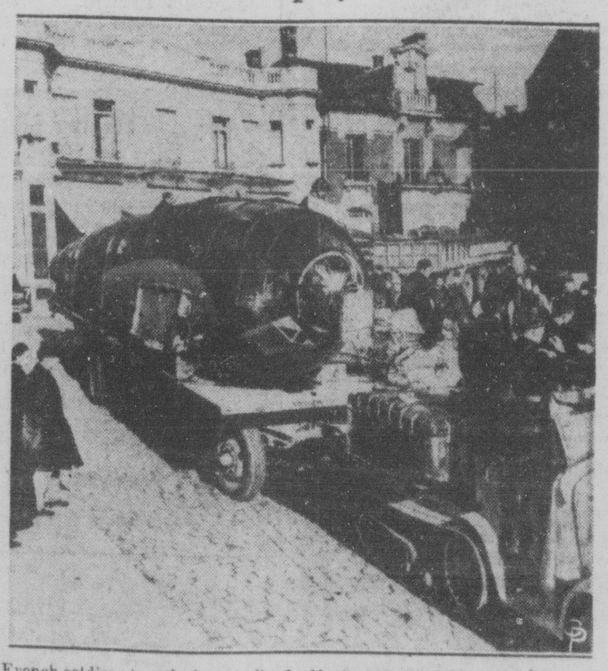
Allied Trophy of War



French soldiers tow the huge hulk of a Nazi reconnaissance plane through French village to show what happens to German planes that dare fly over French soil. An American-bought French plane downed it.

Questioning a Nazi Prisoner

A German prisoner of war, captured by a French patrol "somewhere on the Western Front," appears to be rather coy as he is questioned by a French officer. Practically all the activity on the Western Front, so far, has been patrol work and the taking of isolated prisoners.

Parents Invited To Demonstration By Dancing Class

Frostburg Students Learn Social Graces, Principal Explains

Frostburg, Dec. 14—Parents of eight and ninth grade pupils of Beall high school have received a letter from Principal Arthur W. Taylor inviting them to attend a demonstration of the physical education dancing classes, Monday, Dec. 18, from 2:40 to 4 o'clock p. m., in the school auditorium, under the supervision of Miss Agnes Howat and Edward Finzel, directors of physical education at the school.

Mr. Taylor's letter informs the parents that for several weeks the physical directors have been conducting a unit in dancing for eighth and ninth grade pupils. Ordinarily, he explained, the boys and girls have their activity periods separately, but the various sections are taking the dance practice together, the work including marching, simple folk dancing and elementary social dancing.

The actual dancing, says Principal Taylor, is the least of the aims in this program. The purposes of the project is explained by Principal Taylor as follows:

"We are trying to eradicate adolescent awkwardness and self-consciousness. We are trying to promote a healthy, normal relationship between boys and girls. We are trying to teach poise, grace, courtesy and correct posture. In order to see how well we have succeeded, we invite you, as parents, to be present at this final demonstration Monday."

The program will include a grand march, Virginia reel, chain dance, a demonstration of how dancing is taught, discussion and illustration of correct manners, social dancing, tag dance, and clock-wise dance.

Attended Meeting

Frostburgers who attended the tax conference here Tuesday evening at the Gunter hotel, showing an interest in the campaign to reduce mounting taxes on real estate were: Charles Hager, George Stern, William Jenkins Jr., Frederick Crowe, O. WON'T PAY S. S. TAX

Fred C. Perkins

Remembered as the battery manufacturer who refused to adhere to NRA regulations and served an 18-day jail sentence as a result, Fred C. Perkins of York, Pa., now announces he has not paid his social security assessments since the old age law went into effect in January, 1937. He also refuses to pay $200 owed the state of Pennsylvania in unemployment compensation taxes.

Mineral Teachers Meet at Piedmont

Banquet at High School Climaxes Convention; Nearly 200 Attend

Westernport, Dec. 14—Nearly 200 members of the Mineral County Teachers' Association held a meeting at Piedmont yesterday.

The business session was held at First Methodist church in the afternoon. Reports on the state meeting were given by Miss Goldsborough and Miss Jean Emily Frost. Dr. Wade of the Frostburg State Teachers' college faculty talked on remedial reading, and group singing was led by Miss Helen Pownell.

A banquet was served by the Parent-Teacher Association to 170 teachers at the high school, with the tables attractively decorated. The Tri-Towns orchestra, under the direction of Miles Haran, provided music.

Tri-Towns Briefs

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church will hold a bazaar Saturday at Brown's Cleaning shop on Main street. There will be many hand-made articles on display.

The ladies' restroom of the new Piedmont high school has been completed and newly furnished. It consists of a maple suite, chairs, tables, stands, floor lamps, pictures and pedestals for flowers. The Home Economics room is also being completed. It consists of a Frigidaire, two gas stoves, four base cabinets, a cabinet sink, and tables.

The community tree has been erected in Piedmont in the usual place at the Tri-Towns hotel. The city of Piedmont furnished the tree and the Potomac Light and Power Company furnished the current, while the merchants contributed to the fund which was collected by the Rotary club. The wreaths in the center were made by the Girl Scouts under the direction of Mrs. Paul R. Wilson, scoutmaster. There will be a second tree in the B. and O. lot, sponsored by Michael Laffey.

Susannah Wesley Bible class of the First Methodist church will hold its Christmas party tomorrow evening, December 15, at the home of the president, Mrs. Joseph Gerstell, Maryland avenue, Westernport.

Tri-Towns Personals

Mrs. M. A. Canty, Piedmont, returned home Wednesday evening from Allegany hospital.

C. Leo Connell, postmaster at Westernport, continues seriously ill at his home.

Miss Margaret Kimmel returned Wednesday night after visiting relatives in Parkersburg.

Mrs. J. D. Arnold, of Moline, Ill., who was called here by the death of her brother-in-law, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. H. Seaber.

W. H. Fredlock, Piedmont, returned Wednesday night from Baltimore after undergoing a successful operation for the removal of a cataract from his eye.

Glen Thompson, who has been in the employ of the Campbell Meat Company, has taken a position with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Christmas Spirit Urged for Lagging Taxpayers

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 14—(AP)—State Auditor Edgar Sims called today for a little "Christmas Spirit" from the tax-delinquent landowners.

Said Sims:

"We're willing to give them a Christmas present—at bargain prices: for payment of taxes."

Sims reported about $325,000 in tax-delinquent lands redeemed since July, leaving about $1,500,000 on the books.

Coney Methodists To Present Xmas Pageant Sunday

Proceeds from 'White Gifts for the King' To Be Used for Needy

Lonaconing, Dec. 14—A pageant entitled "White Gifts for the King" will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at the Methodist church, under the direction of Miss Daisy Cline.

In the cast will be forty persons, from every department of the church. The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Lewis F. Ransom, with a membership of twenty-five persons, has prepared special music for the occasion.

The Rev. Lewis F. Ransom, pastor and a member of the cast, stated today that 440 persons attended the same type of pageant last year, and from the proceeds twenty-five baskets were prepared and distributed to the needy of the town.

Those attending the services are asked to bring one article of canned goods wrapped in white paper, which will be distributed to the needy in baskets containing other commodities purchased from the collection taken at the pageant.

Bible Class Holds Party

The Friendly Workers Bible class of Barton Methodist church held a Christmas party Tuesday evening in the church basement. Members exchanged gifts with class sisters. Miss Elizabeth Lee conducted devotional. Readings were by Mrs. Fred Metz and Mrs. Irvin Martin. Miss Evelyn Hyde will be in charge of the next meeting.

Others present were Mrs. Sarah Hyde, teacher; Mrs. Cyril J. Hoover, Mrs. Wheeler Andrews, Mrs. Inez Marquardt, Mrs. Earl Metz, Mrs. Floyd Gattens, Misses Phyllis McConnell, Dora McConnell, Virginia Shaffer, Effie Howell and Beulah Dawson.

Play To Be Presented

Students of Barton high school will present a play entitled "The Christmas Orphan" Wednesday, December 20. A pageant by students of grades six to 12, entitled "The Birth of the King," will also be given.

Members of the cast are: Katherine Davis, Irvin Ross, Colleen Moses, James Fitzpatrick, Gloria Neat, Betty Smith, Douglas McDonald and Joseph Howell.

The productions are under the direction of T. E. Conroy, commercial instructor, and will be staged in the school auditorium.

Liquor Commission Head Resigns in Charleston; Second in Week

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—The resignation of the second State Liquor Commission Division head within a week was announced today, simultaneously with the appointment of a man to fill the first vacancy.

Chairman R. E. Kelly, in a statement, said A. L. Monteith, director of the division of finance and stock control, "has asked to be relieved of his duties as soon as convenient to the commission so that he may take up other employment."

At the same time, Kelly said he would appoint G. C. Baxter of Renick to head the merchandising division as of January 1, succeeding Dr. J. A. Washington of Logan, who resigned a few days ago.

Washington also had served a term as commission executive secretary.

No anouncement was made concerning Monteith's successor.

Montieth joined the commission in May, 1935, two months after its inception, as a cashier. A few months later he was appointed assistant director of the accounting division, and in March, 1937, promoted to the division headship.

Feds, Gov. Holt Get Together In Washington

Agreement Reached on State's Rights Invasion Problem

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—West Virginia apparently stood in agreement today with the Federal Social Security Board and a merit system for state agencies which use federal funds was in the making.

At Washington, Governor Holt, after an "entirely satisfactory" conference with board officials, said the state would comply with the regulations governing employe merit systems in state welfare departments.

He was accompanied to the capital by Director John S. Stump, Jr., of the Unemployment Compensation Department, who said some time ago his division had formulated a merit plan for submission to the board.

The board recently called on agencies sharing its funds to submit plans by January 1, or face loss of Federal aid.

Shortly after that, southern administrators of public welfare meeting at Atlanta, protested the order and declared it was an "invasion" of state's rights.

Director of Public Assistance A. W. Garnett, a participant in the Atlanta meeting, and also in a recent Washington gathering, said today however:

"The modified stand of the board has been explained to us and we left there (Washington) with the feeling that we could all get together."

Garnett said West Virginia was the first state in the nation to submit a merit system plan—the "one that is in effect in the department now"—and that it had received favorable recognition by board officials.

The Unemployment Compensation Department, the Department of Public Assistance, and the Health Department all receive Federal aid.

Just what sort of a system would be effectuated was not announced.

Garnett explained conferences will be necessary between the board and his agency to work out details.

It has been suggested that one examining board, to take care of filling vacancies in the three departments, could be set up instead of separate "civil service" boards for each agency.

However, officials said nothing definite could be discussed at this time.

Holt and Stump spent the day getting a "general outline" of what must be done to bring the state agencies into conformity. They did not comment on how big that task might be.

Christmas Party Planned Dec. 24 For Midland

Mayor, Council, Boy Scouts Promoting Celebration

Midland, Dec. 14—Mayor Verl Ash announced today plans for a community Christmas celebration to be held the evening of Dec. 24.

The affair is being sponsored by the Mayor and City Council and the local Boy Scout troop which is under the leadership of Scoutmaster Fred Rowe of Frostburg. Contributions, which will make the plans a reality, are being donated by the merchants, organizations and individual citizens.

The main street is to be decorated and has already been greatly brightened by the substitution of 3000 watt direct current street light bulbs for the usual 1000 watt direct current bulbs. A large tree will be decorated and arrangements have been made with Santa Claus to take time off from his other duties to be on hand and distribute a Christmas treat to an estimated 400 children.

Parents Invited To Demonstration By Dancing Class

Frostburg Students Learn Social Graces, Principal Explains

Frostburg, Dec. 14—Parents of eight and ninth grade pupils of Beall high school have received a letter from Principal Arthur W. Taylor inviting them to attend a demonstration of the physical education dancing classes, Monday, Dec. 18, from 2:40 to 4 o'clock p. m., in the school auditorium, under the supervision of Miss Agnes Howat and Edward Finzel, directors of physical education at the school.

Mr. Taylor's letter informs the parents that for several weeks the physical directors have been conducting a unit in dancing for eighth and ninth grade pupils. Ordinarily, he explained, the boys and girls have their activity periods separately, but the various sections are taking the dance practice together, the work including marching, simple folk dancing and elementary social dancing.

The actual dancing, says Principal Taylor, is the least of the aims in this program. The purposes of the project is explained by Principal Taylor as follows:

"We are trying to eradicate adolescent awkwardness and self-consciousness. We are trying to promote a healthy, normal relationship between boys and girls. We are trying to teach poise, grace, courtesy and correct posture. In order to see how well we have succeeded, we invite you, as parents, to be present at this final demonstration Monday."

The program will include a grand march, Virginia reel, chain dance, a demonstration of how dancing is taught, discussion and illustration of correct manners, social dancing, tag dance, and clock-wise dance.

Attended Meeting

Mineral Teachers Meet at Piedmont

Banquet at High School Climaxes Convention; Nearly 200 Attend

Westernport, Dec. 14—Nearly 200 members of the Mineral County Teachers' Association held a meeting at Piedmont yesterday.

The business session was held at First Methodist church in the afternoon. Reports on the state meeting were given by Miss Goldsborough and Miss Jean Emily Frost. Dr. Wade of the Frostburg State Teachers' college faculty talked on remedial reading, and group singing was led by Miss Helen Pownell.

A banquet was served by the Parent-Teacher Association to 170 teachers at the high school, with the tables attractively decorated. The Tri-Towns orchestra, under the direction of Miles Haran, provided music.

Tri-Towns Briefs

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church will hold a bazaar Saturday at Brown's Cleaning shop on Main street. There will be many hand-made articles on display.

The ladies' restroom of the new Piedmont high school has been completed and newly furnished. It consists of a maple suite, chairs, tables, stands, floor lamps, pictures and pedestals for flowers. The Home Economics room is also being completed. It consists of a Frigidaire, two gas stoves, four base cabinets, a cabinet sink, and tables.

The community tree has been erected in Piedmont in the usual place at the Tri-Towns hotel. The city of Piedmont furnished the tree and the Potomac Light and Power Company furnished the current, while the merchants contributed to the fund which was collected by the Rotary club. The wreaths in the center were made by the Girl Scouts under the direction of Mrs. Paul R. Wilson, scoutmaster. There will be a second tree in the B. and O. lot, sponsored by Michael Laffey.

Trucker Killed, School Burns As Winter Hits

35-Year-Old Man Dies as Car Skids into Truck in West Virginia

By The Associated Press

West Virginia's first death attributable to the new winter season was recorded Thursday as freezing temperatures struck virtually the entire state.

A car skidded on ice-covered U. S. Route 250 near Philippi and crashed into a stalled truck. The truck driver, Fred Hossong, 35, of Bridgeville, Pa., was killed. Three others were injured. Magistrate Ben M. Wilson held the Rev. Leonard Reckart of the Knottsville Methodist church under $500 bond for grand jury action on a manslaughter charge.

Just before 165 students arrived for classes at the Lochgelly grade school near Oak Hill, flames from a flue started a fire in the four-room structure. It was destroyed, with a loss estimated by Assistant Superintendent Otway Gunnoe at $5,500.

Janitor Ward Beckelhimer declared he tried to extinguish the fire when it started, "but it burned through an adjoining room."

Snow ranging in depth from under an inch to ten inches covered the mountain ranges through Tucker, Randolph, Pocahontas and Preston counties.

Temperature readings generally were in the mid-20's and low 30's.

Charleston had 32 degrees most of the day; Huntington's reading was a little higher. It was 26 at Rowlesburg, and Morgantown's low was 31.

Highway travel was not blocked, officials said, but motorists were advised to proceed with caution through the mountains.

Oakland Pushes Dairy Survey For Carnation

Company Announces Plan To Build Condensing Plant at Clarksburg

Oakland, Dec. 14.—A group of business men of Oakland met this morning with L. S. Hartley, B&O agriculture agent, to speed up the dairy survey that is being made in this area to determine whether or not a receiving station will be constructed here by the Carnation Milk Company.

Announcement was made Tuesday that the company will build the $250,000 condensing plant at Clarksburg, W. Va. In the original plan, receiving stations were to be built at Cameron, W. Va., and at Oakland, providing the dairy survey showed that Garrett county could and would improve its dairy herds.

Survey blanks, stating the cow population and what increase there would be providing a permanent outlet for their product was assured, were filled in by about 400 farmers, but the Carnation company asked for blanks from at least 500 farmers.

At the meeting this morning a number of men were named to be responsible for various districts in the county. Names of farmers who have not been contacted have been listed. Farmers are urged to cooperate with the men named in their districts and to come to Oakland if possible and see them without waiting until they call at individual homes.

The survey should include the milk producers who are now sending their product to other stations, as the survey is not to see whether or not farmers will send milk to the Carnation receiving station here, if one is built, but to learn whether the area is capable of producing sufficient cows to warrant the construction of a plant for future growth.

The men named this morning for the various districts include the following: District 1, Delbert M. Davis; District 2, L. M. Fraley; District 3, R. D. Houck; District 5, H. C. Riggs; District 6, L. M. Fraley; District 7, O. T. Graser; District 8, Cecil Kight; District 10, Frank Kley; District 12, J. C. Renninger; District 14, Frank Kley. District 16 is included in the former districts 7 and 10, and district not listed will be contacted later, according to Mayor Fraley.

Pythian Initiation

Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, is planning a large celebration Friday night, Dec. 15, when a class of twelve candidates will receive the rank of Knight in impressive ceremonies conducted by the new third rank team.

After the initiation there will be refreshments, the lodge making use for the first time of its new kitchen range.

Flue Fire Warning Issued at Oakland

Fire Department Re-Elects Edward A. Shaffer President for '40

Oakland, Dec. 14—With one-third of the fires occurring in Oakland and vicinity during 1939 being flue fires, Edward A. Shaffer, president of the Oakland Fire Department, urges all residents to be careful in the firing of their stoves and heating plants of their homes and places of business during the winter months.

Mr. Shaffer made his annual report at the meeting of the department yesterday, showing a total of 31 calls made and answered—twenty-six of them for fires and others for cases of drowning, collapse of building, etc. The fire damage during 1939 was comparatively slight.

Mr. Shaffer was re-elected president of the department. Others chosen included A. G. Gortner, vice-president; James Hart, secretary; Walter W. Dawson, treasurer; Emroy Bolden, chief; G. C. Stemple, first assistant; James Lewis, second assistant; Robert Stanton, captain; E. A. Shaffer, A. G. Gortner, W. W. Dawson, G. C. Stemple, H. P. Stuck, L. M. Fraley and Emroy Bolden, members of the standing committee.

Isolationist Principles Urged By Former Legion Commander

Grafton, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—The nation does not "have time for war abroad," William G. Stathers declared tonight, because "we are too busy here making up for the last one."

The Clarksburg attorney, a past department commander of the American Legion, spoke before the Grafton Rotary Club, and urged a return to the isolationist principles enunciated by George Washington in the farewell address.

"While there is conflict in Europe," Stathers asserted, in a prepared text, "let us put our own house in order. It will consume all our energies and resources for many years to come to solve our own complicated and dangerous democratic problems.

"Just as sure as we burn up our energies and resources in another world-wide holocaust, we shall require a dictator within the United States to maintain some semblance of order over the disillusioned masses of Americans."

Stathers mentioned "our debt to democracy," saying that "we first pay it to our own country by strengthening democracy at home where it is now constantly under attack."

"This is not our war," he went on, "and we want a national defense strong enough to back up our representatives in government in anything they may do to keep us from involvement in this repetition of the centuries-long old world arguments.

"We are committed to the policy that says our elected officials shall not be hamstrung in their efforts to maintain peace by a divided nation that would arise from the spectacle of the United States voting on the question of what to do when the day arrives that it no longer is possible to maintain an honorable peace."

Legal Deer Kill 880 For West Virginia

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By Marie Blizard

"No more holidays for me," Dick said gaily. "I'm going to work."

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Fabienne knows she is falling in love with Bill, tries to fight it off for Ellen's sake.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

AFTER PRUNELLA closed the door back of her, Fabienne reached for the lamp switch on her bedside table. She took a mirror from the drawer and held it up to her face. Only anxiety showed there, and some of her shock. So her love for Bill Mallory showed in her face, did it!

She put the mirror away and lay in darkness, knowing, admitting that she did love Bill. And she knew it took no second sight for anyone to read it, knowing that in her unguarded moments, her thoughts must have been written in her eyes.

If Prunella had seen it, Ellen, too, must have been aware of it.

And Bill? No, not Bill. She had been careful of that, leaning backward in her effort to keep from him what she felt. Also a man was not as likely, as a woman would be, to know what those swift changes, those lights in her eyes, those tender smiles would mean.

A woman in love would know. Ellen would know. Ellen had never said that she was in love with Bill. But wasn't their easy camaraderie, their long intimacy, those looks of unspoken understanding enough to convince Fabienne that theirs was a love that needed no announcement?

Ellen—Ellen, who was such a good, kind, understanding friend; Ellen, who had been closer to her than any other girl she had ever known; Ellen who had given her work that gave her life meaning, and who had even taken her into her home, nursed her when she was ill. Her thoughts were filled with Ellen and they were compounded of gratitude and affection and shame.

On the fringe of that tapestry of thought, there was the image of Bill. Telling herself that she did love him—even though she knew that he was not for her—she would like to have taken out her memories like treasures and fondled them, cherishing the remembrance of his touch, his tenderness; delighting her mind's eye with a gallery of pictures of him: Bill at the clinic in his white coat with his kindly eyes and slow smile, silencing fears and promising healing; Bill with his hat brim snapped over his eyes, his trench coat collar carelessly turned up as he walked with her one snowy, still night; Bill sitting beside her bed during those long, feverish nights, giving her his strength.

No, she must not think of that while there was Ellen, Ellen whom she had hurt so much.

It must end now. She must go away. Bill said that she couldn't go back to the settlement house for some time, that she ought to go south and get some warm sunshine. But she couldn't do that; there was the little theater nearing its completion—and there was also the fact that she was without funds. Of course, she knew that she could always get money from Uncle Mark or Gertrude.

She wouldn't go south, but she would leave Ellen's apartment. The problem was how to do it without making her reason obvious.

The solution came from a quarter she least expected. Two days after the long night she had spent in unhappy speculation, Dick came down from Harvard and told her that he was going to be married at once and leave for Chili.

He came in at supper time when Bill and Ellen were keeping Fabienne company at a card table set up beside her couch.

"My two very good friends, Ellen Chapman and Dr. Mallory, I want you to meet my brother, Dick," she said, kissing Dick and holding him at arm's length. "And what's the meaning of this? I didn't know there were any holidays this week?"

"No more holidays for me," he said gaily. "I'm going to work."

"Work?" She hadn't taken him seriously. Seymour men never worked. They raised horses or served on boards.

"My girl's old man is giving me a job with his company in Chili. Brenda and I are going to be married a week from Saturday. We're sailing the following Monday. Incidentally, Fab, she's a swell person. She wants you to be a bridesmaid."

Fabienne's thoughts were in a state of utter confusion. "A little slower, please, darling. Is this the Haviland girl who lives in California?"

He nodded proudly.

"But I don't even know her," Fabienne protested. "And she wants me to be a bridesmaid? I don't believe I'll be able to get to California in that time."

"The wedding is going to be here. At the apartment."

"What apartment?" Fabienne asked patiently.

"Mother's apartment, of course."

"But mother hasn't an apartment. At least, it's rented to the Derwents."

"Was," he told her. "They've gone to Arizona. I called mother in Paris last night. She's sailing for home day after tomorrow. Brenda's mother is dead and so mother is going to give her the wedding."

Yes, Fabienne thought, mother would. She remembered her mother's Christmas letter and her hopes for her son. ("The Havilands have tons of money.")

Dick was saying apologetically, "I'd just as soon get married at the City Hall, but you know how girls are. We'll be in the wilds for some time, so Brenda wants a big show before she goes. Bridesmaids and veil and church wedding. All that stuff."

Belatedly, Fabienne caught her brother's hand and gave it a little squeeze. "The best of luck to you, Dick! I'd love to be a bridesmaid at your wedding."

"When you and Nicky get married, send me a wire and I'll do the same for you. How is the old boy?"

"Very fine," she said, looking neither at Ellen nor Bill, but managing enthusiasm in her voice for their benefit. "I haven't seen him for a month and I miss him. I expect he'll be here shortly. I'd like him to be here for the wedding. Any family party without Nicky wouldn't seem right. He—he belongs, doesn't he?" When she finished her effort there were spots of pink showing on the thin bones of her face.

"They've been sweethearts since they were kids," Dick explained to Ellen and Bill.

Fabienne lowered her eyes, not denying it, hoping that Ellen would think what she wanted her to.

"Now what about you, sis? Had a cold?"

Bill said, "She nearly had pneumonia."

Fabienne said, "It wasn't too serious, Dick. Not worth troubling you all about. Ellen and Bill have taken very good care of me between them."

"It looks as if they did. . . . You got a cozy place here," Dick told Ellen frankly, scrutinizing the big, pleasant room.

"I like it better since Fabienne came to live with me," Ellen answered, smiling at the girl on the couch. "It was big and lonesome before."

"I've liked it, too," Fabienne said steadily, meeting Ellen's eyes across the room. "I'm going to miss it when I go."

"GO?" Bill and Ellen said it together.

"Where are you going?" Dick put the rest of the question.

"Why, back to mother's, of course," she said simply.

Back to mother's big, beautiful apartment, away from the first real home she had ever had, away from those morning breakfasts with Ellen, from those evenings with Ellen and Bill. Back to a life she no longer wanted so that Ellen would never again see her look at Bill and know that she loved him.

Reciprocal Trade Treaties Invalid, Woll Tells Labor

AFL Leader Addresses Mass Meeting at Huntington, Hits 'Isms'

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Matthew Woll tonight termed unconstitutional the United States' reciprocal trade treaties with foreign nations and called upon Congress to again assume responsibility for negotiation of trade agreements.

"The attempt to delegate legislative powers to the President is not alone bad law," the vice-president of the American Federation of Labor said in a prepared address before a Huntington labor mass meeting, "but it is the opening of the door that will inevitably destroy the checks upon the different branches of government."

Want no Foreign 'Isms'

Discussing "Labor, Some of Its Problems," Woll asserted that "we have taken stock of Nazism, Communism and Fascism and we want none of them.

"We want to go on living in a nation where, as long as we abide by the laws of our own making, we can act, speak, think and worship as we please."

Listing "challenges to democracy," he called for a determination to remain out of foreign wars, because "to enter a foreign war is to forfeit at once our rights and liberties."

And, he added, "remember that totalitarism and free trade unionism are incompatible x x x.

War Danger to Democracy

"England and France present a splendid example of the transition taging place in a democracy at war. Under the guise of emergency measures, labor x x x is gradually beong shorn of its power by government bureaucrats."

Woll criticized what he termed the "infiltration of high ranking Army and Navy officials into nationally prominent positions, supervising the activities of the civilian population."

He also criticized the Industrialy Mobilization Plan, declaring that if it should be adopted, "we must fully insist that the rights of 40,000,000 working men and women be fully represented on the boards, bureaus and commissions," embraced by the plan.

Warns of 'Super-Government'

"If it should be put into effect (without safeguards)," he said, "every person and every enterprise will become a part of the giant war machine, control of which will rest with the president. Congress will surrender its powers. A super-government will take over.

"This is no Wellsian dream of life on Mars. This is what would happen in America the day war was declared."

Most of his address, however, pertained to American markets which he declared are menaced by the reciprocal trade treaties.

Treaties Held Unconstitutional

"It would seen," he added, "that those responsible (for the treaties) are only concerned in working out a foolish and foolhardy theory of free trade in spite of the well known fact that such a policy has always transferred the job opportunities of America's workers to the workers of foreign lands."

"The treaties are unconstitutional," he contended, "because they violate the requirement that authority to enact tariff laws rests solely with the congress."

Miner, 77, Hurt By Coal Car In Coketon Mine

Blizzard Hits Tucker County; Snow Reaches Depth of Ten Inches

Parsons, W. Va., Dec. 14 —John Balbet, 77-year-old Coketon coal miner, was taken to an Elkins hospital yesterday suffering from fractured bones in one foot, said to have been caused by a coal car running over his foot while he was at work in the mines.

Blizzard Strikes

Tucker county was swept by a blizzard which raged all last night and part of today. Two snow plows were put on Route 219 last night throughout the county to the Preston county line, and four trucks were called out to follow the snow plows.

The snow reached a depth of eight and ten inches in many parts of the county. Canaan Valley also reports heavy snow today. About three inches of snow is on the ground here in Parsons.

Firemen Aid Needy

The Parsons Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring the distribution of baskets of food and clothing to needy families in this section at Christmas time. Anybody having donations may leave them in boxes for distribution purposes at the fire headquarters on Main street.

Stydahar Cancels

A telegram was received here today from Joe Stydahar, All-American football star, of Shinnstown, that he would be unable to attend the Parsons high school football banquet here Wednesday. Another speaker will take his place.

Myrl Kepner, Parsons high school coach, also announced that the Moorefield game scheduled here the latter part of the month would be changed to a later date and that a game with the Alumni would be played here on the night of Dec. 29.

Parsons Briefs

It was announced here today that during the past month the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company near Slaty Fork cut and loaded 180 cars of logs and shipped them to their mill at Case. The figure reflects an upward trend again in the lumber industry.

Mrs. Opal Barton, weaver in the local woolen mill, received a severe cut over one eye yesterday when a shuttle flew out of one of the looms and struck her across the forehead. Several stitches were given by a local physician to close the wound and lockjaw serum was given her.

Visitors in Elkins from here yesterday included B. F. Long, Mrs. Chester Bennett, Miss Hellena Bonner, Mrs. Opal Garber, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Sheetman, Vieva Marteney, Francis Wilson.

Elastic Piety

Ava, Mo. (AP)—A soft-spoken man of distinguished appearance went about Ava buying Bibles with large print "for my grandfather who doesn't see very well." He paid for them wtih checks. All the checks bounced, for a total of $34.66.

Feds Quiz Young Man On Mann Act Charge

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Sheriff Moore M. Reynolds said today Edward D. Kreider, 27, of Harrisburg, Pa., would be turned over to Federal agents for questioning about a Mann Act crarge after he completes a jail term here.

The complaint, Reynolds said, would be based on statements made by Kreidler's twenty-two-year-old wife.

Company Announces Plan To Build Condensing Plant at Clarksburg

Oakland, Dec. 14.—A group of business men of Oakland met this morning with L. S. Hartley, B&O agriculture agent, to speed up the dairy survey that is being made in this area to determine whether or not a receiving station will be constructed here by the Carnation Milk Company.

Announcement was made Tuesday that the company will build the $250,000 condensing plant at Clarksburg, W. Va. In the original plan, receiving stations were to be built at Cameron, W. Va., and at Oakland, providing the dairy survey showed that Garrett county could and would improve its dairy herds.

Survey blanks, stating the cow population and what increase there would be providing a permanent outlet for their product was assured, were filled in by about 400 farmers, but the Carnation company asked for blanks from at least 500 farmers.

At the meeting this morning a number of men were named to be responsible for various districts in the county. Names of farmers who have not been contacted have been listed. Farmers are urged to cooperate with the men named in their districts and to come to Oakland if possible and see them without waiting until they call at individual homes.

The survey should include the milk producers who are now sending their product to other stations, as the survey is not to see whether or not farmers will send milk to the Carnation receiving station here, if one is built, but to learn whether the area is capable of producing sufficient cows to warrant the construction of a plant for future growth.

The men named this morning for the various districts include the following: District 1, Delbert M. Davis; District 2, L. M. Fraley; District 3, R. D. Houck; District 5, H. C. Riggs; District 6, L. M. Fraley; District 7, O. T. Graser; District 8, Cecil Kight; District 10, Frank Kley; District 12, J. C. Renninger; District 14, Frank Kley. District 16 is included in the former districts 7 and 10, and district not listed will be contacted later, according to Mayor Fraley.

Pythian Initiation

Garrett Ledge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, is planning a large celebration Friday night, Dec. 15, when a class of twelve candidates will receive the rank of Knight in impressive ceremonies conducted by the new third rank team.

After the initiation there will be refreshments, the lodge making use for the first time of its new kitchen range.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Fabienne knows she is falling in love with Bill, tries to fight it off for Ellen's sake.

"No more holidays for me," Dick said gaily. "I'm going to work."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

AFTER PRUNELLA closed the door back of her, Fabienne reached for the lamp switch on her bedside table. She took a mirror from the drawer and held it up to her face. Only anxiety showed there, and some of her shock. So her love for Bill Mallory showed in her face, did it!

She put the mirror away and lay in darkness, knowing, admitting that she did love Bill. And she knew it took no second sight for anyone to read it, knowing that in her unguarded moments, her thoughts must have been written in her eyes.

If Prunella had seen it, Ellen, too, must have been aware of it.

And Bill? No, not Bill. She had been careful of that, leaning backward in her effort to keep from him what she felt. Also a man was not as likely, as a woman would be, to know what those swift changes, those lights in her eyes, those tender smiles would mean.

A woman in love would know. Ellen would know. Ellen had never said that she was in love with Bill. But wasn't their easy camaraderie, their long intimacy, those looks of unspoken understanding enough to convince Fabienne that theirs was a love that needed no announcement?

Ellen—Ellen, who was such a good, kind, understanding friend; Ellen, who had been closer to her than any other girl she had ever known; Ellen who had given her work that gave her life meaning, and who had even taken her into her home, nursed her when she was ill. Her thoughts were filled with Ellen and they were compounded of gratitude and affection and shame.

On the fringe of that tapestry of thought, there was the image of Bill. Telling herself that she did love him—even though she knew that he was not for her—she would like to have taken out her memories like treasures and fondled them, cherishing the remembrance of his touch, his tenderness; delighting her mind's eye with a gallery of pictures of him: Bill at the clinic in his white coat with his kindly eyes and slow smile, silencing fears and promising healing; Bill with his hat brim snapped over his eyes, his trench coat collar carelessly turned up as he walked with her one snowy, still night; Bill sitting beside her bed during those long, feverish nights, giving her his strength.

No, she must not think of that while there was Ellen, Ellen whom she had hurt so much.

It must end now. She must go away. Bill said that she couldn't go back to the settlement house for some time, that she ought to go south and get some warm sunshine. But she couldn't do that; there was the little theater nearing its completion—and there was also the fact that she was without funds. Of course, she knew that she could always get money from Uncle Mark or Gertrude.

She wouldn't go south, but she would leave Ellen's apartment. The problem was how to do it without making her reason obvious.

The solution came from a quarter she least expected. Two days after the long night she had spent in unhappy speculation, Dick came down from Harvard and told her that he was going to be married at once and leave for Chili.

He came in at supper time when Bill and Ellen were keeping Fabienne company at a card table set up beside her couch.

"My two very good friends, Ellen Chapman and Dr. Mallory, I want you to meet my brother, Dick," she said, kissing Dick and holding him at arm's length. "And what's the meaning of this? I didn't know there were any holidays this week?"

"No more holidays for me," he said gaily. "I'm going to work."

"Work?" She hadn't taken him seriously. Seymour men never worked. They raised horses or served on boards.

"My girl's old man is giving me a job with his company in Chili. Brenda and I are going to be married a week from Saturday. We're sailing the following Monday. Incidentally, Fab, she's a swell person. She wants you to be a bridesmaid."

Fabienne's thoughts were in a state of utter confusion. "A little slower, please, darling. Is this the Haviland girl who lives in California?"

He nodded proudly.

"But I don't even know her," Fabienne protested. "And she wants me to be a bridesmaid? I don't believe I'll be able to get to California in that time."

"The wedding is going to be here. At the apartment."

"What apartment?" Fabienne asked patiently.

"Mother's apartment, of course."

"But mother hasn't an apartment. At least, it's rented to the Derwents."

"Was," he told her. "They've gone to Arizona. I called mother in Paris last night. She's sailing for home day after tomorrow. Brenda's mother is dead and so mother is going to give her the wedding."

Yes, Fabienne thought, mother would. She remembered her mother's Christmas letter and her hopes for her son. ("The Havilands have tons of money.")

Dick was saying apologetically, "I'd just as soon get married at the City Hall, but you know how girls are. We'll be in the wilds for some time, so Brenda wants a big show before she goes. Bridesmaids and veil and church wedding. All that stuff."

Belatedly, Fabienne caught her brother's hand and gave it a little squeeze. "The best of luck to you, Dick! I'd love to be a bridesmaid at your wedding."

"When you and Nicky get married, send me a wire and I'll do the same for you. How is the old boy?"

"Very fine," she said, looking neither at Ellen nor Bill, but managing enthusiasm in her voice for their benefit. "I haven't seen him for a month and I miss him. I expect he'll be here shortly. I'd like him to be here for the wedding. Any family party without Nicky wouldn't seem right. He—he belongs, doesn't he?" When she finished her effort there were spots of pink showing on the thin bones of her face.

"They've been sweethearts since they were kids," Dick explained to Ellen and Bill.

Fabienne lowered her eyes, not denying it, hoping that Ellen would think what she wanted her to.

"Now what about you, sis? Had a cold?"

Bill said, "She nearly had pneumonia."

Fabienne said, "It wasn't too serious, Dick. Not worth troubling you all about. Ellen and Bill have taken very good care of me between them."

"It looks as if they did. . . . You got a cozy place here," Dick told Ellen frankly, scrutinizing the big, pleasant room.

"I like it better since Fabienne came to live with me," Ellen answered, smiling at the girl on the couch. "It was big and lonesome before."

"I've liked it, too," Fabienne said steadily, meeting Ellen's eyes across the room. "I'm going to miss it when I go."

"GO?" Bill and Ellen said it together.

"Where are you going?" Dick put the rest of the question.

"Why, back to mother's, of course," she said simply.

Back to mother's big, beautiful apartment, away from the first real home she had ever had, away from those morning breakfasts with Ellen, from those evenings with Ellen and Bill. Back to a life she no longer wanted so that Ellen would never again see her look at Bill and know that she loved him.

Reciprocal Trade Treaties Invalid, Woll Tells Labor

AFL Leader Addresses Mass Meeting at Huntington, Hits 'Isms'

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Matthew Woll tonight termed unconstitutional the United States' reciprocal trade treaties with foreign nations and called upon Congress to again assume responsibility for negotiation of trade agreements.

"The attempt to delegate legislative powers to the President is not alone bad law," the vice-president of the American Federation of Labor said in a prepared address before a Huntington labor mass meeting, "but it is the opening of the door that will inevitably destroy the checks upon the different branches of government."

Want no Foreign 'Isms'

Discussing "Labor, Some of Its Problems," Woll asserted that "we have taken stock of Nazism, Communism and Fascism and we want none of them.

"We want to go on living in a nation where, as long as we abide by the laws of our own making, we can act, speak, think and worship as we please."

Listing "challenges to democracy," he called for a determination to remain out of foreign wars, because "to enter a foreign war is to forfeit at once our rights and liberties."

And, he added, "remember that totalitarism and free trade unionism are incompatible x x x.

War Danger to Democracy

"England and France present a splendid example of the transition taging place in a democracy at war. Under the guise of emergency measures, labor x x x is gradually beong shorn of its power by government bureaucrats."

Woll criticized what he termed the "infiltration of high ranking Army and Navy officials into nationally prominent positions, supervising the activities of the civilian population."

He also criticized the Industrialy Mobilization Plan, declaring that if it should be adopted, "we must fully insist that the rights of 40,000,000 working men and women be fully represented on the boards, bureaus and commissions," embraced by the plan.

Warns of 'Super-Government'

"If it should be put into effect (without safeguards)," he said, "every person and every enterprise will become a part of the giant war machine, control of which will rest with the president. Congress will surrender its powers. A super-government will take over.

"This is no Wellsian dream of life on Mars. This is what would happen in America the day war was declared."

Most of his address, however, pertained to American markets which he declared are menaced by the reciprocal trade treaties.

Treaties Held Unconstitutional

"It would seen," he added, "that those responsible (for the treaties) are only concerned in working out a foolish and foolhardy theory of free trade in spite of the well known fact that such a policy has always transferred the job opportunities of America's workers to the workers of foreign lands."

"The treaties are unconstitutional," he contended, "because they violate the requirement that authority to enact tariff laws rests solely with the congress."

Isolationist Principles Urged By Former Legion Commander

Grafton, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—The nation does not "have time for war abroad," William G. Stathers declared tonight, because "we are too busy here making up for the last one."

The Clarksburg attorney, a past department commander of the American Legion, spoke before the Grafton Rotary Club, and urged a return to the isolationist principles enunciated by George Washington in the farewell address.

"While there is conflict in Europe," Stathers asserted, in a prepared text, "let us put our own house in order. It will consume all our energies and resources for many years to come to solve our own complicated and dangerous democratic problems.

"Just as sure as we burn up our energies and resources in another world-wide holocaust, we shall require a dictator within the United States to maintain some semblance of order over the disillusioned masses of Americans."

Stathers mentioned "our debt to democracy," saying that "we first pay it to our own country by strengthening democracy at home where it is now constantly under attack."

"This is not our war," he went on, "and we want a national defense strong enough to back up our representatives in government in anything they may do to keep us from involvement in this repetition of the centuries-long old world arguments.

"We are committed to the policy that says our elected officials shall not be hamstrung in their efforts to maintain peace by a divided nation that would arise from the spectacle of the United States voting on the question of what to do when the day arrives that it no longer is possible to maintain an honorable peace."

Legal Deer Kill 880 For West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—The Conservation Commission reported the 1939 legal deer kill today as 880, 16 less than last year.

Miner, 77, Hurt By Coal Car In Coketon Mine

Blizzard Hits Tucker County; Snow Reaches Depth of Ten Inches

Parsons, W. Va., Dec. 14—John Balbet, 77-year-old Coketon coal miner, was taken to an Elkins hospital yesterday suffering from fractured bones in one foot, said to have been caused by a coal car running over his foot while he was at work in the mines.

Blizzard Strikes

Tucker county was swept by a blizzard which raged all last night and part of today. Two snow plows were put on Route 219 last night throughout the county to the Preston county line, and four trucks were called out to follow the snow plows.

The snow reached a depth of eight and ten inches in many parts of the county. Canaan Valley also reports heavy snow today. About three inches of snow is on the ground here in Parsons.

Firemen Aid Needy

The Parsons Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring the distribution of baskets of food and clothing to needy families in this section at Christmas time. Anybody having donations may leave them in boxes for distribution purposes at the fire headquarters on Main street.

Stydahar Cancels

A telegram was received here today from Joe Stydahar, All-American football star, of Shinnstown, that he would be unable to attend the Parsons high school football banquet here Wednesday. Another speaker will take his place.

Myrl Kepner, Parsons high school coach, also announced that the Moorefield game scheduled here the latter part of the month would be changed to a later date and that a game with the Alumni would be played here on the night of Dec. 29.

Parsons Briefs

It was announced here today that during the past month the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company near Slaty Fork cut and loaded 180 cars of logs and shipped them to their mill at Case. The figure reflects an upward trend again in the lumber industry.

Mrs. Opal Barton, weaver in the local woolen mill, received a severe cut over one eye yesterday when a shuttle flew out of one of the looms and struck her across the forehead. Several stitches were given by a local physician to close the wound and lockjaw serum was given her.

Visitors in Elkins from here yesterday included B. F. Long, Mrs. Chester Bennett, Miss Hellena Bonner, Mrs. Opal Garber, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Sheaman, Vieva Marteney, Francis Wilson.

Elastic Piety

Ava, Mo. (AP)—A soft-spoken man of distinguished appearance went about Ava buying Bibles with large print "for my grandfather who doesn't see very well." He paid for them wtih checks. All the checks bounced, for a total of $34.66.

Feds Quiz Young Man On Mann Act Charge

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 14 (AP)—Sheriff Moore M. Reynolds said today Edward D. Kreider, 27, of Harrisburg, Pa., would be turned over to Federal agents for questioning about a Mann Act crarge after he completes a jail term here.

The complaint, Reynolds said, would be based on statements made by Kreidler's twenty-two-year-old wife.

Analyst Takes TNT Out of Propaganda

Needs Sense of Humor Forum Speaker Tells Audience of 600

A quiet-spoken analyst last night turned the Fort Hill high school auditorium into a laboratory as he showed how to take the T. N. T. out of the most explosive subject in the world—propaganda.

In a highly technical discussion, Dr. Clyde E. Miller broke propaganda down into seven main devices for the benefit of his Forum audience of 600.

As enumerated by Dr. Miller, those seven devices are:

1. Name calling—the art of condemning and rejecting the device used to such advantage by Hitler and Roosevelt.

2. The glittering generalities device—the art of winning approval to a cause by associating such terms as "honorable," "truthful" and "American" to it.

3. The transfer device—the use of highly emotionalized associations, such as associating the cross of the church with a righteous war.

4—The testimonial device—the device used by ministers of the gospel on some occasions and by patent medicine and cigarette advertisers.

5—The plain folks device—Hitler putting on a drab uniform like a common soldier; Roosevelt and the fireside chat; and the visit of the King and Queen of England to America and their mingling with common people.

6—The card stacking device—or the use of every deceit possible in putting across a cause.

7—The band wagon device—the ultimate of all other six, which relys heavily on martial music and the physics of rhythm, the theme song being "everybody's doing it."

Minds Chief Factor

"Propaganda," Dr. Miller stated, "is the art of persuading, and the very focal point of propaganda is conflict. Next come the channels of communication, including the factors of distortion and censorship. And the third and most important element is the mind.

"Minds are generally conditioned by their loves, hates and ambitions. And the adroit propagandist is the one who plays on these various conditionings. When they tie these various elements up effectively they can go to town.

"I would say that Adolf Hitler is the most successful propagandist of modern times. He played up the qualities of fear and insecurity and placed the blame on several sources.

Hitler Fooled England

The speaker stated that Hitler not only successfully propagandized his own people but he also pulled the same stunt in regard to England.

"The term 'Communist' today is the cost evil term extant, from the propaganda viewpoint," Dr. Miller said. "Hitler well knew this and he made it worse. By indicating that the new Germany would explode eastward, he sold the Communist-fearing Britains, who allowed him to re-establish a new army, navy and air force.

Makes Democracy Bad Word

"England not only allowed him to do this but she was so sold on the Hitler program that she signed a naval accord with Germany and even advanced money to help the cause along.

"However, after Hitler had built up his Communism propoganda and made himself supreme, he next made the term "democracy" a bad word. Why? Because it stood for freedom of the press and the freedom to criticize adversely.

Stage Set for War

"Hitler, terming democracy the 'road to Communism', soon had his people responding negatively to both the terms and consequently it began to appear that the explosion to the east might very well become the explosion to the west.

"As a result, England today is fighting the mighty power that she helped to create simply because she feared the spread of Communist influence."

Roosevelt and Hitler

Dr. Miller stated that while Hitler was the most successful protagonist of the "name callers", he also cited President Roosevelt as an able example in the field. The President's term "economic royalist" was pointed out as a particularly gifted example of the art. General Hugh Johnson, Westbrook Pegler and Congressman Martin Dies were also given honorable mentions.

Sense of Humor Needed

The speaker urged the development of the critical mind, or scientific temper, in dealing with propaganda, declared that a sense of humor was also invaluable in coping with the problem.

Propaganda, he said, is evinced in either action or opinion, an example of action propaganda being Sam Adams' Boston Tea party.

Different Lenses

He also declared that the mind views propaganda through countless channels of communication, all having a different lens, such as the Communist Daily Worker as compared to the New York Times.

Concluding, the speaker stated that propaganda could be recognized in any of the seven forms enumerated if a reader or spectator was a cool-headed observer of relevant facts.

Time for Alarm Here When One Propaganda Exists, Clubmen Told

Cumberland Kiwanians and Rotarians were urged yesterday to analyze the propaganda with which the United States is being bombarded from without and within.

The plea was voiced by Dr. Clyde E. Miller, head of the Institute of Propaganda Analysis, at a joint luncheon-meeting of the two service clubs at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

No Cause for Alarm

Dr. Miller, here for the third session of the Community Forum, said, however, he personally was not alarmed over the "many propagandas" directed at the American people.

"The thing to worry about," he explained, "is the time when only one propaganda is present.

"When that time comes, it will be a manifestation of dictatorship."

Democracy Abrogated by War

At the same time, the speaker regretfully noted that the same monopoly is seen in democracies when they go to war. Adoption of dictator methods appears necessary, he lamented, when democracies become engaged in conflict.

Dr. Miller took occasion to praise the American press, radio, and cinema, describing them as "excellent, by and large."

"As a result of this excellence, the American people have a clearer picture of what's going on in the world than any other people on earth," he said.

'More Fun To Know'

Dr. Miller's topic was taken from the theme used in a series of advertisements of a large cigarette company several years ago—"It's Fun To Be Fooled; It's More Fun to Know."

The cigarette ads exposed the illusions of so-called "magic" he said, while he referred to the illusions created by words in the hands of a skillful propogandist.

As an illustration, the propaganda expert recalled the anti-German words used during the first World War, such as "Hun" and "barbarian," and the pro-Allies words, such as "liberty," "justice" and "democracy."

Unthinking Responses

Words such as these are supercharged with emotion, he explained, and to a great extent produce unthinking, automatic responses from their hearers or readers.

People became aroused to a fighting pitch by the anti-German words; and suffused with a sense of righteousness by the pro-Allies words, he said.

Dr. Miller termed Hitler "the most effective propoganist of modern history" and described President Roosevelt, too, as "an extraordinarily effective user of words."

Analysis Urged

The speaker reminded his audience that "all of us" are propagandists at one time or another, when we seek to spread our own points of view.

The important thing to remember, he told the clubmen, is to analyze carefully the emotion-laden words used in propaganda instead of responding to them automatically.

Investigate to ascertain whether a program hailed as being in accord with principles of Americanism, democracy, liberty and justice really is in accord with them, rather than reacting unthinkingly to such terms, he urged.

Many Pressure Groups

"In America today, there are so many groups attempting to fool us with propaganda, that unless we are careful, we may be fooled and swept off our feet by hysteria," he said.

"It's fun to be fooled, but it's more fun to know"—and a whole lot safer, too, when it comes to propaganda, he concluded.

Dr. Miller, whose half-hour talk was broadcast, was introduced by Clarence Lippel. President John Rodman of the Kiwanis club presided.

Today Is Deadline For Safety Tests

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP)—The state Department of Motor Vehiles made ready tonight with a huge supply of summonses, to be served on Maryland motorists whose automobiles have not passed the safety inspection test by midnight to morrow.

With only one day remaining, the department said figures indicated slightly more than half the state's registered automobiles have been inspected.

Figures through today showed 143,762 inspected in the counties and 95,168 inspected in Baltimore City. Statewide registration is between 400,000 and 450,000.

Midnight to morrow marks the end of the 45-day inspection drive, inaugurated as a feature of the "save-a-life" campaign.

Summonses given motorists will order them to proceed to the nearest inspection station for a mechanical examination of their cars. Motorists who still have failed to comply with the inspection order at the time 1940 license plates are distributed will not receive their new plates.

Best Marksmen To Be Given Medals At Rifle League Banquet Tomorrow

The Allegany Rifle League will hold its third annual banquet at the Shrine Country Club tomorrow at 7 p.m., with 100 members, wives, and other guests expected to be present.

Medals will be presented to the best shooters among the ninety-six marksmen who took part in the six summer matches sponsored by the league.

The presentations will be made by Simeon W. Green, president of the Board of County Commissioners and a member of the Frostburg Rifle and Pistol Club.

O. L. Biggs, of Luke, will be toastmaster. Among the principal speakers and guests will be Evan Lloyd, of Washington, an executive of the National Rifle Association; Robert Penn, of Baltimore, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland State Rifle and Pistol Association; Major Flook, Lieutenant John C. Golden, Lieutenant A. W. Miller and Harry Morgan, of Frostburg, president of the Allegany League and of the state association.

Assisting President Morgan in making arrangements for the banquet are Lieutenants Golden and Miller, Raymond Bete, Thomas Rudd and A. M. Billings.

Movies will be shown at the banquet by Frank Kahrs, of Bridgeport, Conn., representing the Remington Arms Company, and Robert Davis, of Cumberland, representing the Standard Oil Company.

The Allegany Rifle League is made up of nine rifle clubs. The six senior clubs are Frostburg, Company G, Kelly-Springfield, Celanese, Corriganville and Cold Spring. The junior clubs are the Mountaineer 4-H Club, the Riverside 4-H Club and the Piedmont Boy Scouts.

Woman Arrested On Mails Charge

Two Boys Held For U. S. Judge

Postal authorities cracked down yesterday for the second time in two days, and as a result, a 26-year-old Swanton woman was jailed last night on charges of using the mails to defraud.

She was booked at the county jail here as Mrs. Viola Hare Bittinger.

United States Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie, who made the arrest, along with Garrett County Deputy Sheriff Clarence Spear and the Cumberland postal inspector, said she was charged with failing to pay for goods ordered from mail-order houses.

Hearing Today

Using an assumed name, she had ordered goods worth about $30 from Montgomery, Ward and Company, made a smal down payment, and then had failed to pay the balance, according to Loughrie.

He added that she had previously been convicted and imprisoned twice for forgery.

Mrs. Bittinger, wife of a farmer-miner, is scheduled to be given a preliminary hearing this morning before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett.

Youths Ordered Held

Earlier in the day, two Cumberland youths, 17 and 16, pleaded guilty to sending obscene matter through the mails and were ordered held by Commissioner Avirett for United States district court to face charges of juvenile delinquency.

They will be tried by the judge of the federal court, sitting as a juvenile judge, under a new procedure designed to protect youths under 18 from the disgrace of a public trial.

The younger lad, an Allegany high student, was released in the custody of his parents. The older boy was released under $500 bond.

Fort Hill Choir Sings for Lions

Fort Hill high school's A capella choir, directed by Miss Dorothy Sebree, entertained the Lions club with Christmas carols at their luncheon at the "Y" Wednesday.

Plans were announced for the Christmas party Wednesday, Dec. 20, when a group of under-privileged children will be guests at a luncheon, with entertainment and gifts.

March of Time movies were shown by W. D. Newberry Sr.

Downtown Social Club Bolts GOP--by Request

The "what's in a name?" campaign of the Sixth District Republican club has met with success, it was reported last night.

Members of the club, meeting in monthly session, heard that the organization located at 63 Baltimore street known as the Cumberland Republican Club, Inc., has agreed to change its name to the Central Social Club of Cumberland, Inc.

The Baltimore street club has no affiliation with the Republican party, and the Sixth District club voiced objection to its name two months ago.

Veniremen Drawn For Court Term

Sessions To Open On January 2

The names of forty-eight veniremen, from among whom members of the grand and petit juries for the January term will be chosen, were drawn yesterday in Circuit court under the direction of Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster.

The January term will open Tuesday, January 2, being deferred a day on account of the New Year's Day holiday.

Names of the veniremen, made public by Court Clerk Robert Jackson, are:

J. Chris Koegel, Frank A. Owen, Ernest McKenzie, Clarence Finzel, John D. Keller, Ralph Neal, Upton D. McFarland and Rees Harris, of Frostburg; Earl D. Dodge, of Westernport; Robert C. Pollock and Jesse E. Merrill, of Mt. Savage.

Michael J. Campbell, of Gilmore; George W. Porter, of Zihlman; George W. Snowden, of Ellerslie; John Kirk, Sr., of Barton; Ezra J. Watson, of Little Orleans; Delbert R. Kitzmiller, Frank J. Dressman and Michael L. Santon, of LaVale; W. Columbus Alderton, of Oldtown.

Reginald Stalling, George R. Meyers, Wilbert C. Hansrote, H. W. McGracken, Harry H. Gilbert, Thomas A. Andrews, Charles W. Davy, Frank J. Wagner, Jesse B. Hiser, Irvin R. Jacobs, James G. Hopkins, Charles A. Wigal, Charles W. Willison, Henry W. Connor, William O. McElfish, Benjamin W. O'Rourke, Richard H. Miller, William Babst, J. Fred Walton, John W. Leidinger, William H. Smith, Stanley Logsdon, Samuel Denson, Edwin W. Dilger, James Weir Kirk, James C. Powell, William Cooper, and William B. Schindler, of Cumberland.

Sentence Suspended In Revolver Theft

Walter Hite, 21, of 212 South Mechanic street, was given a suspended sentence of three months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Trial Magistrates court for stealing a revolver valued at $10 from the Spur Service station on Wineow street Wednesday. He pleaded guilty to the count.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew said Hite gave no reason for taking the weapon. Detective Robert E. Flynn preferred the charge.

Allegany High To Hold Open House Monday

Open house for parents of Allegany high school students will be held at the school Monday night from 7:45 to 9:30.

Members of the student congress will meet parents at the door and conduct them about the building. Teachers will be stationed in their regular class rooms to meet the parents and discuss any class problems in which the parents might be interested

The Ladies Mobilize; To Form Rifle Club

Frostburg women who like to shoot, or for one reason or another want to learn to shoot, are preparing to organize the county's first women's rifle club, it was announced last night by Harry Morgan, Frostburg marksman and president of the Allegany Rifle League.

Mr. Morgan also announced that the Alegany League, which is composed of nine clubs, plans to add pistol shooting to its activities after the first of the year.

Voting Machine Put on Display At City Hall

Here's Your Chance To Vote Early And Vote Often

Voting in the modern manner was demonstrated at City Hall yesterday by a Jamestown, N. Y., firm which has mechanized the ballot.

There's something about a voting booth that causes your political warhorses to perk up their ears—something like a show horse when a brass band starts to play—consequently there was really nothing for everybody to do yesterday but march over and take a crack at this automatic voting machine.

Popular "Toy"

Practically everybody in City Hall tried it and a number of outsiders came in and seriously pressed the leavers with all the solemnity of ardent drys voting to repeal light wines and beer.

These voting gadgets are mighty practical affairs although there are those who might not consider it practical to install a machine that throws hundreds of folks out of jobs every election.

Machines Cost $1,080

However, most anybody can imagine his great-grandfather shying away from the machine the way Old Bess cut up the first time she saw a train of cars.

A person can just hear his stolid straight-ticket ancestors remarking "What in tarnation is that contraption?"

The voting machines cost $1,080 each if a city wants the kind that folds up for storage; the non-collapsible type costs $980.

Machine-Age Efficiency

Efficiency is the keynote of these voting machines. They are certainly a far cry from those tired election officials of yesteryear who laboriously counted ballots into the wee-small hours by lamplight.

And according to the statistics quoted yesterday by Sam Hamilton, representative of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation, the machines easily pay for themselves over a period of ten years.

Save Baltimore Money

First, the machines cut down by one third on the number of persons needed to handle an election; second, no ballots have to be printed; third, no overtime need be paid to election workers since the machines have the total vote tallied by the time the last voter has voted at sundown; and fourth, the upkeep on the machines is practically nothing.

The City of Baltimore, using the machines in 1938-39, saved $195,000 compared to the city's 1934-35 elections when the old type ballot was used. The installation of the voting machines in Baltimore also eliminated 214 election workers.

Machines Required in New York

The use of voting machines in New York State is now required by law, with New York City alone using 4,000 machines.

A voter who uses the voting machine finds himself face to face with several rows of levers labeled Republican, Democrat, etc. There are also levers for specia lissues.

Voting on the machine is simple and the voter can't spoil his ballot. After he has voted for the required number of councilmen or judges, the machine shuts off and prevents him from voting for any more.

No Waits for Results

Chief beauty of the machines from the standpoint of reporters is the fact that a vote is tabulated the moment the polls close. Consequently, long waits for election returns are eliminated.

The Automatic Voting Corporation rents its machines to cities and counties, if desired, and will later apply the rental on the cost if the machines are purchased.

Possibility of one of these machines being stolen is slight, as they weigh 900 pounds each.

No Recounts

Another point in favor of the machines is the fact that their use eliminates the possibility of recounts.

Mr. Hamilton met with the members of the Board of Elections Wednesday night, but so far there has been no indication that the machines might be installed in either city or county.

State Cop's Siren Aids Old-Fashioned Stork

The old-fashioned stork, minus siren, yesterday called upon State Police to help him speed to Memorial hospital through Cumberland's holiday traffic.

As a result, Mrs. Alice Elkins, 26, of near Lonaconing, arrived at the hospital at 11:45 a.m., in ample time to give birth to a six-pound seven-ounce baby girl at 1:50 p.m.

The stork's assistant, equipped with siren, was State Trooper Carl G. Storm, who happened along U. S. Route 40 at the Six Mile House just in time.

The car bearing Mrs. Elkins had halted at the intersection of Route 40 and Braddock road.

The party was undecided whether to go over Braddock or keep on Route 40 and stop at the LaVale substation to ask for a State Police escort.

At that moment Trooper Storm happened along en route from his Grantsville post to the substation.

Husband Arthur Elkins, 29-year-old Celanese worker, spotted him and flagged him down.

The party decided to abandon their old-model Ford, in which they said they couldn't make such good time, and ride in the police car.

Mr. and Mrs. Elkins and Mrs. Julius Watkinshaidt, a neighbor, climbed in, leaving young Earl Watkinshaidt to drive the Ford in.

Officer Storm stepped on the gas, opened his siren, and beat the stork to Memorial hospital with two hours to spare.

"Whew," whewed the trooper, "I don't know what that baby will grow up to be, but she sure got a good start for becoming an aviator."

It was the first baby for the Elkinses, married seven years.

The couple had just moved to the Water Station Run section, about a mile from Lonaconing, about a month ago. They had previously lived in Cresaptown.

They left their home yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock for the hospital. It was about 11:30 a.m. when Trooper Storm came to the rescue.

CIO To Organize Workers on Dam

WPA Men To Meet In Bloomington

An organization meeting for WPA workers on the Savage River Dam project will be held this afternoon at 4 p. m. by the Western Maryland Industrial Union Council.

The meeting will be held at the Bloomington crossroads if weather is favorable, and at the United Mine Workers Hall, in Bloomington, if not.

James Blackwell, editor of the Voice of Labor, will be chairman at the meeting with David Watkins, of the United Mine Workers, scheduled to make the main address.

Principle purpose of the meeting is to organize the workers, after which union organizers plan to take up the problem of transportation for the men to and from the project.

As pointed out by union officers last night, it is the duty of the project sponsors, in this case the county commissioners, to provide the transportation.

Local Men Eligible For Police Posts

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP)—Names of thirteen candidates for nine posts as civilian clerk at state police substations were credited to Col. Beverly Ober by Employment commissioner Harry C. Jones.

The candidates all passed recent examinations for appointment to the State police and several attended the police instruction school.

Those certified were: John B. O'Brien, of Cumberland; Thomas M. Hignutt, of Denton; Richard H. Parker, of Rock Hall; John H. Channell, of Baltimore; Thomas E. Smith, of Vale Summit; Franklin L. Carroll, of Cumberland; William H. Connolly, of Easton; William E. Hopkins, of Easton; Thomas W. Ward, of Crisfield; Ralph Kahl, of Oakland; Crawford Coyne, of Annapolis; Champ Zumbrun, of Manchester, and Nathan Kaplan, of Quantico, Va.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

A lost little girl huddling by the show window of a jewerly store, diamonds sparkling coldly behind her, but tears sparkling on her cheeks . . . an old man from the country, with a prim old woman sitting beside him, holding up a line of cars on Greene street because he is adhering strictly to the speed limit, . . .

The Man about Town and one of our own writers reporting the erection of a shapely Christmas tree on City Hall plaza, when the tree has been growing there all the time. . .

— o —

Well, it's sure enough getting to be Christmas time, because the hot-spot music boxes are featuring "Silent Night" along with their mountain music, Hollywood cowboys and disappointed lovers.

It seems like a miracle happens when you drop a nickel into one of those garish instruments. First the gaudy lights go on—shallow, cheap colors, an imitation of gayety. Gears hidden inside the thing mesh, and there is a faint whirring of wheels.

Then, above the clatter of dishes, the hiss of frying hamburgers, and the babble of drunken voices rises the calm, sweet strains of "Silent Night."

Some people look up from their ink-damp copies of the morning paper, just out. Some don't. The Charlie McCarthy doll, which goes with a punchboard, smiles as inanely as ever from his cross-legged perch on top the music box.

The disc whirls round, three minutes for five cents.

With the serene sweep of the music, memories arise, of a plain little church and a golden-haired girl dressed like an angel; a family group around the fire; a lonely Christmas Eve when this same song brought solace and more loneliness; bright stars and the snow crunching underfoot; shouts of greeting on the midnight air.

The music stops. The automatic soul of the music box has sung long enough. Three minutes, five cents. Machinery clicks.

"Will there be something else, please," says the waitress. Meaning it's time to get out, they want to scrub the floors.

A young man, chewing gum, comes up and studies the list of songs. He selects "Piggy Wiggy Woo."

Stewart Out of Race for Congress-- IF Party Agrees on Stronger Man

A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Sixth district seat in the House of Representatives if the state central committes in the district's five counties "get together" and agree on a candidate they consider stronger.

This statement was made by Mr. Stewart last night in an address at the monthly meeting of the Sixth District Republican club at the Knights of Malta Hall, Prospect Square.

He explained that he was making it in the interest of party harmony. There should be no bitterness engendered in the primaries that might carry over into the general election, he said.

Mr. Stewart, former president of the board of county commisioners and a candidate for Congress in the last election, devoted the principal part of his address to "Federal Deficit Spending."

Quoting figures in detail and noting that the deficit is now over forty-one billion dollars, the speaker said that if spending continued at its present rate, the county would wind up "in bankruptcy."

He flayed New Deal expenditures and pointed out that the deficit has been upped a billion and a half in the past year.

More than fifty were present at the meeting, including eight members of the Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg.

Refreshments were served after the program.

Firemen Coming From One Fire Find Another

Discover Blaze In Home While Family Was Away

South End firemen, not content with merely putting out fires, went out and discovered a scorcher yesterday.

The firemen were returning to their station from the home of John A. Rankin, 111 Offutt street, where they had extinguished a flue fire at 5:20 o'clock, when smoke was noticed coming from the residence of Thomas J. Donius, 903 Virginia avenue, where no one was at home.

Then flames were seen in a front upstairs bedroom and firemen rushed to the house. The blaze already had destroyed the furnishings of the room.

Company No. 1, Central station, was called to assist in subduing the fire, which was confined to the room where it originated. Damage was estimated at approximately $100 or more. Origin was not determined.

At 7:30 p. m., Central firemen were summoned to the home of Herman L. Myers, 517 Necessity street, to put out a flue fire.

$2,500 Is Asked By Crash Victim

Young Motorcyclist Sues Auto Driver

Damages of $2,500 are asked by a young Frostburg Celanese worker for injuries received when the motorcycle he was riding was struck by an automobile Sept. 25.

The plaintiff, represented by Attorneys Noel Speir Cook and Milton Gerson, is Warren Martin, while the defendant is Wilbur P. Michaels.

The suit charges that Michaels was negligent, careless and reckless when the car he was driving struck a motorcycle owned and operated by Kenneth Ritchie, on which Martin was riding.

The motorcycle was heading east on Frostburg's Main street when the Michaels car came out of an alley and crashed into it, overturning it and throwing Martin to the ground, according to the declaration.

Martin suffered a fractured ankle and serious injuries to the left leg, the suit states.

Month-Old Infant Gets New Parents

Unable To Support Him, Mother Gives Consent

A month-old infant today had a new name and new parents as a result of a decree signed yesterday in Circuit court by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

The decree granted Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Dakin the right to adopt the infant son of Mrs. Alta M. Davis and to change his name to Robert Eugene Dakin.

The baby was born at Allegany hospital Nov. 17, and has been in the custody of the Dakins since early this month.

The mother, jobless and incapable of supporting the child, gave her consent to the adoption.

The Dakins, married for two years, live at 133 Union street, where Mrs. Dakin operates a boarding house. Mr. Dakin is a truck driver's helper for a furniture store.

F. Brooke Whiting was attorney for the Dakins.

New Flasher Signal Guards Danger Spot

A new red flash warning was in operation today at the Pauls Cut crossing of the C. and P. railroad, giving protection to another one of Allegany county's highway danger spots.

The new light is located a half mile east of the Mt. Savage depot, protecting traffic coming into Route 36, the through highway.

Federal funds for the installation of the signal were obtained through the co-operation of the State Roads Commission and the C. and P. division engineer, R. R. Tiley.

But the Man's Name Was Not Corrigan

"I'm on my way home", a Cresaptown man told police last night after he was arrested in the Narrows for being intoxicated.

The man, who apparently was trying to pull a "Wrong-way Corrigan" act, was apprehended by Officers W. B. Lovenstein and T. T. Griffin as he slept standing up near the bridge.

He was lodged in jail to sober up for his hearing this morning in Police court.

Miner Improving

Condition of John Michaels, 34, of Vindex, who was injured November 22 when he was crushed between two coal cars in the Manor Coal Company mine, was reported "good" last night at Memorial hospital. Michaels suffered a fractured pelvis in the accident.

Analyst Takes TNT Out of Propaganda

Needs Sense of Humor Forum Speaker Tells Audience of 600

A quiet-spoken analyst last night turned the Fort Hill high school auditorium into a laboratory as he showed how to take the T. N. T. out of the most explosive subject in the world—propaganda.

In a highly technical discussion, Dr. Clyde E. Miller broke propaganda down into seven main devices for the benefit of his Forum audience of 600.

As enumerated by Dr. Miller, those seven devices are:

1. Name calling—the art of condemning and rejecting the device used to such advantage by Hitler and Roosevelt.

2. The glittering generalities device—the art of winning approval to a cause by associating such terms as "honorable," "truthful" and "American" to it.

3. The transfer device—the use of highly emotionalized associations, such as associating the cross of the church with a righteous war.

4—The testimonial device—the device used by ministers of the gospel on some occasions and by patent medicine and cigarette advertisers.

5—The plain folks device—Hitler putting on a drab uniform like a common soldier; Roosevelt and the fireside chat; and the visit of the King and Queen of England to America and their mingling with common people.

6—The card stacking device—or the use of every deceit possible in putting across a cause.

7—The band wagon device—the ultimate of all other six, which relys heavily on martial music and the physics of rhythm, the theme song being "everybody's doing it."

Minds Chief Factor

"Propaganda," Dr. Miller stated, "is the art of persuading, and the very focal point of propaganda is conflict. Next come the channels of communication, including the factors of distortion and censorship. And the third and most important element is the mind.

"Minds are generally conditioned by their loves, hates and ambitions. And the adroit propagandist is the one who plays on these various conditionings. When they tie these various elements up effectively they can go to town.

"I would say that Adolf Hitler is the most successful propagandist of modern times. He played up the qualities of fear and insecurity and placed the blame on several sources.

Hitler Fooled England

The speaker stated that Hitler not only successfully propagandized his own people but he also pulled the same stunt in regard to England.

"The term 'Communist' today is the cost evil term extant, from the propaganda viewpoint," Dr. Miller said. "Hitler well knew this and he made it worse. By indicating that the new Germany would explode eastward, he sold the Communist-fearing Britains, who allowed him to re-establish a new army, navy and air force.

Makes Democracy Bad Word

"England not only allowed him to do this but she was so sold on the Hitler program that she signed a naval accord with Germany and even advanced money to help the cause along.

"However, after Hitler had built up his Communism propoganda and made himself supreme, he next made the term "democracy" a bad word. Why? Because it stood for freedom of the press and the freedom to criticize adversely.

Stage Set for War

"Hitler, terming democracy the 'road to Communism', soon had his people responding negatively to both the terms and consequently it began to appear that the explosion to the east might very well become the explosion to the west.

"As a result, England today is fighting the mighty power that she helped to create simply because she feared the spread of Communist influence."

Roosevelt and Hitler

Dr. Miller stated that while Hitler was the most successful protagonist of the "name callers", he also cited President Roosevelt as an able example in the field. The President's term "economic royalist" was pointed out as a particularly gifted example of the art. General Hugh Johnson, Westbrook Pegler and Congressman Martin Dies were also given honorable mentions.

Sense of Humor Needed

The speaker urged the development of the critical mind, or scientific temper, in dealing with propaganda, declared that a sense of humor was also invaluable in coping with the problem.

Propaganda, he said, is evinced in either action or opinion, an example of action propaganda being Sam Adams' Boston Tea party.

Different Lenses

He also declared that the mind views propaganda through countless channels of communication, all having a different lens, such as the Communist Daily Worker as compared to the New York Times.

Concluding, the speaker stated that propaganda could be recognized in any of the seven forms enumerated if a reader or spectator was a cool-headed observer of relevant facts.

Time for Alarm Here When One Propaganda Exists, Clubmen Told

Cumberland Kiwanians and Rotarians were urged yesterday to analyze the propaganda with which the United States is being bombarded from without and within.

The plea was voiced by Dr. Clyde E. Miller, head of the Institute of Propaganda Analysis, at a joint luncheon-meeting of the two service clubs at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

No Cause for Alarm

Dr. Miller, here for the third session of the Community Forum, said, however, he personally was not alarmed over the "many propagandas" directed at the American people.

"The thing to worry about," he explained, "is the time when only one propaganda is present.

"When that time comes, it will be a manifestation of dictatorship."

He called attention to the "monopoly of propaganda" in the dictator-nations of Germany, Russia, Italy and Japan.

Democracy Abrogated by War

At the same time, the speaker regretfully noted that the same monopoly is seen in democracies when they go to war. Adoption of dictator methods appears necessary, he lamented, when democracies become engaged in conflict.

Dr. Miller took occasion to praise the American press, radio, and cinema, describing them as "excellent, by and large."

"As a result of this excellence, the American people have a clearer picture of what's going on in the world than any other people on earth," he said.

'More Fun To Know'

Dr. Miller's topic was taken from the theme used in a series of advertisements of a large cigarette company several years ago—"It's Fun To Be Fooled; It's More Fun to Know."

The cigarette ads exposed the illusions of so-called "magic" he said, while he referred to the illusions created by words in the hands of a skillful propogandist.

As an illustration, the propaganda expert recalled the anti-German words used during the first World War, such as "Hun" and "barbarian," and the pro-Allies words, such as "liberty," "justice" and "democracy."

Unthinking Responses

Words such as these are supercharged with emotion, he explained, and to a great extent produce unthinking, automatic responses from their hearers or readers.

People became aroused to a fighting pitch by the anti-German words; and suffused with a sense of righteousness by the pro-Allies words, he said.

Dr. Miller termed Hitler "the most effective propoganist of modern history" and described President Roosevelt, too, as "an extraordinarily effective user of words."

Analysis Urged

The speaker reminded his audience that "all of us" are propagandists at one time or another, when we seek to spread our own points of view.

The important thing to remember, he told the clubmen, is to analyze carefully the emotion-laden words used in propaganda instead of responding to them automatically.

Investigate to ascertain whether a program hailed as being in accord with principles of Americanism, democracy, liberty and justice really is in accord with them, rather than reacting unthinkingly to such terms, he urged.

Many Pressure Groups

"In America today, there are so many groups attempting to fool us with propaganda, that unless we are careful, we may be fooled and swept off our feet by hysteria," he said.

"It's fun to be fooled, but it's more fun to know"—and a whole lot safer, too, when it comes to propaganda, he concluded.

Dr. Miller, whose half-hour talk was broadcast, was introduced by Clarence Lippel. President John Rodman of the Kiwanis club presided.

Today Is Deadline For Safety Tests

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP)—The state Department of Motor Vehiles made ready tonight with a huge supply of summonses, to be served on Maryland motorists whose automobiles have not passed the safety inspection test by midnight to morrow.

With only one day remaining, the department said figures indicated slightly more than half the state's registered automobiles have been inspected.

Figures through today showed 143,762 inspected in the counties and 95,168 inspected in Baltimore City. Statewide registration is between 400,000 and 450,000.

Midnight to morrow marks the end of the 45-day inspection drive, inaugurated as a feature of the "save-a-life" campaign.

Summonses given motorists will order them to proceed to the nearest inspection station for a mechanical examination of their cars. Motorists who still have failed to comply with the inspection order at the time 1940 license plates are distributed will not receive their new plates.

Best Marksmen To Be Given Medals At Rifle League Banquet Tomorrow

The Allegany Rifle League will hold its third annual banquet at the Shrine Country Club tomorrow at 7 p.m., with 100 members, wives, and other guests expected to be present.

Medals will be presented to the best shooters among the ninety-six marksmen who took part in the six summer matches sponsored by the league.

The presentations will be made by Simeon W. Green, president of the Board of County Commissioners and a member of the Frostburg Rifle and Pistol Club.

O. L. Biggs, of Luke, will be toastmaster. Among the principal speakers and guests will be Evan Lloyd, of Washington, an executive of the National Rifle Association; Robert Penn, of Baltimore, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland State Rifle and Pistol Association; Major Flook, Lieutenant John C. Golden, Lieutenant A. W. Miller and Harry Morgan, of Frostburg, president of the Allegany League and of the state association.

Assisting President Morgan in making arrangements for the banquet are Lieutenants Golden and Miller, Raymond Bete, Thomas Rudd and A. M. Billings.

Movies will be shown at the banquet by Frank Kahrs, of Bridgeport, Conn., representing the Remington Arms Company, and Robert Davis, of Cumberland, representing the Standard Oil Company.

The Allegany Rifle League is made up of nine rifle clubs. The six senior clubs are Frostburg, Company G, Kelly-Springfield, Celanese, Corriganville and Cold Spring. The junior clubs are the Mountaineer 4-H Club, the Riverside 4-H Club and the Piedmont Boy Scouts.

Woman Arrested On Mails Charge

Two Boys Held For U. S. Judge

Postal authorities cracked down yesterday for the second time in two days, and as a result, a 26-year-old Swanton woman was jailed last night on charges of using the mails to defraud.

She was booked at the county jail here as Mrs. Viola Hare Bittinger.

United States Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie, who made the arrest, along with Garrett County Deputy Sheriff Clarence Spear and the Cumberland postal inspector, said she was charged with failing to pay for goods ordered from mail-order houses.

Hearing Today

Using an assumed name, she had oruered goods worth about $30 from Montgomery, Ward and Company, made a smal down payment, and then had failed to pay the balance, according to Loughrie.

He added that she had previously been convicted and imprisoned twice for forgery.

Mrs. Bittinger, wife of a farmer-miner, is scheduled to be given a preliminary hearing this morning before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett.

Youths Ordered Held

Earlier in the day, two Cumberland youths, 17 and 16, pleaded guilty to sending obscene matter through the mails and were ordered held by Commissioner Avirett for United States district court to face charges of juvenile delinquency.

They will be tried by the judge of the federal court, sitting as a juvenile judge, under a new procedure designed to protect youths under 18 from the disgrace of a public trial.

The younger lad, an Allegany high student, was released in the custody of his parents. The older boy was released under $500 bond.

Fort Hill Choir Sings for Lions

Fort Hill high school's A capella choir, directed by Miss Dorothy Sebree, entertained the Lions club with Christmas carols at their luncheon at the "Y" Wednesday.

Plans were announced for the Christmas party Wednesday, Dec. 20, when a group of under-privileged children will be guests at a luncheon, with entertainment and gifts.

March of Time movies were shown by W. D. Newberry Sr.

Downtown Social Club Bolts GOP--by Request

The "what's in a name?" campaign of the Sixth District Republican club has met with success, it was reported last night.

Members of the club, meeting in monthly session, heard that the organization located at 63 Baltimore street known as the Cumberland Republican Club, Inc., has agreed to change its name to the Central Social Club of Cumberland, Inc.

The Baltimore street club has no affiliation with the Republican party, and the Sixth District club voiced objection to its name two months ago.

Sentence Suspended In Revolver Theft

Walter Hite, 21, of 212 South Mechanic street, was given a suspended sentence of three months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Trial Magistrates court for stealing a revolver valued at $10 from the Spur Service station on Wineow street Wednesday. He pleaded guilty to the count.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew said Hite gave no reason for taking the weapon. Detective Robert E. Flynn preferred the charge.

Allegany High To Hold Open House Monday

Open house for parents of Allegany high school students will be held at the school Monday night from 7:45 to 9:30.

Members of the student congress will meet parents at the door and conduct them about the building. Teachers will be stationed in their regular class rooms to meet the parents and discuss any class problems in which the parents might be interested

Frostburg women who like to shoot, or for one reason or another want to learn to shoot, are preparing to organize the county's first women's rifle club, it was announced last night by Harry Morgan, Frostburg marksman and president of the Allegany Rifle League.

Mr. Morgan also announced that the Alegany League, which is composed of nine clubs, plans to add pistol shooting to its activities after the first of the year.

Voting Machine Put on Display At City Hall

Here's Your Chance To Vote Early And Vote Often

Voting in the modern manner was demonstrated at City Hall yesterday by a Jamestown, N. Y., firm which has mechanized the ballot.

There's something about a voting booth that causes your political warhorses to perk up their ears—something like a show horse when a brass band starts to play—consequently there was really nothing for everybody to do yesterday but march over and take a crack at this automatic voting machine.

Popular "Toy"

Practically everybody in City Hall tried it and a number of outsiders came in and seriously pressed the leavers with all the solemnity of ardent drys voting to repeal light wines and beer.

These voting gadgets are mighty practical affairs although there are those who might not consider it practical to install a machine that throws hundreds of folks out of jobs every election.

Machines Cost $1,080

However, most anybody can imagine his great-grandfather shying away from the machine the way Old Bess cut up the first time she saw a train of cars.

A person can just hear his stolid straight-ticket ancestors remarking "What in tarnation is that contraption?"

The voting machines cost $1,080 each if a city wants the kind that folds up for storage; the non-collapsible type costs $980.

Machine-Age Efficiency

Efficiency is the keynote of these voting machines. They are certainly a far cry from those tired election officials of yesteryear who laboriously counted ballots into the wee-small hours by lamplight.

And according to the statistics quoted yesterday by Sam Hamilton, representative of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation, the machines easily pay for themselves over a period of ten years.

Save Baltimore Money

First, the machines cut down by one third on the number of persons needed to handle an election; second, no ballots have to be printed; third, no overtime need be paid to election workers since the machines have the total vote tallied by the time the last voter has voted at sundown; and fourth, the upkeep on the machines is practically nothing.

The City of Baltimore, using the machines in 1938-39, saved $195,000 compared to the city's 1934-35 elections when the old type ballot was used. The installation of the voting machines in Baltimore also eliminated 214 election workers.

Machines Required in New York

The use of voting machines in New York State is now required by law, with New York City alone using 4,000 machines.

A voter who uses the voting machine finds himself face to face with several rows of levers labeled Republican, Democrat, etc. There are also levers for specia lissues.

Voting on the machine is simple and the voter can't spoil his ballot. After he has voted for the required number of councilmen or judges, the machine shuts off and prevents him from voting for any more.

No Waits for Results

Chief beauty of the machines from the standpoint of reporters is the fact that a vote is tabulated the moment the polls close. Consequently, long waits for election returns are eliminated.

The Automatic Voting Corporation rents its machines to cities and counties, if desired, and will later apply the rental on the cost if the machines are purchased.

Possibility of one of these machines being stolen is slight, as they weigh 900 pounds each.

No Recounts

Another point in favor of the machines is the fact that their use eliminates the possibility of recounts.

Mr. Hamilton met with the members of the Board of Elections Wednesday night, but so far there has been no indication that the machines might be installed in either city or county.

State Cop's Siren Aids Old-Fashioned Stork

The old-fashioned stork, minus siren, yesterday called upon State Police to help him speed to Memorial hospital through Cumberland's holiday traffic.

As a result, Mrs. Alice Elkins, 26, of near Lonaconing, arrived at the hospital at 11:45 a.m., in ample time to give birth to a six-pound seven-ounce baby girl at 1:50 p.m.

The stork's assistant, equipped with siren, was State Trooper Carl G. Storm, who happened along U. S. Route 40 at the Six Mile House just in time.

The car bearing Mrs. Elkins had halted at the intersection of Route 40 and Braddock road.

The party was undecided whether to go over Braddock or keep on Route 40 and stop at the LaVale substation to ask for a State Police escort.

At that moment Trooper Storm happened along en route from his Grantsville post to the substation.

Husband Arthur Elkins, 29-year-old Celanese worker, spotted him and flagged him down.

The party decided to abandon their old-model Ford, in which they said they couldn't make such good time, and ride in the police car.

Mr. and Mrs. Elkins and Mrs. Julius Watkinshaidt, a neighbor, climbed in, leaving young Earl Watkinshaidt to drive the Ford in.

Officer Storm stepped on the gas, opened his siren, and beat the stork to Memorial hospital with two hours to spare.

"Whew," whewed the trooper, "I don't know what that baby will grow up to be, but she sure got a good start for becoming an aviator."

It was the first baby for the Elkinses, married seven years.

The couple had just moved to the Water Station Run section, about a mile from Lonaconing, about a month ago. They had previously lived in Cresaptown.

They left their home yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock for the hospital. It was about 11:30 a.m. when Trooper Storm came to the rescue.

CIO To Organize Workers on Dam

WPA Men To Meet In Bloomington

An organization meeting for WPA workers on the Savage River Dam project will be held this afternoon at 4 p. m. by the Western Maryland Industrial Union Council.

The meeting will be held at the Bloomington crossroads if weather is favorable, and at the United Mine Workers Hall, in Bloomington, if not.

James Blackwell, editor of the Voice of Labor, will be chairman at the meeting with David Watkins, of the United Mine Workers, scheduled to make the main address.

Principle purpose of the meeting is to organize the workers, after which union organizers plan to take up the problem of transportation for the men to and from the project.

As pointed out by union officers last night, it is the duty of the project sponsors, in this case the county commissioners, to provide the transportation.

The Man about Town and one of our own writers reporting the erection of a shapely Christmas tree on City Hall plaza, when the tree has been growing there all the time. . .

— o —

Well, it's sure enough getting to be Christmas time, because the hot-spot music boxes are featuring "Silent Night" along with their mountain music, Hollywood cowboys and disappointed lovers.

It seems like a miracle happens when you drop a nickel into one of those garish instruments. First the gaudy lights go on—shallow, cheap colors, an imitation of gayety. Gears hidden inside the thing mesh, and there is a faint whirring of wheels.

Then, above the clatter of dishes, the hiss of frying hamburgers, and the babble of drunken voices rises the calm, sweet strains of "Silent Night."

Some people look up from their ink-damp copies of the morning paper, just out. Some don't. The Charlie McCarthy doll, which goes with a punchboard, smiles as inanely as ever from his cross-legged perch on top the music box.

The disc whirls round, three minutes for five cents.

With the serene sweep of the music, memories arise, of a plain little church and a golden-haired girl dressed like an angel; a family group around the fire; a lonely Christmas Eve when this same song brought solace and more loneliness; bright stars and the snow crunching underfoot; shouts of greeting on the midnight air.

The music stops. The automatic soul of the music box has sung long enough. Three minutes, five cents. Machinery clicks.

"Will there be something else, please," says the waitress. Meaning it's time to get out, they want to scrub the floors.

A young man, chewing gum, comes up and studies the list of songs. He selects "Piggy Wiggy Woo."

Stewart Out of Race for Congress-- IF Party Agrees on Stronger Man

A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Sixth district seat in the House of Representatives if the state central committee in the district's five counties "get together" and agree on a candidate they consider stronger.

This statement was made by Mr. Stewart last night in an address at the monthly meeting of the Sixth District Republican club at the Knights of Malta Hall, Prospect Square.

He explained that he was making it in the interest of party harmony. There should be no bitterness engendered in the primaries that might carry over into the general election, he said.

Mr. Stewart, former president of the board of county commisioners and a candidate for Congress in the last election, devoted the principal part of his address to "Federal Deficit Spending."

Quoting figures in detail and noting that the deficit is now over forty-one billion dollars, the speaker said that if spending continued at its present rate, the county would wind up "in bankruptcy."

He flayed New Deal expenditures and pointed out that the deficit has been upped a billion and a half in the past year.

More than fifty were present at the meeting, including eight members of the Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg.

Refreshments were served after the program.

Firemen Coming From One Fire Find Another

Discover Blaze In Home While Family Was Away

South End firemen, not content with merely putting out fires, went out and discovered a scorcher yesterday.

The firemen were returning to their station from the home of John A. Rankin, 111 Offutt street, where they had extinguished a flue fire at 5:20 o'clock, when smoke was noticed coming from the residence of Thomas J. Donius, 903 Virginia avenue, where no one was at home.

Then flames were seen in a front upstairs bedroom and firemen rushed to the house. The blaze already had destroyed the furnishings of the room.

Company No. 1, Central station, was called to assist in subduing the fire, which was confined to the room where it originated. Damage was estimated at approximately $100 or more. Origin was not determined.

At 7:30 p. m., Central firemen were summoned to the home of Herman L. Myers, 517 Necessity street, to put out a flue fire.

$2,500 Is Asked By Crash Victim

Young Motorcyclist Sues Auto Driver

Damages of $2,500 are asked by a young Frostburg Celanese worker for injuries received when the motorcycle he was riding was struck by an automobile Sept. 25.

The plaintiff, represented by Attorneys Noel Speir Cook and Milton Gerson, is Warren Martin, while the defendant is Wilbur P. Michaels.

The suit charges that Michaels was negligent, careless and reckless when the car he was driving struck a motorcycle owned and operated by Kenneth Ritchie, on which Martin was riding.

The motorcycle was heading east on Frostburg's Main street when the Michaels car came out of an alley and crashed into it, overturning it and throwing Martin to the ground, according to the declaration.

Martin suffered a fractured ankle and serious injuries to the left leg, the suit states.

Month-Old Infant Gets New Parents

Unable To Support Him, Mother Gives Consent

A month-old infant today had a new name and new parents as a result of a decree signed yesterday in Circuit court by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

The decree granted Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Dakin the right to adopt the infant son of Mrs. Alta M. Davis and to change his name to Robert Eugene Dakin.

The baby was born at Allegany hospital Nov. 17, and has been in the custody of the Dakins since early this month.

The mother, jobless and incapable of supporting the child, gave her consent to the adoption.

The Dakins, married for two years, live at 133 Union street, where Mrs. Dakin operates a boarding house. Mr. Dakin is a truck driver's helper for a furniture store.

F. Brooke Whiting was attorney for the Dakins.

New Flasher Signal Guards Danger Spot

A new red flash warning was in operation today at the Pauls Cut crossing of the C. and P. railroad, giving protection to another one of Allegany county's highway danger spots.

The new light is located a half mile east of the Mt. Savage depot, protecting traffic coming into Route 36, the through highway.

Federal funds for the installation of the signal were obtained through the co-operation of the State Roads Commission and the C. and P. division engineer, R. R. Tiley.

But the Man's Name Was Not Corrigan

"I'm on my way home", a Cresaptown man told police last night after he was arrested in the Narrows for being intoxicated.

The man, who apparently was trying to pull a "Wrong-way Corrigan" act, was apprehended by Officers W. B. Lovenstein and T. T. Griffin as he slept standing up near the bridge.

He was lodged in jail to sober up for his hearing this morning in Police court.

Miner Improving

Condition of John Michaels, 34, of Vindex, who was injured November 22 when he was crushed between two coal cars in the Manor Coal Company mine, was reported "good" last night at Memorial hospital. Michaels suffered a fractured pelvis in the accident.
